CIA, Hughes Salvage Part Of Soviet Sub

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said today the Central Intelligence Agency raised part of a Soviet nuclear submarine that sank in the Pacific Ocean.

Mansfield said the sub was old and that its military value was not very significant, but "what it contained might have been of some value." He did not elaborate.

However, government officials who asked not to be named, said the operation was designed to recover secret Soviet codes. Neither the codes nor any missiles were discovered, they said.

These sources also described the submarine as a nuclear-powered, older sub of the so-called H-class. And while no missiles were found, they said an analysis of the recovered section indicated the submarine was armed with three missiles that normally would carry nuclear warheads.

The CIA, working with industrialist Howard Hughes, brought the section of the sub to the surface in about 17,000 feet of water about 750 miles northwest of Oahu, Hawaii, the sources said.

In sunk in 1968 following a series of explosions, they said. The bodies of about 70 Soviet officers and seamen were recovered in the operation.

There was no immediate White House reaction to the report.

The CIA refused to comment.

But Mansfield said he felt sure that the episode would be investigated by a Senate subcommittee.

Senate Taking Hard Line On Oil Firm Tax Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a surprisingly quick vote to limit the oil depletion allowance, the Senate is ready to consider whether a massive tax-reduction bill should include a provision cutting into the overseas profits of U.S. oil companies.

The Senate today resumes its consideration of a $29.2-billion tax cut, the largest in the nation's history, after voting 47 to 41 Tuesday night to repeal the oil-depletion tax break for the major petroleum companies but to continue it for independent producers.

There are approximately 10,000 independent producers and they account for about 80 per cent of oil drilling in the United States.

Although the final language of the continuing tax break for the independents is subject to change, Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee said the vote assures that a limit on the depletion allowance will be included in the final Senate bill.

Next on the list of amendments to the tax-cut bill approved by Long's committee was a provision by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., designed to reduce tax breaks for U.S. oil companies that operate abroad.

Hartke's amendment would end the practice of allowing these U.S.-based multinational corporations to subtract from their U.S. tax bills the amount of taxes paid to foreign governments.

Instead of a direct credit against their U.S. taxes, Hartke proposes that the foreign taxes be deducted, like other business expenses, from taxable income. The effect would be to raise taxes on these firms by about $1 billion a year.

The compromise oil-depletion amendment, offered by Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., would raise the taxes on U.S. oil companies by an estimated $1.5 billion a year.

Under present law, oil and gas producers are permitted to avoid taxation on 22 per cent of their gross income from petroleum operations. The present provision allows the companies to save around $2.5 billion annually in U.S. taxes.

Bill Aimed At Cheaters

LANSING, Mich (AP) — A state lawmaker has introduced a bill to make will-full welfare fraud a felony instead of a misdemeanor as it is now.

State Rep. Sal Rocca, D-Sterling Heights, said his measure would require that conviction for intentional misrepresentation of facts in an application for welfare benefits be punished by imprisonment for not less than one year or more than five years.

Rocca called welfare fraud "a form of robbery," and said his approach would deter cheating.

Old Lakes Cruise Ship Saved From Scrap Heap

GROSSE ILE, Mich. (AP) — A retired suburban Detroit publisher has stepped in to save the stately old Great Lakes cruise ship S.S. South American from the scrap heap.

In an agreement announced today, the luxury ship was purchased for $200,000 by William S. Mellus, 72, of Grosse Ile, who founded the Mellus chain of papers based in Lincoln Park.

"Tentative plans call for bringing the South American from Camden, N.J. restoring her to her former resplendent glory and berthing her at Mackinac Island as a luxury floating hotel," Mellus said.

He said the plan includes several dinning rooms, a grand salon for dancing, a supper club, entertainment center and a museum of Michigan history.

Mellus said towing and renovation of the boat will cost an estimated $1.5 million.

The action by Mellus and his Mellus Flagship Associates narrowly saved the 61-year-old, 321-foot cruise ship, which was to be dismantled later this month.

Mellus credited the executive director of Mackinac Island, Robert Carr, for helping arrange the purchase, and thanked Gov. William Milliken for aiding in the deal.

"The governor interceded with Louis Sarko, president of the scrapping firm (Ships Inc., of Camden) to delay putting the South American to the torch, thus giving me time to work out the details," Mellus said.

Mellus said he also has negotiated a leasing agreement for waterfront property where the ship will be berthed on the island.

He said a corporation will be formed to run the South American hotel and that stock in the firm would be offered publically, but only to Michigan residents.

The South American cruised the Chicago-to-Buffalo route until 1941 when she took over the Buffalo-to-Duluth run. She was the first passenger ship to sail the St. Lawrence Seaway. Her last commercial run was in 1967.

A sister ship, the North American, was sold to the federal government in 1967 for use as a merchant marine training ship, but sank during a storm off Nantucket Island while being towed."

The South American was sold the same year to the Seafarer's International Union and taken to the Norfolk, Va., shipyard for renovations that were never undertaken. She was sold to the scrap firm a year ago.

"We plan to restore the ship to her original conditions of splendor, creating the charm and allure of an era when ships were so popular — and the "South" was so famed and beloved," Mellus said.

"While acquisition of the ship should be a highly profitable investment, the venture also is based on my deep sentimental desire to bring this once-great queen of the Great Lakes back to the state whose waters she plied for so many years," he added.

Carr, a backer of the effort to save the ship, lived in the Berrien Springs area when a youngster and attended the Andrews elementary school there.

55 MPH Penalty Points Eliminated In Senate

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill making the 55 miles per hour speed limit permanent has been approved — again — by a Senate committee.

This time, however, the committee removed all penalty points for violators of the lowered limit as long as they don't exceed the old limit on the road. That would be 65 m.p.h. on highways and 70 m.p.h. on freeways.

The Senate Highways and Transportation Committee approved the measure last week, but included a single point for speeding violations between 55 m.p.h. and the old limit. When that met with an uproar, chairman Arthur Cartwright, D-Detroit, yanked it back to committee for more discussion.

The bill has already passed the House, without any points levied for violations of the lowered limit. The legislature, arguing the limit was lowered to save gasoline, not lives, has consistently opposed points for speeders.

The State Police, Secretary of State Richard Austin and Gov. William Milliken have pushed for a point program to provide more effective enforcement, but to no avail.

The federal government, threatening the states with a cutoff of highway money, forced the 55 m.p.h. limit into effect a year ago. It is using similar pressure to make it permanent.

Admiral Tate Overjoyed At Victoria's U.S. Trip

ORANGE PARK, Fla. (AP) — Overjoyed at news that his Russian daughter has been granted a visa to visit him, retired Adm. Jackson R. Tate says he was apprehensive when he first made contact with the young woman he's never seen.

VICTORIA FYODOROVA
Okay to visit

"Her mother was in a Russian prison for eight years and she (his daughter) could have been right in the same damn spot," Tate said Tuesday. "But, thank God, they took it the other way and I will see Victoria."

Victoria Fyodorova, 29, a Soviet film actress, was notified in Moscow Tuesday that she will be granted a visa upon payment of 316 rubles, the equivalent of $512.

She was born of a wartime romance between Tate, then a U.S. naval attache in Moscow, and Zoya Fyodorova, a Russian actress, now 62.

Because the late Russian dictator, Joseph Stalin, apparently disapproved of the liaison, Tate was ordered out of the Soviet Union. Zoya was sentenced to 25 years in prison. She was released after Stalin's death.

Tate didn't learn of the birth of his daughter until 1963.

"I am just as discombobulated as I can be," the 77-year-old Tate said when he received the news her visa was granted.

"My immediate reaction is one of thankfulness to Secretary Brezhnev and the Russian people for this great gesture of humanitarianisin," said Tate, who recently underwent open heart surgery.

In Moscow, Victoria said the news came without fanfare.

"I'm ecstatic," she said through an interpreter. "The Ovir (passport) people simply called up and said, 'Bring 361 rubles down here on Thursday for your visa.' It was as simple as that.

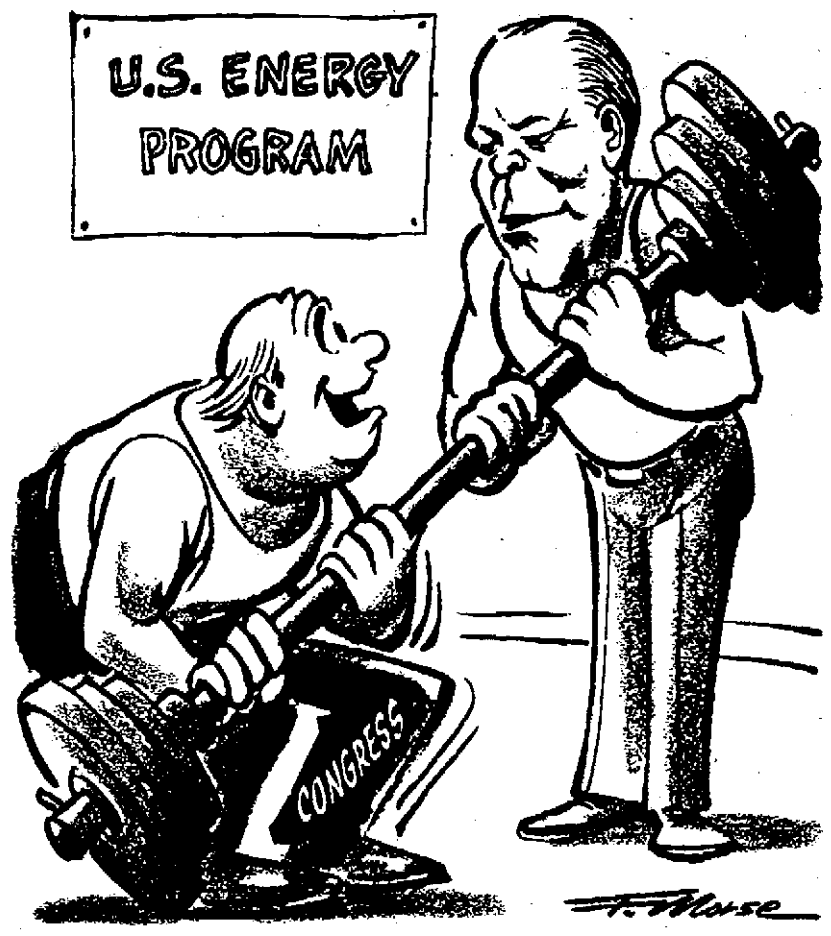
'Now Lets Try It Together'



The Sturgis Girl Who Made It Big

Until the New Deal shifted the country's financial power center from Wall Street to Pennsylvania Avenue, the Presidential inaugural ball stood for social summitry in Washington.

The foreign legations regularly held cocktail parties as did the bigger wigs in the Administration, but nothing went on down in Foggy Bottom comparable to what the late Elsa Maxwell used to arrange on a fee basis for her well heeled acquaintances in New York, Rome, Paris and other leading centers.

Shortly before Uncle Sam formally went into World War II, a super kinetic woman began to fill that void.

She was Mrs. George Mesta, born Perle Skirvin at Sturgis in 1889 and who died three days ago.

Perle had every qualification to assume direction of the capitol's social life.

She inherited a sizable fortune from her father, William B. Skirvin, who struck it rich in the Oklahoma oil fields and another from her husband who made a bundle in automated equipment for steel mills and other heavy industrial production plants.

She possessed endless zest and energy.

She fit the prevailing political climate, being a recent convert to the Democratic party. She blamed Wendell Willkie's loss to FDR's third term victory in 1940 to lack of conservative Republican support for its standard bearer.

Even before Pearl Harbor stunned the nation, she had established her home as the place to be invited.

Perle described a successful party as combining cool guests, hot food, cool music and a warm hostess.

Until someone pens his memoirs, it can only be guessed how the relaxed, slightly abandoned atmosphere in her gatherings smoothed the path for many a political consensus which was floundering badly between the White House and the Congressional halls.

She became a staunch friend of Harry Truman in this entry period. She helped to persuade FDR to adopt Truman as his 1944 running mate and to dump Henry Wallace who was irritating Democrats and Republicans with bipartisan intensity. In 1948 she was one of the few influential voices who said Truman had a ghost of a chance against Tom Dewey, and was the largest bankroller in the former's campaign.

Truman rewarded this fidelity by appointing her as abassador to Luxembourg, an assignment made to order for her talents and proclivities. During her four-year tour to the tiny duchy she spent a small fortune entertaining American GIs on furlough from their assignments in the Western European countries.

This inspired Irving Berlin to produce the Broadway hit, "Call Me Madame." Ethel Merman, the show's star, belted out the key song, "The Hostess with The Mostess on The Ball," and thenceforth Perle became The Hostess with The Mostess.

She resumed her Washington role after Eisenhower entered the White House. Gwen Cafritz, the stunning brunette wife of a multi-millionaire contractor, did challenge Perle's leadership for several years, but the Kennedy ascension into the White House ended the feud.

Perle and Gwen were equally out of favor with the JFK machine and Jackie had her own thoughts on who should arbitrate the social scene.

Perle recovered somewhat after Lyndon Johnson took over, but Viet Nam created such a diversion that even her consummate skill in getting two opponents to drink a cocktail in harmony could not restore the older syndrome.

Age also contributed to her withdrawal.

Dogmatists for this or that cause deplored Perle's partying as one more sign of why America doesn't move faster toward better and greater things.

Far from being frivolous, Perle adopted a pleasurable mechanism to get results when doctrinaire rhetoric had lost its voice. She was an early feminist, among other things, and probably did more to advance women's rights than NOW and other strident voices may ever achieve.

Considering how today's politicos are flubbing the dub down along the Potomac, some gal with Perle's ability may be what the country needs most.

Auditors Must Be Alert For Red Flags Of Fraud

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In less complicated, and probably less devious, times than these, the auditor's occupation was often attended by a large measure of routine and boredom. No more.

Scandals at Equity Funding and National Student Marketing, among other companies, have put public accountants on a hot seat. No longer can they lean back and accept routine; now they must sit on the edge of the seat and expect the worst.

Legal suits concerning the responsibility of auditors to uncover fraud, and pressure from the Securities and Exchange Commission, government watchdog of securities practices, have added to the pressure.

At the same time, fraud is probably more covert or sophisticated today. Business practices seem to have become more complex, and an auditor today must understand the possibilities for intrigue presented by the electronic computer.

At Equity Funding, for instance, the computers were programmed to provide the information company officers desired the auditors to see, but this by no means was the information the auditors should have but didn't see.

In effect, the activities of Equity were distorted by the creation and inflation of assets, the failure to record liabilities for borrowed cash, and the creation of bogus insurance. It all looked good. It wasn't real.

At National Student Marketing, misrepresentation was accomplished through at least two techniques: premature recording of revenues which subsequently weren't realized, and stimulation of stock value by emphasizing favorable news.

In an SEC suit against U.S. Financial, it was alleged that the top officer manufactured transactions in an effort to stimulate or maintain the price of the company's stock, on which his personal fortune may have depended.

Enough cases have now developed for the public accounting firms to be considerably concerned, and one of them, Touche Ross, has just issued a 70-page booklet alerting its auditors to some typical red flags.

Be especially alert, it tells them, if you discover the corporate management directly buying assets from or selling them to the corporation. Be suspicious if a corporate officer personally acquires property of interest to the company.

In each situation the officer might be using his corporate position for personal gain. While fraud or deceit might not be involved, it is the auditor's job to probe deeper.

Fire early this morning partially destroyed Hartford's only school building, doing an estimated damage of $20,000. The flames practically ruined the interior of the building, which houses all of the primary grades and the high school. Firemen battled half the night before they had the flames under control. The fire started in the boiler room of the three-story structure, supposedly in the coal bin.

William F. Bainton, 60 years old and a bachelor, prominently known for many years in and about Buchanan, is going to settle a long-standing litigation with his home town by presenting it with a $25,000 city hall. Instead of a law suit Bainton is going to erect a municipal building as a memorial to his mother, the late Amanda M. Bainton. For some time Buchanan has been dumping its sewage into McCoy's creek and it has been filling up Bainton's mill pond. Bainton started suit in circuit court, to enjoin the village from so disposing of its sewage. He offered to sell the mill site to the village, but was turned down. Recently he said, "Give me $35,000 for the land, and in return I'll build you a $25,000 city hall in memory of my mother." The officials have accepted his offer.

Some Deserve Failure's Fate

WASHINGTON — A customer in Atlanta last November purchased a $185 suit from a haberdasher. He waited a month for alterations, only to find the trouser length an inch in excess. Sam, he told the clerk, you made the pants too long.

After another month he was given the suit again, this time an inch too short. Arguments and threats followed. The haberdasher told the customer to stick his complaint in his eye. In the end the customer paid a lawyer $250 to reclaim the $185.

Now comes justice. Says the customer: "The store has just gone out of business. The recession, I suppose. I feel guilty for saying so, in times like these, but I'm very happy that the store failed."

The glad guilt is reasonable. The nation is gloomed by recession-provoked business failures, some 250 a week now, and there can be no true joy in contemplating the resulting millions out of work (in January about 30,000 a day).

Still, it's the truth, as the Atlanta customer suggests, that some of these businesses and some of these workers deserve their fate. Shoddy mechanics and arrogant clerks are, it's to be hoped, the first to go in hard times — and victimized consumers say good riddance.

Their departure may augur only good for the nation. The slothful and the careless have been increasing drags on free enterprise in recent decades. They are the types who push absentee figures in some industries as high as 8 to 10 per cent annually. They also are major contributors to the uncomfortable statistics which indicate that American productivity figures have fallen dangerously behind most other industrialized nations. The U.S. Commission on Productivity says the 3.3 average for this nation is only a third of Japan's routine 10.5.

But mainly the weak workers and unbusinesslike business have sabotaged the American customer's once-trusted respect for his nation's products. The Council of Better Business Bureaus reports consumer complaints to local BBB's have risen steadily every year since the '50s.

In 1974, for example, agencies compiled 1 million complaints, up 11 per cent from 1973. Complaints against department stores were up 10 per cent, complaints against service establishments were up 10 per cent, gripes concerning mail order house (the BBB's biggest bugaboo) were up 17.2 points.

Not even the complaints, however, give an accurate picture of the bunkum consumers must increasingly suffer. The National Commission on Consumer Safety, for example, says there are 60,000 people injured each year by faulty cosmetics alone (honest to God, cosmetics), but only a fraction bother to gripe formally.

Add to this the people injured by shoddy or unsafe household products 4 million), the people riding in mismade automobiles (45 million vehicles were recalled between 1967 and 1974) and the millions of consumers who are wasting $10 million a year on supermarket packaging deceptions. The sum indicates, easily, that every adult in the land is a victim of bad business practices.

Often the suffering is expensive. An Indian woman, trying to get her car repaired, was kept waiting nine months by a mechanic who in the end charged her thrice the estimate. Almost as bad, however, is the discomfort and discourtesy consumers must face — humdrum government bureaucrats who treat the public as fleas; parking lot attendants who drive cars as if the gun has sounded at the demolition derby; gum-snapping clerks; cranky telephone operators; bullying cops.

The long list includes employers who, by in large, get the employes they deserve.

In good times, perhaps, some of this rot is unavoidable as money is easy and competition unnecessary. But now, with wolves at the doors everywhere, the wise consumer may take advantage. A customer with shopping list in hand should expect other than boorish clerks, disinterested management and frumpy merchandise.

One way to get it is to shop around — there's nothing so effective in separating the business men from the bores.

Vanishing Species Can Be Saved From Extinction

Twenty-four ivory-billed woodpeckers were known to exist in 1941. Now, many ornithologists think the bird is extinct, although some cling to the belief that a very few remain in Louisiana, South Carolina and Texas. The demise of the ivory-billed woodpecker epitomizes the shrinking state of natural wildlife in general. Since 1850, more than 50 types of birds, mammals and fishes have disappeared in the United States and Puerto Rico alone.

Last year, the National Wildlife Federation reported that 109 species of wildlife were in danger of becoming extinct. The list included 17 mammals, 53 birds, 8 reptiles and amphibians and 31 fish. If man does not stop encroaching on the natural habitats of wildlife, the list will grow even larger as wildlife populations continue to decline. Science News has estimated that wildlife is currently disappearing at the rate of one species or subspecies per year.

The Interior Department recently proposed that the grizzly bear be added to the government's list of "threatened species." According to a spokesman for the Fish and Wildlife Service, man is simply crowding the bear out. It is impossible for the grizzly to expand beyond the three ecosystems where it currently lives. About 150 years ago, the grizzly bear numbered in the tens of thousands, but now there are only about 1,000 left in the United States. The government will accept comments on its proposal through Monday, March 3.

It is possible that the grizzly bear will not go the way of the eastern elk and the sea mink — that is, the way of extinction. Conservationists have been able to rescue the bison from extinction, for example, and while the animal is far from numbering what it did 120 years ago (120 million), its population is healthy and currently stabilized at about 10,000. The trumpeter swan, the sea otter and the alligator also have managed to survive threatened extinction through the efforts of conservationists.

Tape Ownership A Key Issue

WASHINGTON — One of the most important questions yet unanswered in the complex legal tangle stemming from the Watergate crimes is whether former President Nixon or the Federal government owns Nixon's White House tape recordings and other documents.

The answer will have profound implications for all future Presidents, and possibly their White House advisers and Cabinet officers as well.

In the modern past, Presidents have hauled off their private records at the finish of their terms to dispose of as they pleased. As a result, Presidential documents cannot be found in one central location; they are scattered from Texas to Kansas to New York to Massachusetts.

In addition, former Presidents have been free to destroy embarrassing documents and establish restrictions on the availability of those they decide to make public.

Recently, a Federal district judge ruled that such practices were "repugnant" and improper. He rejected Nixon's claim that he owned the papers personally and therefore should have full control over them. He ruled that materials produced or kept by a public official in the course of his duties belong to the government, in trust for the public.

The United States Court of Appeals promptly stayed that decision and ordered a panel of three judges to review the issue of ownership all over again.

As with all tortuous judicial processes, there is little indication as to how the panel will rule. Moreover its decision may be appealed to the Supreme Court, necessitating further delay.

But if the district judge's ruling is allowed to stand, the public will have won a great victory. After all, the public pays a President's salary and should be entitled to the record of his labors, without self-serving distortions and concealments.

Congress, concerned about Nixon's control over vital Watergate evidence, passed a Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation act in December. It provides for the issuance of regulations concerning public access to White House documents, and in that sense is a step forward. But it left to the courts the basic question of ownership or privilege.

Scholars have long complained about the difficulty of studying the history of past administrations. Each President has established his own library, far removed from other Presidential libraries. Many documents are sealed for lengthy periods, sometimes established for arbitrary reasons. Many are missing, without explanation.

A continuing problem has been that Presidential advisers have also taken their own records, as personal belongings, and they are not always cooperative in returning them for the Presidential libraries.

The Sturgis Girl Who Made It Big

Until the New Deal shifted the country's financial power center from Wall Street to Pennsylvania Avenue, the Presidential inaugural ball stood for social summitry in Washington.

The foreign legations regularly held cocktail parties as did the bigger wigs in the Administration, but nothing went on down in Foggy Bottom comparable to what the late Elsa Maxwell used to arrange on a fee basis for her well heeled acquaintances in New York, Rome, Paris and other leading centers.

Shortly before Uncle Sam formally went into World War II, a super kinetic woman began to fill that void.

She was Mrs. George Mesta, born Perle Skirvin at Sturgis in 1889 and who died three days ago.

Perle had every qualification to assume direction of the capitol's social life.

She inherited a sizable fortune from her father, William B. Skirvin, who struck it rich in the Oklahoma oil fields and another from her husband who made a bundle in automated equipment for steel mills and other heavy industrial production plants.

She possessed endless zest and energy.

She fit the prevailing political climate, being a recent convert to the Democratic party. She blamed Wendell Willkie's loss to FDR's third term victory in 1940 to lack of conservative Republican support for its standard bearer.

Even before Pearl Harbor stunned the nation, she had established her home as the place to be invited.

Perle described a successful party as combining cool guests, hot food, cool music and a warm hostess.

Until someone pens his memoirs, it can only be guessed how the relaxed, slightly abandoned atmosphere in her gatherings smoothed the path for many a political consensus which was floundering badly between the White House and the Congressional halls.

She became a staunch friend of Harry Truman in this entry period. She helped to persuade FDR to adopt Truman as his 1944 running mate and to dump Henry Wallace who was irritating Democrats and Republicans with bipartisan intensity. In 1948 she was one of the few influential voices who said Truman had a ghost of a chance against Tom Dewey, and was the largest bankroller in the former's campaign.

Truman rewarded this fidelity by appointing her as abassador to Luxembourg, an assignment made to order for her talents and proclivities. During her four-year tour to the tiny duchy she spent a small fortune entertaining American GIs on furlough from their assignments in the Western European countries.

This inspired Irving Berlin to produce the Broadway hit, "Call Me Madame." Ethel Merman, the show's star, belted out the key song, "The Hostess with The Mostess on The Ball," and thenceforth Perle became The Hostess with The Mostess.

She resumed her Washington role after Eisenhower entered the White House. Gwen Cafritz, the stunning brunette wife of a multi-millionaire contractor, did challenge Perle's leadership for several years, but the Kennedy ascension into the White House ended the feud.

Perle and Gwen were equally out of favor with the JFK machine and Jackie had her own thoughts on who should arbitrate the social scene.

Perle recovered somewhat after Lyndon Johnson took over, but Viet Nam created such a diversion that even her consummate skill in getting two opponents to drink a cocktail in harmony could not restore the older syndrome.

Age also contributed to her withdrawal.

Dogmatists for this or that cause deplored Perle's partying as one more sign of why America doesn't move faster toward better and greater things.

Far from being frivolous, Perle adopted a pleasurable mechanism to get results when doctrinaire rhetoric had lost its voice. She was an early feminist, among other things, and probably did more to advance women's rights than NOW and other strident voices may ever achieve.

Considering how today's politicos are flubbing the dub down along the Potomac, some gal with Perle's ability may be what the country needs most.

Auditors Must Be Alert For Red Flags Of Fraud

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In less complicated, and probably less devious, times than these, the auditor's occupation was often attended by a large measure of routine and boredom. No more.

Scandals at Equity Funding and National Student Marketing, among other companies, have put public accountants on a hot seat. No longer can they lean back and accept routine; now they must sit on the edge of the seat and expect the worst.

Legal suits concerning the responsibility of auditors to uncover fraud, and pressure from the Securities and Exchange Commission, government watchdog of securities practices, have added to the pressure.

At the same time, fraud is probably more covert or sophisticated today. Business practices seem to have become more complex, and an auditor today must understand the possibilities for intrigue presented by the electronic computer.

At Equity Funding, for instance, the computers were programmed to provide the information company officers desired the auditors to see, but this by no means was the information the auditors should have but didn't see.

In effect, the activities of Equity were distorted by the creation and inflation of assets, the failure to record liabilities for borrowed cash, and the creation of bogus insurance. It all looked good. It wasn't real.

At National Student Marketing, misrepresentation was accomplished through at least two techniques: premature recording of revenues which subsequently weren't realized, and stimulation of stock value by emphasizing favorable news.

In an SEC suit against U.S. Financial, it was alleged that the top officer manufactured transactions in an effort to stimulate or maintain the price of the company's stock, on which his personal fortune may have depended.

Enough cases have now developed for the public accounting firms to be considerably concerned, and one of them, Touche Ross, has just issued a 70-page booklet alerting its auditors to some typical red flags.

Be especially alert, it tells them, if you discover the corporate management directly buying assets from or selling them to the corporation. Be suspicious if a corporate officer personally acquires property of interest to the company.

In each situation the officer might be using his corporate position for personal gain. While fraud or deceit might not be involved, it is the auditor's job to probe deeper.

SJ Renewal Wins, Tax Hike Defeated

By DICK DERRICK
SJ City Editor

St. Joseph school district voters approved a 23.09-mill operating levy by 166 votes yesterday but buried a companion 1.91-mill proposal by more than a two to one margin.

Proposal No. 1 for five years was approved by an unofficial count of 2,102 to 1,936. It represented renewal of a school tax that expired last December.

Proposal No. 2, designed to continue present operations without cutback, was defeated 2,684 to 1,336 by unofficial tabulation.

So great was the rejection of Proposal II that the St. Joseph board of education in a statement said it has no plans for resubmitting the tax again.

There were 4,038 voters who went to the polls out of a total registration of approximately 11,100. Last August when voters approved a 23.09 mill tax package on a third try the turnout was 4,006.

School Board President Ray M. Dumke in a formal statement said: "The board is happy with the results of Proposal No. 1, especially in view of the current economic conditions. We can operate a relatively good program although we will have to make some cuts.

"These cuts, as previously stated, will be in adjusting class sizes, more busing between schools, reduction in the teaching staff and reduced programs in athletics, art and music.

"We have no plans at present for scheduling another election. To me the two to one rejection of Proposal No. 2 is a clear mandate by the people of the district."

Heavy support in the St. Joseph high school area and in the Brown school area gave Proposal No. 1 its relatively slim margin of approval. Proposal No. 1 passed 762-610 in the high school precinct and 474 to 392 in the Brown school area.

Proposal No. 2 lost in every precinct except among the absentee voters who approved it 52 to 45.

Milton junior high is Precinct 1, St. Joseph senior high is Precinct 2, North Lincoln school is Precinct 3, Brown school is Precinct 4, and AV stands for absentee ballots.

Election results by precinct were:

Proposal No. 1 (23.09 mills), Pct. 1, 278 yes, 285 no; Pct. 2, 762 yes, 610 no; Pct. 3, 523 yes, 617 no; Pct. 4, 474 yes, 392 no; AV, 65 yes, 32 no; total, 2,102 yes, 1,936 no.

Proposal No. 2 (1.91 mills), Pct. 1, 195 yes, 368 no; Pct. 2, 507 yes, 860 no; Pct. 3, 283 yes, 853 no; Pct. 4, 299 yes, 558 no; AV, 52 yes, 45 no; total, 1,336 yes, 2,684 no.

Jewell has been attending the FBI executive level training classes since Jan. 6, according to Undersheriff Edward Sandera, and will return to work Monday.

Speakers at the graduation ceremonies will be Attorney General Edward H. Levi; Hugh H. Clegg, who founded and was assistant director of the FBI's National Academy program when it was started in 1935, and Lt. Clyde D. Maneri, Oakland Park, Fla., police department, who was elected class spokesman.

Courses of the FBI's National Academy program include police ethics, behavioral sciences, police management, recent court decisions and urban police problems. With the graduation of the 100th session, a total of 8,919 officers have graduated from the academy since its beginning in 1935.

DUAL APPEARANCE: Dr. William and his wife, Masters Mrs. Virginia Johnson, famed sex researchers, will speak in St. Joseph April 22. Sale of tickets will be by reservation. Pair will address late afternoon session, then answer questions in evening.

Benton May Also Seek Referendum

With the St. Joseph township board already backing a referendum to block the incorporation of a City of Fairplain, similar action is expected to be taken by Benton township officials.

The apparent strategy is that if Fairplain residents have a chance to go to the polls, they will defeat the city idea, mainly because of high operating costs. State law provides for an election in the incorporation area only if residents petition forit.

"I'm sure we'll seek a referendum," said Benton township Supervisor Martin J. Lane, contacted by this newspaper Tuesday.

Lane commented that David Calhoun, chairman of the state boundary commission, maintains that an initial 7-mill operating tax, advanced by Fairplain proponents, actually would have to be 14 or 15 mills to generate enough revenue.

Calhoun cast the sole opposing vote among the five-member commission. The vote was reported last Friday, but each commissioner's reasons won't be revealed until sometime in April.

Lane said Calhoun's reason, however, is on record in Lansing and Lane knew of it.

The proposed City of Fairplain consists of about 4.1 acres partly in Benton township and partly in St. Joseph township. The area reportedly includes about 7,300 people.

Lane said while the Benton township board has not yet acted on a possible referendum issue, it has 45 days to act, after the boundary commission issues its written reasons in April. Lane indicated that an election is needed to determine what is best for all people in both townships.

Catholic Scholar Fund Established

A memorial scholarship fund in the name of Michael R. Conlin has been established by the Twin-City Area Catholic School Fund, Inc., according to Dr. B.A. Phillips, president of the scholarship fund.

Conlin, 21, of 191 Windsor drive, Benton Harbor, died Feb. 3 of a viral pneumonia. He was a member of St. John's Catholic church and was a graduate of Lake Michigan Catholic high school. He was graduated from Lake Michigan College and graduated Cum Laude from Western Michigan University in 1974.

Contributions to the memorial scholarship, which was initiated by the Harold Zaban family, will provide a grant for a student attending Lake Michigan Catholic schools, Dr. Phillips said.

Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity at Lake Michigan College, is also making plans for a dance benefit for the scholarship fund in June, Dr. Phillips said.

Donations for the scholarship fund can be sent to the Twin-City Area Scholarship Fund, 915 Pleasant street, St. Joseph, Dr. Phillips said.

Sex Researchers To Talk In St. Joe

Dr. William H. Masters and Mrs. Virginia E. Johnson, and his wife, nationally known sex researchers, will make a dual presentation Tuesday, April 22, at he St. Joseph high school auditorium.

Authors of a just published third book, "The Pleasure Bond," Dr. Masters and Mrs. Johnson will speak in a late afternoon presentation (4-5:30 p.m.) on their research findings and treatment concepts regarding sex and sexuality.

There will be a subsequent question and answer session from 7:30 to 9 p.m. to afford listeners an opportunity to have their specific questions answeredd

The couple's study of sexuality began some 20 years ago. Controversy greeted their first publication, "Human Sexual Response," published in 1966. In 1970 "Human Sexual Inadequacy," their second book, was published.

Sale of tickets will be by registration.

Registration forms are available from the Berrien County Council of Churches, 305 Lake Boulevard, St. Joseph. Forms may be picked up in person at the reception desks of Memorial, Mercy, Pawating, Berrien General and Watervliet Community hospitals as well as Riverwood Community Mental Health Center and the Council of Churches office.

Tickets are $5 and provide admission to both sessions. The program is sponsored by the Berrien County Council of Churches, the Berrien County Chapter of the Michigan Society for Mental Health, the Berrien County Medical Society and the Southwestern Michigan District Nurses Association.

Lutheran High Easter Concert

Michigan Lutheran high school will present its fourth annual Easter concert, at 8 p.m. Friday, at the high school gymnasium.

Over 75 singers and musicians will participate in presenting nine selections, according to Ronald Pape, music director. The concert will involve the Cadet Choir, the Festival Singers, the Titan band and the Titan chorus.

Among the selections scheduled to be presented are: "Three Lenten Scenes," by David H. Williams; "Thou Art Risen," Johann Sebastian Bach; "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," Williams-Nelson, and "Jesus is Coming," John W. Peterson.

There will be no admission charge. A free will offering will be taken.

Benton Delays Tax Abatement Decision

The Benton township board of trustees last night conducted two public hearings, and put off until its April 8 meeting final action on tax abatement requests for Hull's Terra and Berrien Homes, two apartment projects for low and middle income families.

The board also scheduled its settlement day meeting to resolve all bills for 1 p.m. next Tuesday; and the annual township meeting for 1 p.m. Saturday, April 5.

While scant formal action was taken, citizen discussion was lively on the tax abatement matters and public hearings, and the meeting ran for nearly four hours. The public hearings dealt with partial tax exemption requests for three industrial firms under the Michigan Plant Rehabilitation and Industrial Districts Act of 1974; and with the proposed $3 million community development program.

Seeking tax relief for new plant construction under terms of the plant rehabilitation and industrial districts act were Modar, Clark Equipment and Consumers Asphalt Co. Final action by the board is expected April 15.

The community development plan is federally funded and could provide up to 300 new housing units for the township. It also would include housing rehabilitation, street improvements and social programs, such as dental care. The township's program would cost $3 million over three years, including a budget of $981,000 the first year, starting next June.

An initial public hearing was held by the township board last February. Two hearings are required by federal law, and last night's was the second.

Community development programs will be launched nationwide as replacements for existing programs, such as Model Cities and neighborhood development programs.

Hull's Terra tax abatement issue almost died for the lack of a support. The abatement ordinance would substitute an annual service fee for property taxes. The fee would be a lesser amount than ad valorem taxes. Township Clerk Catheryn Sirk moved for a vote on the ordinance, but there was no support for the motion.

A citizen in the audience criticized the board for not taking a vote, saying each board member should place himself on record. Murmurs of support for the citizen's opinion ran through the audience that packed the chambers. Trustee Ken Malkin then proposed that the ordinance be considered anew at the next meeting April

By DICK DERRICK
SJ City Editor

St. Joseph school district voters approved a 23.09-mill operating levy by 166 votes yesterday but buried a companion 1.91-mill proposal by more than a two to one margin.

Proposal No. 1 for five years was approved by an unofficial count of 2,102 to 1,936. It represented renewal of a school tax that expired last December.

Proposal No. 2, designed to continue present operations without cutback, was defeated 2,684 to 1,336 by unofficial tabulation.

So great was the rejection of Proposal II that the St. Joseph board of education in a statement said it has no plans for resubmitting the tax again.

There were 4,038 voters who went to the polls out of a total registration of approximately 11,100. Last August when voters approved a 23.09 mill tax package on a third try the turnout was 4,006.

School Board President Ray M. Dumke in a formal statement said: "The board is happy with the results of Proposal No. 1, especially in view of the current economic conditions. We can operate a relatively good program although we will have to make some cuts.

"These cuts, as previously stated, will be in adjusting class sizes, more busing between schools, reduction in the teaching staff and reduced programs in athletics, art and music.

"We have no plans at present for scheduling another election. To me the two to one rejection of Proposal No. 2 is a clear mandate by the people of the district."

Heavy support in the St. Joseph high school area and in the Brown school area gave Proposal No. 1 its relatively slim margin of approval. Proposal No. 1 passed 762-610 in the high school precinct and 474 to 392 in the Brown school area.

Proposal No. 2 lost in every precinct except among the absentee voters who approved it 52 to 45.

Milton junior high is Precinct 1, St. Joseph senior high is Precinct 2, North Lincoln school is Precinct 3, Brown school is Precinct 4, and AV stands for absentee ballots.

Election results by precinct were:

Proposal No. 1 (23.09 mills), Pct. 1, 278 yes, 285 no; Pct. 2, 762 yes, 610 no; Pct. 3, 523 yes, 617 no; Pct. 4, 474 yes, 392 no; AV, 65 yes, 32 no; total, 2,102 yes, 1,936 no.

Proposal No. 2 (1.91 mills), Pct. 1, 195 yes, 368 no; Pct. 2, 507 yes, 860 no; Pct. 3, 283 yes, 853 no; Pct. 4, 299 yes, 558 no; AV, 52 yes, 45 no; total, 1,336 yes, 2,684 no.

Lenten Meditation

Rev. Harry J. Stubbs
Congregational Church of Three Oaks
Today's Scripture: John 11:49-53

These five verses are replete with meanings that go beyond themselves. The first four clearly belong to the preceding account of Jesus' raising Lazarus from death. Hence, I shall deal with verse 53 only: "So from that day on they took counsel how to put him to death."

Here we have to do with death by murder. It was no longer a matter of whether they were going to kill him; it was solely a matter of how they were going to kill him.

It has been noted by thousands that we live in a violent society, a society that is no longer surprised by even horrendous murders.

Just under 1,000 people were murdered in Chicago during 1974. Most of these murders were not premeditated as was Jesus'; they were crimes of passion growing out of momentary, destructive emotion or during the commission of some other crime.

Likely none of us are potential murderers of any kind or in any degree in crimes of commission. However, it is possible to kill by mission.

We can allow to die by allowing to languish, by withholding care, by withholding nurture. It is not this crime against the church, the Body of Christ, that we are most likely to commit today? And, if so, are we not equally guilty?

That is the tragedy of common sense:
To dim all wonder by indifference.

These five verses are replete with meanings that go beyond themselves. The first four clearly belong to the preceding account of Jesus' raising Lazarus from death. Hence, I shall deal with verse 53 only: "So from that day on they took counsel how to put him to death."

Here we have to do with death by murder. It was no longer a matter of whether they were going to kill him; it was solely a matter of how they were going to kill him.

It has been noted by thousands that we live in a violent society, a society that is no longer surprised by even horrendous murders.

Just under 1,000 people were murdered in Chicago during 1974. Most of these murders were not premeditated as was Jesus'; they were crimes of passion growing out of momentary, destructive emotion or during the commission of some other crime.

Likely none of us are potential murderers of any kind or in any degree in crimes of commission. However, it is possible to kill by mission.

We can allow to die by allowing to languish, by withholding care, by withholding nurture. It is not this crime against the church, the Body of Christ, that we are most likely to commit today? And, if so, are we not equally guilty?

That is the tragedy of common sense:
To dim all wonder by indifference.

SYMBOLIC FOODS ARE PART OF FAMILY CELEBRATION

Jewish Households Prepare For Passover Season

The feast of Passover starts the evening of March 26 this year. The eight-day celebration beginning with the Seder or Passover Feast heralds the deliverance of the Jews from their long bondage in Egypt and their exodus to the promised land.

During the Seder, ritual foods are passed around the table and eaten at appropriate points in the reading of the Haggadah, or story of Passover. These include:

— Three matzos, or unleavened bread covered with a napkin to remind celebrants that Jews fleeing from Egypt were unable to bake bread in their haste.

— A roasted egg, reminder of fertility and creation.

— A dish of charuseth, a mixture of chopped apple, almonds, cinnamon and wine, representative of the mortar used by the Israelite slaves in Egypt.

— Salt water in a little dish into which the green tops of horseradish or other bitter herb are dipped as a reminder of the bitterness of the oppression suffered by the Israelites.

Wine is a part of the ritual and four cups are consumed at specific points in the service, each draught having its own symbolism.

Presiding over the Seder table is the head of the family. Traditionally he sits at the head of the table in an armchair well supplied with pillows. This symbolizes he is a free man and king in his own household.

Although some traditions fall by the wayside, the Seder remains an important holiday feast — one which Jewish homemakers throughout the world plan and cook for while following the special dietary laws observed during Passover. This is a time of true feasting and desserts, especially, are a dramatic and delightful closing to everyone's Seder.

FESTIVE POACHED ORANGES

6 oranges
2 tablespoons pareve margarine
¾ cup currant jelly (or clear raspberry jelly)
½ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon potato starch
2 tablespoons cold water

Remove thin outer rind from three of the oranges with vegetable peeler and cut into very thin slivers. Place the rind in small saucepan with water to cover. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Drain, reserving rind. Cut remaining peel and white membrane from all six oranges. Place large crepe pan or skillet over flame. Add margarine and jelly and stir gently until melted. Stir in orange juice and reserved, slivered rind. Add oranges and cook, spooning sauce over oranges, for about five minutes. Mix together potato starch and water to form a smooth paste. Stir into sauce in crepe pan. Continue to stir over heat until thickened. Continue spooning sauce over oranges until heated through, about five minutes longer. Serve warm, covering orange with sauce and slivered rind. Makes six servings.

ORANGE PASSOVER CAKE

¾ cup passover cake meal
¾ cup potato starch
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
9 eggs, separated
1½ cups sugar, divided
½ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup shredded carrots (2 to 3 medium)
½ cup finely chopped walnuts
½ cup chopped raisins

Sift together cake meal, potato starch, salt and cinnamon. Set aside. In a large bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in ½ cup sugar, continuing to beat until stiff peaks form. Set aside. In a large bowl, beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in remaining one cup sugar. Add dry ingredients and undiluted orange juice concentrate alternately to beaten egg yolks, mixing only until well blended. Stir in grated orange rind, carrots, walnuts and raisins. Fold egg yolk mixture gently into egg whites until batter is well blended, but do not overmix. Turn into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in 325 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes, until cake is golden brown and springs back when touched lightly with finger. Invert pan on cake rack or neck of bottle until cake is completely cool. When cool, loosen cake from pan and turn out onto cake plate. Makes one 10-inch cake.

ORANGE MATZOH PANCAKES

6 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup orange juice
1½ cups matzoh meal

Beat egg yolks until light and fluffy. Beat in sugar and salt. Beat in orange juice. Stir in matzoh meal. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold in. Using a rounded tablespoon per pancake, spoon batter into a well greased skillet or griddle. Cook until lightly browned, turn and brown on other side. Serve with honey or a sprinkling of Orange Sugar. Makes about four dozen pancakes.

Orange Sugar

½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind

Mix sugar and orange rind in a small bowl. Let stand about two hours before serving.

HOLIDAY COMPOTE

2 packages (12-oz. each) mixed dried fruit
2 cups orange juice
3 grapefruit, sectioned
6 oranges, sectioned
One-third cup slivered almonds

Combine dried fruit and orange juice in a large saucepan. Cover; heat to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Add orange, grapefruit sections and almonds, to dried fruit. Let cool. Spoon into a jar or bowl. Cover and refrigerate for several hours or overnight, serve chilled. Or reheat and serve warm. Makes eight cups; 12 servings.

CARROT AND SWEET POTATO TSIMMES

1 cup pitted prunes
Water
1 pound carrots, cut diagonally in one-inch pieces
4 medium size sweet potatoes (about 1½ pounds), peeled and cut in ¾-inch slices
2 tablespoons potato starch
2 tablespoons water
1 cup chicken bouillon
¾ cup honey
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons melted margarine

Cover prunes with water; let stand ½ hour. Drain. Put carrots, sweet potatoes and prunes in four-quart pressure cooker. Mix together corn starch and water until smooth. Mix in bouillon, corn syrup, lemon rind and margarine. Pour over vegetables in pressure cooker and stir to coat. Close cover securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe and cook three minutes. Cool cooker at once. Makes six servings.

As the Passover season draws near, it brings forth happy memories of former Passover celebrations — the beautiful Seder table with its heirloom candlesticks and goblet — Father's rendition of the Seder Service — the happiness of the little children — and those rich aromas drifting from the kitchen.

The excitement of preparation for Passover begins weeks — even months — before the holiday. There is wine to be made — rusell, the special Passover vinegar made from beets, must be started — and meals for the eight days of Passover must be planned.

Many Jewish cooks serve traditional family favorites during the Passover season. The aroma of kugel and knaidlach, mondlen and chicken soup fills most Jewish households across the country.

Desserts are always a happy ending to a holiday meal. Suggested here is Orange Blossom Cake, a delicious orange flavored sponge cake garnished with fresh orange slices.

ORANGE BLOSSOM CAKE

5 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup peanut oil
One-third cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
¾ cup matzo meal
¼ cup potato starch
1 teaspoon salt
Fresh orange slices

Beat together egg yolks and ¼ cup sugar until thick and light. Beat in peanut oil, orange juice and grated orange peel. Sift together matzo meal, potato starch and salt, and blend into yolk mixture.

Beat egg whites until foamy, then gradually add remaining ½ cup sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form.

Fold egg yolk mixture into beaten egg whites. Pour into an ungreased nine-inch tube pan.

Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) 50-60 minutes, or until done. Invert cake pan until cool. Makes one nine-inch cake.

This wonderful melt-in-your-mouth Prune Filled Sponge Cake is a favorite the ysand, but especially at springtime when favorite Jewish Passover foods make their appearance.

You'll want to make this tender cake then and again after the holiday is over. It is made with potato flour and the batter itself has a little orange rind in for extra flavor. After cooling it's cut in half and put together with a fruity prune and lemon filling. The flavor combination of the sun-ripened prunes with the lemon and orange takes this cake out of the ordinary class, and it's so delicious that no frosting is necessary. Simply dust it with powdered sugar.

Since potato flour makes a very delicate cake, for best results cool the cake in the pan before turning onto a platter.

PRUNE FILLED SPONGE CAKE

1 cup sifted potato flour
1½ cups sugar
6 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 tablespoons orange juice

Sift flour with ¾ cup sugar four times. SEPARATE EGGS AND BEAT WHITES WITH SALT UNTIL STIFF. Gradually beat in remaining ¾ cup sugar. With same beater, beat yolks until thick. Stir in orange rind and juice. Fold into egg white mixture. Gradually fold in flour-sugar mixture. Turn into 10-inch tube pan. Bake in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) 45 to 50 minutes. Cool in pan. Remove from pan and cut cake into two layers. Spread prune filling between. Sprinkle top of cake with powdered sugar (optional).

Filling:

1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons potato flour
Grated rind of one lemon
¼ cup lemon juice
1 egg
1 cup chopped cooked prunes

Mix sugar and potato flour, add lemon rind, juice and slightly beaten egg. Add prunes and cook and stir until mixture is thick. Cool. Spread prune filling between cooled, halved cake layers.

The various elements of Passover — the paschal lamb, unleavened bread, the household celebration, the public convocation, the story of deliverance from Egypt — combine to form a celebration of freedom, religious dedication and respect for law and life.

The Seder Service recalls the ancient story of Israel's redemption from bondage in Egypt. The purpose of the Seder is to give families the opportunity to ponder the dramatic and miraculous events which led to the exodus from an ancient land of slavery.

According to custom the leader of the Seder places symbolic foods upon the table as part of the ceremony. There are three matzoth placed one upon the other and covered with a cloth to represent the Bread of Affliction and the union of three religious groups of Jews. A roasted lamb bone symbolizes the paschal lamb and an egg is the symbol of the ancient festival offering. Horseradish, a bitter herb, recalls the bitterness of slavery. Charoseth, a mixture of grated apple, nuts and wine symbolizes the clay and bricks used by the Israelites to build the "treasured cities of Pharaoh." Salt water, placed around the table in pitchers and bowls, symbolizes the tears shed by Jews while in captivity. Parsley, a sweet herb, stands for stands for spring and growth.

Add a touch of spring to your Seder table this Passover with Antipasto Salad Bowl. This colorful melange of garden vegetables is tossed with a peanut oil and vinegar dressing, served on crisp lettuce and topped with wedges of hard-cooked egg.

ANTIPASTO SALAD BOWL

½ cup peanut oil
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 cup diced green pepper
1 cup diced cucumber
½ cup diced celery
½ cup sliced green onions
3 medium tomatoes, quartered
Lettuce
3 hard-cooked eggs, quartered

In a small jar combine peanut oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Cover jar and shake well. Set aside. Combine green pepper, cucumber, celery, green onions and tomatoes in a large bowl. Shake dressing and pour over vegetables. Toss well. Serve on crisp lettuce, topped with wedges of egg. Makes six servings.

Six 'Rules' For Teachers

Dear Ann Landers: As a mother, I was disturbed by the letter from the Oklahoma teacher who wrote the set of rules for parents which she said were "guaranteed to produce thoroughly messed-up kids."

As a parent, I hope you will print my rules which might provide interesting reading for certain teachers.

1. If you are having trouble with a child, don't let the parents know. Talk behind his back to friends, other teachers, and other parents.

2. Don't bother to write a thank-you note for a gift from a student. After all, it takes a lot of time to write 25 or 30 notes. (Never mind about the time it took to select the gift. It doesn't count.) You told the child "thank you" when he gave it to you. That's enough.

3. Never apologize when you have made an error. What's done is done — even if you learn later the child was not guilty. An apology might ruin your "image."

4. Ridicule a child in front of the class. It doesn't hurt to be cut down before one's peers. It makes a child more "humble."

5. Leave no doubt in anyone's mind as to who your "pets" are. Wealth and social position rate "rewards." Give special attention and privileges to children, nieces and nephews of school board members, and those from rich and influential families.

6. When you attend P.T.A. meetings, go out of your way to be pleasant and attentive to parents with clout, money, and prestige. After all, it's smart to know what side your bread is buttered on.

I hope you can find room for this in your column, Ann. I know a few teachers who need this message. — Way Out West

Dear Way Out: Here's your "message." For the teachers who don't need it, it will mean nothing. For those who do — well, shape up.

He's Not Lonely

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widower in my mid-seventies, in good health, and I enjoy a variety of interests. My problem is not loneliness, one so many older folks write about. In fact, it's just the opposite. I am pestered to death by well-meaning people who want to play "Cupid's Little Helper."

I am not a recluse, Ann. I enjoy church and social functions. I like people, but I also enjoy the tranquility of my little home, my books, and my garden.

Because I try to be congenial, many widows have interpreted my friendliness as a signal for help. They insist on "rescuing me from my misery." The worst offenders are the minister and his wife, and a few social workers who are determined to put a woman in my kitchen.

If you will be good enough to print my letter, I'm sure it would help. Thank you. — Alone But Not Lonely

Dear Not Lonely: Why are you so defensive? No one can drag you where you don't want to go. Nor can people inflict themselves on you if you prefer to be alone. You've got high class worries, Dad. Kwitcherbeefin.

CONFIDENTIAL to Rudderless: Leo Rosten said it best. "The purpose of life is to matter — to count, to stand for something." From your letter, I get the strong impression that you need a cause. Look around you. There is plenty of work to be done.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious—lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Beyond The Call For Courage

You read a lot of stories in the newspaper about courage and valor, but there is none that touched me so much as the item about Hazel Hadwick of Sacramento.

One day last month Hazel was wearing her whiter-than-white new coat when a gunman walked into a bar and ordered all the customers to "lie on the floor."

Hazel pulled herself up and said, "No way will I get down on the floor in my new white coat."

The gunman, face to face with obstinance, backed down and said, "All right then, put your hands on the bar."

Any fool knows even a loaded gun is no match for a woman in a white coat. I owned one in my lifetime and it changed my entire personality. I have never felt so protective about anything in my life. And with good reason.

The moment I slip it on, birds drop do-do's from the trees, dogs catch a bus just to jump up on me, small children with sticky hands clutch at me, chairs that look harmlessly sterile secrete cranberries, car doors spritz me with grease, waitresses go out of their way to dump coffee down my back and my own son even spit up on me. (And he's 15.)

One day I was late for dinner and my husband asked, "Where have you been?"

"Down at the dry cleaners visiting my white coat," I said.

"I don't understand it. What's so great about having a white coat?"

"A white coat gives you respect," I explained patiently. "Grace Kelly wears a white coat. Queen Elizabeth wears a white coat. So does Jackie Onassis."

"And so does the man who is coming Tuesday to put you in a home."

"I knew you wouldn't understand. A white coat in a woman's life is like reaching a plateau. It announces, 'Hey, world, I've finally got all the openings in my children under control.' It says, 'You're looking at a woman who has nothing to do all day but look for a clean chair.' It shouts, 'I am woman, here me roar. I am invulnerable to spots and stains.'"

"So how come you wear a plastic bag over your coat when you wear it?"

"Look, don't fool around. There's a lot of Hazel Hadwick in me."

West started out as above, but when he ruffed the third club Reese played the queen, not the nine.

Dr. Lester Coleman

A 75-year-old woman complained to her doctor that she was not able to hear as well as she used to.

After examination, the doctor said, "You must accept the fact that you are not getting younger." Her whimsical reply was, "Getting younger, doctor, doesn't concern me. I just want to continue to grow older."

Therein lies the hope of many of the elderly. They want to continue to grow older, with dignity and with the constant serenity that comes with being loved.

The added years of health that now are given to the elderly by the remarkable accomplishments in modern medicine must be accompanied by the positive assurance that they are loved, wanted and respected.

Their past experience and accumulated wisdom should not be overlooked. When they are invited to contribute to family and community affairs, even in a small way, their personal pride will reflect well in all their relationships.

Only in this way will they not feel rejected, abandoned and discarded by society and their family. To be "just tolerated" is not sufficiently sustaining for any human being. Additional years of life without added quality of life may become a burden to the elderly rather than a gift.

This is an age of medical progress and scientific promise unmatched in the history of man. But not until our social growth matches that scientific progress can modern society really feel that the extension of life is a joyous goal.

Far too many of the elderly run a race against time. They pray that their meager savings will not be exhausted before they die, so that they will not be a burden to their family, their community and, chiefly, to themselves.

Only with concentrated planning can the elderly be given the gift of enriched living. Adequate housing in projects specifically created to meet their physical and emotional needs is essential. Protective insurance can free the aged of their terror at the cost of illness. Their leisure time must be filled with pleasurable activities and constructive programs.

Pride in our societal accomplishments cannot be justified until the physical, the social and the psychological needs of the elderly are completely fulfilled.

Only with concentrated planning can the elderly be given the gift of enriched living. Adequate housing in projects specifically created to meet their physical and emotional needs is essential. Protective insurance can free the aged of their terror at the cost of illness. Their leisure time must be filled with pleasurable activities and constructive programs.

Pride in our societal accomplishments cannot be justified until the physical, the social and the psychological needs of the elderly are completely fulfilled.

Jackie Flies To Paris With Her Children

ATHENS (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis flew to Paris today within 24 hours of the burial of her husband Aristotle Onassis on his private island in the Ionian Sea.

Before leaving Scorpios Island, Mrs. Onassis and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Jr. paid an early morning visit to Onassis' grave in a wing of the tiny island chapel of the Virgin Mary. Then they boarded a private jet with her two children, 14-year-old John F. Kennedy Jr. and 17-year-old Caroline, and flew to Athens.

Onassis died in Paris last Saturday at age 69. Mrs. Onassis came from New York on Sunday and accompanied his body to Scorpios, the Onassis-owned island off the west coast of Greece, on Tuesday. Her children flew from New York to Greece on Monday.

Christina Onassis, the late shipping magnate's 24-year old daughter and principal heir, left the island with her companion, Petros Goulandris, son of another rich Greek shipping family.

They boarded a chartered Olympic Airways 727 jet that, family sources said, would drop friends in Nice, Paris and Geneva, before flying the couple onto the Bahamas for a rest.

Onassis' only son, Alexander, died in January 1973 at age 24 of injuries received in the crash of a family plane. He is also buried on Scorpios.

Paw Paw Board Mulls Amount

Tax Levy Decision Delayed

PAW PAW — Paw Paw school board has postponed until April a decision on the size of a property tax levy to be sought in the June 9 annual school election. A 17.5 mill levy expired with the last tax collection.

The expired levy raised about $630,000 toward the district's $2.8 million budget. It was part of a total school tax rate of 29.58, including 3.5 mills for debt repayment.

In other areas, the board, in a split vote, approved the appropriation of $40,000 to remodel the Michigan avenue school auditorium.

The funds, according to Reynold Oas, building and grounds chairman, would be used to re-roof, re-paint, and re-plaster the auditorium, as well as to upholster 500 of the 800 seats, and install some new electrical wiring.

He stressed that the project was only a "touch-up job", and not the complete refurbishing he has advocated at past meetings.

The vote to approve the remodeling was 4-2, with Oas, and board members Douglas Howe, Robert Teske, and Harold Price in favor, and Mrs. Betty Rasmussen and Mrs. Gloria Jean Berry against.

Both Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Rasmussen said that they were against the idea of voting the $40,000 as a lump sum ceiling, without individual breakdowns for each area to be remodeled.

Board members approved a $4,500 appropriation to make a number of changes at the Michigan avenue school to make it usable by physically handicapped students. The changes will make it possible for all physically handicapped children to attend classes on the first floor of the two story building and will involve some changes in the building's use.

Included in the appropriation are $1,000 to $1,500 for an additional teacher aide, $2,500 for additional science equipment, $1,000 for sinks in two art classrooms, and about $75 for acoustic installations in the vocal music room.

The board appointed Teske as its representative in the election of a new intermediate school board district member June 2.

New U.S. Citizens Understood

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The 35 persons who became naturalized citizens in U.S. District Court here this week got the right message. However, it was signed by the wrong president.

Each received a letter of congratulations signed by President Richard M. Nixon.

"I mistakenly gave out the Nixon letters. Those letters were just lying around in a drawer and I distributed them without taking a look. So it was a mistake. The people understood," said Clifford Schaeffer, an examiner in the regional Philadelphia office.

The letters they were supposed to get contain the same wording but are signed by President Ford, he said.

PSC Chief Went Too Far, Attorney General Rules

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state attorney general said Tuesday that powerful state Public Service Commission Chairman William Rosenberg may have overstepped his authority in hiring and other practices.

An opinion issued by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said state law does not invest any greater power in the commission chairman than the other two members of the commission.

In a letter from his boss two years ago, chairman Rosenberg was granted sole discretion to administer all PSC staff activities and expenditures. Kelley said state Commerce Department Director Richard Helmbrecht is not permitted under state law to transfer such authority to an individual commissioner.

The lone Democrat on the commission, William Ralls, requested the opinion when it became apparent he was not being consulted on hiring and other commission-related matters.

After he took over the chairmanship, Rosenberg hired a director of policy William Whitbeck, and reorganized the commission staff.

Rosenberg also made the decision, without consulting Ralls, to hire Stanford Research Institute of Menlo Park, Calif. to investigate cost overruns at the Consumers Power Co. gas reforming plant in Marysville

"The intent of the legislature when it passed the act outlining our authority was that we should work together in a Democratic manner," said Ralls.

Commissioner Lenton Sculthorp generally votes with Rosenberg against Ralls, so Kelley's opinion is not likely to alter the outcome of hiring and other PSC matters.

Rosenberg and Sculthorp are Republicans. Ralls and Kelley are Democrats.

Ralls said the opinion will lead to better communciation between the commissioners.

Rosenberg was in New York and unavailable for comment. Because Rosenberg has already carried out the reorganization and hired his own employes, the opinion is largely mute.

Ann Arbor Man Asks Hearing

PAW PAW — Robert Carl Marr, 44, Ann Arbor, demanded preliminary examination on charges of kidnaping, assault with intent to commit murder and gross indecency when arraigned yesterday in Seventh district court.

The preliminary examination was scheduled for March 25 and Marr held in the Van Buren county jail in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Marr was arrested by state police at Paw Paw following an accident near Mattawan in which he and a 17-year-old Romulus girl were injured. Both were treated and released for injuries at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, according to police.

The girl told police that she was hitchhiking and that a man picked her up and drove her to a spot near 27th street in Almena township where he attempted to assault her.

At one point the man got out of the car, and the woman told police she was able to lock all the doors and began to drive away. The man jumped on the hood of the vehicle, causing the woman to lose control of the car, running it into a ditch and rolling it over, police said.

In another case, David Richard Moore, 50, of 6 East Main street, Hartford, demanded preliminary examination on a charge of receiving stolen property. Preliminary examination was scheduled for March 29 and bond set at $2,000.

Moore was arrested by Hartford police Monday after a man allegedly tried to cash a social security check for $1,164 at a Hartford hotel. Police said the chek belonged to George Perry of Hartford.

Firm Claims Dentist Owes On Equipment

A Delaware firm has filed suit in Berrien circuit court against a Berrien Springs dentist, claiming he owes more than $24,000 on dental equipment rented from the company.

The defendant in the suit was identified as Dr. Junius B. Johnson, whose office is located at 753 North Main street, Berrien Springs.

The plaintiff, Litton Industries Credit Corp., claims Dr. Johnson in April, 1972, agreed to lease equipment from Litton Medical Products, Inc., Dental divison, with monthly payments of $626. The suit claims Dr. Johnson is now in default since he failed to make a number of monthly payments.

The suit says $24,369 is currently owed.

State Taxpayers Pick Up Tab

Inspection Trips Defended

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State Treasurer Allison Green mixes business with vacation at taxpayer expense by driving his state-owned car on several trips a year to the West Coast and the South.

State records show Green drove his state-provided 1973 Mercury on three such trips last year at a cost to taxpayers of more than $900 for food and lodging.

All three excursions were made to inspect properties held by state pension funds in spots such as California, Arizona, Florida and Kentucky, Green's vouchers say.

"You think I should fly and rent a car?" asked Green, who said he has half a dozen subordinates who also make property inspection tours for state-controlled pension funds.

Green, an appointee of Gov. William Milliken, defended his trips and said he has been making "one or two a year" every year for the past nine years. He is an ex-legislator.

Travel vouchers Green filed with the state are clearly marked in several spaces for "free days." Green said these are "vacation time or whatever you want to call them" for which the state finances transportation in his state-owned car but does not pay for food and lodging.

Green asserted he actually saved the state money when he drove to San Bernardino in southern California by way of Arizona, Texas and Oklahoma for three weeks last September to examine far-flung mortgaged properties. He did not charge for lodging while staying with relatives on the West Coast for two days. He did, however, charge the state $12 a day for meals.

"I don't think I ought to change my policy," Green said Tuesday. "I do a lot of driving and a lot of work on these trips. I visited 24 properties in two weeks on one of those trips. If you want to make something out of that, go ahead. If I want to go somewhere for the state and take a couple of extra days off at my own expense, that's nobody's business."

He said his wife usually goes with him on the trips, but her expenses are not charged to the state.

Green said he and his aides go "all over the country" on their tours of mortgaged pension fund properties.

Green's itinerary last year took him to Bowling Green, Ky.; Ocala, Fla.; Georgia and South Carolina for $237 from March 27 to April 9; to Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Phoenix and Tuscon, Ariz., California and back home by way of Utah and Wyoming, for $470 from Sept. 23 to Oct. 14; and to Alabama, Louisiana and Tennessee for $209 from Nov. 15 to 22.

Aliotos Making New Try

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After three weeks of being "star boarder" at his daughter's home, Mayor Joseph Alioto has returned to his wife Angelina for another try at their 33-year-long marriage.

"I'm living at Presidio Terrace. Mrs. Alioto and I are living there," the mayor said Tuesday after word of the reunion got out. "I stopped being star boarder at my daughter's home."

Alioto had been staying at his daughter and son-in-law's home since Mrs. Alioto filed for divorce Feb. 26.

The mayor appeared pleased to be back in his own home, but said he would miss his daughter's cooking.

Dad Pays Part Of Arrearage

A Niles father owing $438 in back child support for one child on ADC paid off nearly half of the arrearage this week in Berrien circuit court.

George Westfield, Berrien friend of the court, reported that Thomas W. Baker, of 902 Michigan street, Niles, paid $200 towards arrears of $438 when taken before Judge Ronald Lange for a show cause hearing to see why Baker was behind in support payments.

Lange did not hold Baker in contempt of court, as is usually the case when an ADC father is brought to court, but did order that Baker continue to pay $14 weekly child support from unemployment compensation Baker is receiving.

Kissinger Takes Side Trip For Visit With King Faisal

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger interrupted his negotiations with Israeli and Egyptian leaders today for a courtesy call on King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

The secretary of state flew to Riyadh after a 90-minute meeting with Premier Yitzhak Rabin and his negotiating team. The semi-official Israeli state radio reported that the premier then called a cabinet meeting to report on the latest developments.

Kissinger was expected to return to Jerusalem tonight.

With his latest round of shuttle diplomacy in its 14th day, Kissinger told newsmen his talks were going "very well." But public statements from both Israel and Egypt have shown no movement toward a compromise on basic issues in dispute.

Public statements from both sides have shown little movement toward a compromise on basic issues.

Egypt has adamantly refused to make a declaration of nonbelligerency except as part of a final Middle East settlement. The Israelis have refused to give up the Mitla and Gidi passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields unless they receive this peace pledge.

Kissinger, who shuttled from Aswan, Egypt, to Jerusalem Tuesday, acknowledged to newsmen: "There are substantial areas of disagreement."

"The gap has been narrowed, but it always remains to be seen whether it can be finally closed," he said.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who has consistently expressed optimism about the outcome of the negotiations, told newsmen after a 90-minute meeting with Kissinger: "There is a possibility we may not reach an agreement. I have the impression it is a very hard, difficult, complex round."

He added that the "core of the problem" remains the Palestinians, with whom Israel has refused to negotiate.

Defense Minister Shimon Peres, regarded as a hawk in the Israeli cabinet, told a meeting of the Hebrew University board of governors that Israel demands "a positive change" in Egypt's attitude toward the Jewish nations.

Fire Hits Highland School

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — A fire caused extensive damage to the boys gymnasium at Highland Park High School and Junior College on Tuesday night. Today's classes were cancelled.

The three-story gynasium, built in 1914, was almost destroyed by the blaze. The roof caved in and firemen fought the blaze in waist-deep water.

The fire was brought under control at 11 p.m., 3½ hours after it broke out. The cause was under investigation.

In addition to the loss of the gym, fire officials said buildings housing the high school and junior college suffered smoke and water damage.

A maintenance superintendent, Howard L. Drews, 57, was treated at the scene for smoke inhalation suffered while trying to warn people at evening classes to evacuate.

The fire was brought under control at 11 p.m., 3½ hours after it broke out. The cause was under investigation.

In addition to the loss of the gym, fire officials said buildings housing the high school and junior college suffered smoke and water damage.

U.S. Salvages Russian Sub

reported on the Mutual Broadcasting System Tuesday night a similar version of the attempt to retrieve the Russian sub intact. It went down after a series of explosions.

The CIA made efforts to have accounts of the operatio- withheld.

There was no immediate Soviet reaction to the stories, and it was not known what impact the operation might have on Washington-Moscow relations.

In general, this is what the three newspapers and Anderson reported:

The United States initiated the highly secret salvage operation only after determining that the Soviet Union had not fixed the location of the sunken submersible, even after an extensive search monitored by the U.S. Navy.

The Navy apparently had determined the exact location through detection of the sound of underwater explosions, although not in time to rescue any of the Soviet crewmen.

Hughes was approached as a cover for the "Project Jennifer" operation because of his penchant for secrecy, his known interest in marine mining and his patriotism.

The government financed the construction by Hughes' Summa Corp. of a 618-foot recovery vessel named the Glomar Explorer. It was equipped with a huge claw which could be lowered to the sea bottom, grasp the submarine and bring it to the surface.

Also constructed was a huge covered barge that could be used to bring the recovered submarine to port, safe from the prying cameras of Soviet spy satellites.

Hughes officials had maintained that the Glomar Explorer was designed exclusively to pluck minerals from the floor of the sea.

The effort to raise the Hotel class Soviet sub started on July 4, 1974. Crewmen from a Soviet trawler who were monitoring a Russian spacecraft were within eyesight at the time.

The arrests were made by four Metro officers at 6:10 p.m. at a rest area on M-140 south of Carmody road, Bainbridge township.

Girl Scouts Offer Refund On Cookies

Persons who have boxes of Code 5034 mint Girl Scout cookies can have those boxes replaced or their money refunded, according to Gerald B. Streb, executive director of the Girl Scouts of the Singing Sands Council.

The Singing Sands Council includes Girl Scout troops in the South Bend and southwestern Michigan area, including Benton Harbor.

Girl Scout councils in eight states are being warned not to sell boxes of mint cookies from the 5034 batch in which two slivers of glass were found in separate cookies, the Food and Drug Administration said.

Eleven Girl Scout councils in several states including the combined council (Singing Sands) for South Bend and Benton Harbor received 5034 cookies.

Streb said this morning that he had not received word of any cookies sold in the South Bend or Benton Harbor area having glass in them.

He said, "90 per cent of the 5034 cookies were sold in Ohio." Streb said that he had received many calls of concern asking about the cookies.

The FDA said Tuesday the warning not to sell any more 5034 cookies was issued by the Quaker Oats Co., which made the cookies. However the FDA said that "on the basis of the information available at this time the FDA has not requested and the company has not initiated a formal recall."

Company spokesman Michael Ross said 5,000 cookies tested by the manufacturer, Burry Biscuit division of Quaker Oats, have shown no signs of glass, but some small pieces of styrene packing material were found in some cookies.

The first glass sliver was found by a buyer in Ohio. Another sliver was discovered by the Ohio Agriculture Department's foods, dairies and drugs division.

The FDA said Quaker Oats is advising Girl Scout councils to hold until further notice any "Girl Scout Thin Mint Cookies" bearing code number 5034. The FDA said 5,527 cases of code 5034 cookies were manufactured in January and most of them believed to have been distributed.

Admiral Awaits Visit By Daughter

his daughter, said Victoria may leave her country as early as Friday and stay in the United States for three months.

"On Thursday, they give her the visa," said Dr. Kirk, an associate professor of Russian and comparative literature who spoke with Victoria's mother by telephone Tuesday. "She's very, very worried that her father is ill, so she's not going to sit around and wait."

Meanwhile, Tate said he doesn't expect any last-minute snags.

"I haven't been in contact with the State Department," Tate said. "She will have to get a permit from the State Department to get an entry visa, but I don't think there will be any difficulty."

He said he is irked at some printed reports that Victoria will be offered a movie contract in this country.

"Victoria will be on a visitor's visa and couldn't work here if she wanted to," he said. "And she doesn't speak English."

Hearing Reveals Circumstances Of Van Buren Murder

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A statement accepted by Seventh district court here yesterday outlined a motive and grim details of the knife slaying of a Kalamazoo woman whose nude, knife-punctured body was found on Dead Man's hill in Van Buren county's Porter township March 6.

The statement was from one of five people charged with murder in the death of Sarah Towne, 28.

Judge William C. Buhl accepted the statement made by Carle Cordell Vaughn, to Lt. Donald Hogmire of the Van Buren sheriff's department during a preliminary hearing for three of the five.

In the statement, Vaughn said four of the five were "mad" at Miss Towne for various reasons and that they picked her up in Kalamazoo the afternoon she was slain.

According to the statement, Vaughn said they forced Miss Towne to lie in an icy pond and that he had grabbed her by the hair. "...the next thing I knew my arm just came across her throat, then she started to bleed."

"She started to cry, 'I'm not dead yet, kill me, kill me,' " Vaughn was quoted as saying in his statement.

Vaughn added that he started to leave, but that Miss Towne "begged him" to kill her, and that he stabbed her again.

Vaughn, 20, Joseph Lee Cosby, 19, and Marilyn Cook, 17, all of Kalamazoo, all appeared for the preliminary hearing and were ordered held for circuit court for trial. Vaughn was ordered held without bond while bond on Cosby was set at $35,000 and $25,000 on Miss Cook.

The other two charged are Sandra K. Strickler, 21, Kalamazoo and Jarius Cook, 15, brother of Marilyn Cook. Prosecutor Frank Willis is seeking to have Jarius Cook waived into adult court for trial.

In his statement Vaughn said that he, Miss Strickler, Cosby, and Jerry (Jarius) and Marilyn Cook were together at the slaying site.

Vaughn said in his statement that Miss Strickler said she would kill herself unless he (Vaughn) slit Miss Towne's throat.

According to Vaughn's statement, "Sandy (Miss Strickler) was mad because Sarah had made a threat to put her back into the hospital and also to slit her throat. Marilyn (Miss Cook) was mad because she had tried to get us kicked out of the apartment, Jerry (Jarius Cook) was mad because Sarah had broke up he and his girl, and I was mad because we were getting kicked out of the apartment. Joe (Cosby) was the only person not mad at Sarah."

Det. Robert Leeds of the Kalamazoo city police testified that Cosby told him he had observed Miss Towne stripping at the murder site, and had seen the others hitting and kicking her. Leeds said that Cosby stated that he had to hold Miss Cook up because she was becoming ill.

Cosby, according to Leeds, said that he saw Vaughn slit Miss Towne's throat, and that Vaughn later went back because he was afraid Miss Towne "might be able to make it back to the road."

Two Tax Abatement Decisions Delayed

8. This was approved.

A few citizens questioned the community development program. One, James Nettleton, felt objectives were good, but results are doubtful, unless an entire region, not just a township, is involved. Nettleton is a former Benton Harbor school board member, but said he was speaking only for himself last night.

Nettleton said Benton Harbor and Benton township have been generous with social support to the poor. He said this produced an influx of poor from Chicago, Gary, Ind., and other areas. Nettleton claimed that the incoming poor were "deflected" by white communities, such as St. Joseph and Coloma, and settled in the Benton area.

Nettleton feared that new housing units planned for the township would only draw in more poor people, mostly blacks, and add to ghettos. He was told the new housing would be for existing township people, now in derelict housing.

In general business, the board, named Barger Engineering, St. Joseph, to design a $149,000 storm sewer system, to cover about a half-mile along Chicago avenue, Chestnut and Pine streets.

Girl Scouts Offer Refund On Cookies

Persons who have boxes of Code 5034 mint Girl Scout cookies can have those boxes replaced or their money refunded, according to Gerald B. Streb, executive director of the Girl Scouts of the Singing Sands Council.

The Singing Sands Council includes Girl Scout troops in the South Bend and southwestern Michigan area, including Benton Harbor.

Girl Scout councils in eight states are being warned not to sell boxes of mint cookies from the 5034 batch in which two slivers of glass were found in separate cookies, the Food and Drug Administration said.

Eleven Girl Scout councils in several states including the combined council (Singing Sands) for South Bend and Benton Harbor received 5034 cookies.

Streb said this morning that he had not received word of any cookies sold in the South Bend or Benton Harbor area having glass in them.

He said, "90 per cent of the 5034 cookies were sold in Ohio." Streb said that he had received many calls of concern asking about the cookies.

The FDA said Tuesday the warning not to sell any more 5034 cookies was issued by the Quaker Oats Co., which made the cookies. However the FDA said that "on the basis of the information available at this time the FDA has not requested and the company has not initiated a formal recall."

Company spokesman Michael Ross said 5,000 cookies tested by the manufacturer, Burry Biscuit division of Quaker Oats, have shown no signs of glass, but some small pieces of styrene packing material were found in some cookies.

The first glass sliver was found by a buyer in Ohio. Another sliver was discovered by the Ohio Agriculture Department's foods, dairies and drugs division.

The FDA said Quaker Oats is advising Girl Scout councils to hold until further notice any "Girl Scout Thin Mint Cookies" bearing code number 5034. The FDA said 5,527 cases of code 5034 cookies were manufactured in January and most of them believed to have been distributed.

Admiral Awaits Visit By Daughter

his daughter, said Victoria may leave her country as early as Friday and stay in the United States for three months.

"On Thursday, they give her the visa," said Dr. Kirk, an associate professor of Russian and comparative literature who spoke with Victoria's mother by telephone Tuesday. "She's very, very worried that her father is ill, so she's not going to sit around and wait."

Meanwhile, Tate said he doesn't expect any last-minute snags.

"I haven't been in contact with the State Department," Tate said. "She will have to get a permit from the State Department to get an entry visa, but I don't think there will be any difficulty."

He said he is irked at some printed reports that Victoria will be offered a movie contract in this country.

"Victoria will be on a visitor's visa and couldn't work here if she wanted to," he said. "And she doesn't speak English."

Hearing Reveals Circumstances Of Van Buren Murder

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A statement accepted by Seventh district court here yesterday outlined a motive and grim details of the knife slaying of a Kalamazoo woman whose nude, knife-punctured body was found on Dead Man's hill in Van Buren county's Porter township March 6.

The statement was from one of five people charged with murder in the death of Sarah Towne, 28.

Judge William C. Buhl accepted the statement made by Carle Cordell Vaughn, to Lt. Donald Hogmire of the Van Buren sheriff's department during a preliminary hearing for three of the five.

In the statement, Vaughn said four of the five were "mad" at Miss Towne for various reasons and that they picked her up in Kalamazoo the afternoon she was slain.

According to the statement, Vaughn said they forced Miss Towne to lie in an icy pond and that he had grabbed her by the hair. "...the next thing I knew my arm just came across her throat, then she started to bleed."

"She started to cry, 'I'm not dead yet, kill me, kill me,' " Vaughn was quoted as saying in his statement.

Vaughn added that he started to leave, but that Miss Towne "begged him" to kill her, and that he stabbed her again.

Vaughn, 20, Joseph Lee Cosby, 19, and Marilyn Cook, 17, all of Kalamazoo, all appeared for the preliminary hearing and were ordered held for circuit court for trial. Vaughn was ordered held without bond while bond on Cosby was set at $35,000 and $25,000 on Miss Cook.

The other two charged are Sandra K. Strickler, 21, Kalamazoo and Jarius Cook, 15, brother of Marilyn Cook. Prosecutor Frank Willis is seeking to have Jarius Cook waived into adult court for trial.

In his statement Vaughn said that he, Miss Strickler, Cosby, and Jerry (Jarius) and Marilyn Cook were together at the slaying site.

Vaughn said in his statement that Miss Strickler said she would kill herself unless he (Vaughn) slit Miss Towne's throat.

According to Vaughn's statement, "Sandy (Miss Strickler) was mad because Sarah had made a threat to put her back into the hospital and also to slit her throat. Marilyn (Miss Cook) was mad because she had tried to get us kicked out of the apartment, Jerry (Jarius Cook) was mad because Sarah had broke up he and his girl, and I was mad because we were getting kicked out of the apartment. Joe (Cosby) was the only person not mad at Sarah."

Det. Robert Leeds of the Kalamazoo city police testified that Cosby told him he had observed Miss Towne stripping at the murder site, and had seen the others hitting and kicking her. Leeds said that Cosby stated that he had to hold Miss Cook up because she was becoming ill.

Cosby, according to Leeds, said that he saw Vaughn slit Miss Towne's throat, and that Vaughn later went back because he was afraid Miss Towne "might be able to make it back to the road."

Two Tax Abatement Decisions Delayed

8. This was approved.

A few citizens questioned the community development program. One, James Nettleton, felt objectives were good, but results are doubtful, unless an entire region, not just a township, is involved. Nettleton is a former Benton Harbor school board member, but said he was speaking only for himself last night.

Nettleton said Benton Harbor and Benton township have been generous with social support to the poor. He said this produced an influx of poor from Chicago, Gary, Ind., and other areas. Nettleton claimed that the incoming poor were "deflected" by white communities, such as St. Joseph and Coloma, and settled in the Benton area.

Nettleton feared that new housing units planned for the township would only draw in more poor people, mostly blacks, and add to ghettos. He was told the new housing would be for existing township people, now in derelict housing.

In general business, the board, named Barger Engineering, St. Joseph, to design a $149,000 storm sewer system, to cover about a half-mile along Chicago avenue, Chestnut and Pine streets.

U.S. Salvages Russian Sub

reported on the Mutual Broadcasting System Tuesday night a similar version of the attempt to retrieve the Russian sub intact. It went down after a series of explosions.

The CIA made efforts to have accounts of the operatio- withheld.

There was no immediate Soviet reaction to the stories, and it was not known what impact the operation might have on Washington-Moscow relations.

In general, this is what the three newspapers and Anderson reported:

The United States initiated the highly secret salvage operation only after determining that the Soviet Union had not fixed the location of the sunken submersible, even after an extensive search monitored by the U.S. Navy.

The Navy apparently had determined the exact location through detection of the sound of underwater explosions, although not in time to rescue any of the Soviet crewmen.

Hughes was approached as a cover for the "Project Jennifer" operation because of his penchant for secrecy, his known interest in marine mining and his patriotism.

The government financed the construction by Hughes' Summa Corp. of a 618-foot recovery vessel named the Glomar Explorer. It was equipped with a huge claw which could be lowered to the sea bottom, grasp the submarine and bring it to the surface.

Also constructed was a huge covered barge that could be used to bring the recovered submarine to port, safe from the prying cameras of Soviet spy satellites.

Hughes officials had maintained that the Glomar Explorer was designed exclusively to pluck minerals from the floor of the sea.

Nurse And Teacher Are Arrested

Booked and lodged at the county jail were David Sanford Mackie, 32, of 3005 Lake Shore drive, Apartment 211, St. Joseph; and Jack Harold Warner, 46, of Route 3, Twin Lakes, Dowagiac.

Mackie, a registered nurse, has been director of nursing at Memorial hospital, but hospital officials said he resigned yesterday. Warner is a special education teacher at Decatur elementary school.

The arrests were made by four Metro officers at 6:10 p.m. at a rest area on M-140 south of Carmody road, Bainbridge township.

Kung Fu Isn't Something For Playtime Games

DETROIT (AP) — Playful use of kung fu is landing scores of youngsters in hospital emergency rooms with an assortment of fractures, cuts and bruises.

Many of the injuries occur in the schools, and educators blame them on romanticization of the oriental kicking art in a hit record, popular dance and the ABC television show, "Kung Fu."

"We've been fighting this kung fu since the TV show came on," says Emmit Polk, acting principal at Detroit's Keating Elementary School. "They're kicking in the face, in the mouth, in the groin...we've got bloody, bloody noses."

Recently a fifth grader in Detroit lost several teeth after receiving a flying kick in the mouth. An elementary school student was suspended for persistent kicking attacks on classmates that caused rib and stomach injuries. And two teachers were kicked in the back while trying to remove a group of non-students from a school building.

A spokesman at St. John Hospital reports a rash of injuries involving use of kung fu "without knowing what they were doing."

Authorities believe the problem is not with those trained in kung fu, but with youths who are aping what they see the ABC televisinn character Caine do every week.

"There has been a noticeable increase in the last year or so as children became adicted to this program," says Dr. Florence Jacque, a regional superintendent."

Adds Dr. Arthur Jefferson, another regional school superintendent in Detroit: "There's no question. These kids are impressed by what they see on TV. They create problems for themselves with this kung fu."

"I watched (the kids) today," said John Burns, an assistant superintendent. "They're pretty good at it. They do it in the stairwell, jump up, kick sideways. It's mostly all the time in fun, but it leads to other things."

Cancer-Causing Agents Still Turning Up

NEW YORK (AP) — From the chimney sweeps of old London to the vinyl chloride workers of today, man has been finding that things in his environment cause cancer.

The most recent suggestion of a cancer-causing agent in wide use came this week with reports that ordinary hair dyes might be carcinogenic, cancer-causing, or mutagenic, causing birth defects. The cosmetic industry strongly rejected the suggestion.

It was in 1775 when the first finding of an environmental carcinogen was made, by the famous English surgeon, Dr. Percival Potts. He discovered that chimney sweeps were susceptible to cancer caused by the soot.

The American Cancer Society has said there may be scores of unknown, hidden cancer-causing agents in the environment. And there is the obvious, and well-known agent, the cigarette, it says.

"But for each such obvious carcinogen, we suspect that there are in our environment scores of unknown, hidden carcinogens, whose action is so subtle as to avoid detection in this manner," it added.

During the past 50 years, a wide range of occupation-related cancers have been recognized: bladder cancer in rubber and aniline dye workers; lung cancer among men working with uranium ore, nitrogen mustard and chromate and nickel dust; and nasal-sinus cancer among woodworkers. Most recently, a rare liver cancer has been found among workers handling the plastic substance vinyl chloride.

One example is asbestos, linked first to lung cancer in insulation workers who smoke, then further linked to cancers of the esophagus, stomach, colon and rectum.

In 1964 and 1965, Dr. Irving J. Selikoff of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine and Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond of the American Cancer Society unexpectedly found a moderate excess of gastrointestinal cancer among New York insulation workers.

The numbers of workers involved, however, was too small to permit firm conclusions at first, but the observation held up. A study of insulation workers in the United States and Canada, covering the period 1943 to 1971, found a substantial number of deaths over what was expected from those cancers, Selikoff and Hammond found. Similar findings have been made in Belfast insulation workers.

Selikoff has warned that there could be an "epidemic" of a once-rare cancer among the millions of men and women who were directly or indirectly exposed to asbestos while they worked in shipyards during World War II. The cancer is mesothelioma, a tumor of the lining of the chest or abdomen.

Scientists believe the mesothelioma is caused primarily by exposure to asbestos particles, which lodge in the tissues of the body and remain there indefinitely. And Selikoff has expressed concern about the exposure of the general urban population to asbestos from environmental sources such as asbestos-lined air conditioning ducts and brake linings.

Other scientists have raised questions about the possible cancer-causing activity of such things as food additives, but there is considerable disagreement on this subject.

One key argument is whether a substance which produces cancer in laboratory animals given large doses also would produce that effect in the low-dose, long-term situation involving a large population. Cyclamates were the subjects of such an argument.

The suggestion about hair dyes came from a study done by a biochemist at the University of California at Berkeley. He found that they produced genetic changes in bacteria. The industry countered that tests with animals have not shown any danger from the dyes.

An international conference on occupational carcinogenesis will be held in New York next week, sponsored by such organizations as the National Cancer Institute and the New York Academy of Sciences.

Among the agents to be discussed are vinyl chloride, asbestos, fibrous glass, anesthetics, arsenic. Also to be discussed are current investigation involving the rubber, copper smelting, steel, aluminum and nickel refining industries.

More Documents Disclosed

FBI Harassed Socialist Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI secretly interfered with political campaigns, promoted racial unrest and anonymously mailed abusive letters in a 10-year campaign to disrupt the Socialist Workers party, according to newly disclosed FBI documents.

Three thousand pages from the FBI files lay out the first detailed account of the counter-intelligence programs, known as COINTELPRO, launched by J. Edgar Hoover at various times in the 1950s and 1960s. Hoover terminated the formal COINTELPRO operations in April 1971.

Party officials and the Political Rights Defense Fund, which is supporting the party's $27million damage suit against the FBI, were making the documents public after winning a federal court order forcing the FBI to yield them. The party has accused the FBI of widespread violations of its constitutional rights.

Since it was formed in the 1930s, the party regularly has fielded candidates for local and national office, usually picking up only a tiny percentage of the vote. The party consistently advocates peaceful political activity, according to an official of the Defense Fund, a private New York group not otherwise connected to the party.

The documents show that the FBI mailed numerous anonymous letters designed to damage personal and political reputations of party members.

For example, a 1964 memo described a letter mailed to the editor of the Morning Call, a Paterson, N.J., newspaper, about one of its staff writers, Murray Zuckoff, who had been active in the party.

"You apparently don't know Zuckoff or what he stands for. It is inconceivable that such a person would find employment on a legitimate newspaper such as the 'Morning Call'," said the letter, signed "a reader."

A Defense Fund official said Zuckoff subsequently dropped out of politics to keep his job.

A 1965 memo authorized the Denver FBI office to mail an anonymous letter in an effort to sabotage the campaign of Allen Taplin, a local party organizer.

"Bureau approval is requested for the Denver office to mail the following anonymous letter attributed to 'a concerned mother,' to the president of the Denver school board in an effort to prevent Taplin from being elected to the school board," the Denver FBI office wrote.

The spurious letter said: "Being a conscientious voter and mother of school-age children, I feel that someone should do something to prevent a person of this sort from being elected."

The memo approving the letter reminded the Denver agents, "Use commercially purchased stationery for this mailing and take the usual precautions to insure it cannot be associated with the FBI." Taplin was defeated.

New Red Troop Buildup Threatens South Vietnam

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Another big North Vietnamese troop buildup was reported in South Vietnam's northern provinces today, and thousands of frightened civilians fled southward from the cities of Hue and Quang Tri.

Government officials said as many as 100,000 refugees were streaming down Highway 1 toward Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city.

Foreign relief workers said about 100,000 refugees had collected in Hue, the former imperial capital 50 miles north of Da Nang. They fled from fighting in Quang Tri province, just below the North Vietnamese border.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the government's chief military spokesman, said there are five North Vietnamese divisions, or about 30,000 troops, in the northern part of the country. He said 80 per cent of them are in the Quang Tri-Hue area, where there has been heavy fighting for more than two weeks.

Hien said Hue is threatened by at least two divisions, including one that moved into the region recently.

Meanwhile, officials of the South Vietnamese ministry of social welfare said they expect as many as 450,000 refugees from the three Central Highlands provinces of Pleiku, Kontum and Darlac which the government is abandoning to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

With the main highways to the coast cut, the swarm fleeing from the highlands stretched out from Pleiku southward along Highway 7B, heading for the coastal city of Tuy Hoa.

It appeared that most of them would not reach the safety of the coastal lowlands for three or four more days.

An exodus also was reported under way from Dalat, 140 miles northeast of Saigon in the lower central highlands. It is outside the three provinces the government is giving up, but its highway to Saigon has been cut by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks on Dinh Quan, a district capital 75 miles northeast of Saigon.

The government reported more Communist attacks on Dinh Quan as well as on Hoai Duc and Gia Ray, two other district capitals south of Dinh Quan.

Col. Hien said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong hit government positions at Dinh Quan with a 1,000-shell bombardment and were in control of most of the town. Nearly 200 shells were reported fired into Hoai Duc.

If Dinh Quan were taken, it would be the 18th district capital lost to the Communists since the cease-fire 25 months ago.

In Cambodia, about 1,000 militant university students held a four-hour rally on their campus in Phnom Penh urging the U.S. Congress to cut off aid to the Cambodian government and demanding that President Long Nol resign.

Kung Fu Isn't Something For Playtime Games

DETROIT (AP) — Playful use of kung fu is landing scores of youngsters in hospital emergency rooms with an assortment of fractures, cuts and bruises.

Many of the injuries occur in the schools, and educators blame them on romanticization of the oriental kicking art in a hit record, popular dance and the ABC television show, "Kung Fu."

"We've been fighting this kung fu since the TV show came on," says Emmit Polk, acting principal at Detroit's Keating Elementary School. "They're kicking in the face, in the mouth, in the groin...we've got bloody, bloody noses."

Recently a fifth grader in Detroit lost several teeth after receiving a flying kick in the mouth. An elementary school student was suspended for persistent kicking attacks on classmates that caused rib and stomach injuries. And two teachers were kicked in the back while trying to remove a group of non-students from a school building.

A spokesman at St. John Hospital reports a rash of injuries involving use of kung fu "without knowing what they were doing."

Authorities believe the problem is not with those trained in kung fu, but with youths who are aping what they see the ABC television character Caine do every week.

"There has been a noticeable increase in the last year or so as children became adicted to this program," says Dr. Florence Jacque, a regional superintendent."

Adds Dr. Arthur Jefferson, another regional school superintendent in Detroit: "There's no question. These kids are impressed by what they see on TV. They create problems for themselves with this kung fu."

"I watched (the kids) today," said John Burns, an assistant superintendent. "They're pretty good at it. They do it in the stairwell, jump up, kick sideways. It's mostly all the time in fun, but it leads to other things."

Cancer-Causing Agents Still Turning Up

NEW YORK (AP) — From the chimney sweeps of old London to the vinyl chloride workers of today, man has been finding that things in his environment cause cancer.

The most recent suggestion of a cancer-causing agent in wide use came this week with reports that ordinary hair dyes might be carcinogenic, cancer-causing, or mutagenic, causing birth defects. The cosmetic industry strongly rejected the suggestion.

It was in 1775 when the first finding of an environmental carcinogen was made, by the famous English surgeon, Dr. Percival Potts. He discovered that chimney sweeps were susceptible to cancer caused by the soot.

The American Cancer Society has said there may be scores of unknown, hidden cancer-causing agents in the environment. And there is the obvious, and well-known agent, the cigarette, it says.

"But for each such obvious carcinogen, we suspect that there are in our environment scores of unknown, hidden carcinogens, whose action is so subtle as to avoid detection in this manner," it added.

During the past 50 years, a wide range of occupation-related cancers have been recognized: bladder cancer in rubber and aniline dye workers; lung cancer among men working with uranium ore, nitrogen mustard and chromate and nickel dust; and nasal-sinus cancer among woodworkers. Most recently, a rare liver cancer has been found among workers handling the plastic substance vinyl chloride.

One example is asbestos, linked first to lung cancer in insulation workers who smoke, then further linked to cancers of the esophagus, stomach, colon and rectum.

In 1964 and 1965, Dr. Irving J. Selikoff of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine and Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond of the American Cancer Society unexpectedly found a moderate excess of gastrointestinal cancer among New York insulation workers.

The numbers of workers involved, however, was too small to permit firm conclusions at first, but the observation held up. A study of insulation workers in the United States and Canada, covering the period 1943 to 1971, found a substantial number of deaths over what was expected from those cancers, Selikoff and Hammond found. Similar findings have been made in Belfast insulation workers.

Selikoff has warned that there could be an "epidemic" of a once-rare cancer among the millions of men and women who were directly or indirectly exposed to asbestos while they worked in shipyards during World War II. The cancer is mesothelioma, a tumor of the lining of the chest or abdomen.

Scientists believe the mesothelioma is caused primarily by exposure to asbestos particles, which lodge in the tissues of the body and remain there indefinitely. And Selikoff has expressed concern about the exposure of the general urban population to asbestos from environmental sources such as asbestos-lined air conditioning ducts and brake linings.

Other scientists have raised questions about the possible cancer-causing activity of such things as food additives, but there is considerable disagreement on this subject.

One key argument is whether a substance which produces cancer in laboratory animals given large doses also would produce that effect in the low-dose, long-term situation involving a large population. Cyclamates were the subjects of such an argument.

The suggestion about hair dyes came from a study done by a biochemist at the University of California at Berkeley. He found that they produced genetic changes in bacteria. The industry countered that tests with animals have not shown any danger from the dyes.

An international conference on occupational carcinogenesis will be held in New York next week, sponsored by such organizations as the National Cancer Institute and the New York Academy of Sciences.

Among the agents to be discussed are vinyl chloride, asbestos, fibrous glass, anesthetics, arsenic. Also to be discussed are current investigation involving the rubber, copper smelting, steel, aluminum and nickel refining industries.

FBI Harassed Socialist Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI secretly interfered with political campaigns, promoted racial unrest and anonymously mailed abusive letters in a 10-year campaign to disrupt the Socialist Workers party, according to newly disclosed FBI documents.

The tactics even reached into the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America.

Three thousand pages from the FBI files lay out the first detailed account of the counter-intelligence programs, known as COINTELPRO, launched by J. Edgar Hoover at various times in the 1950s and 1960s. Hoover terminated the formal COINTELPRO operations in April 1971.

GM Pushes Convertible Car Step Closer To Grave

DETROIT (AP) — The American convertible — once the unmistakeable trademark of suave playboys, glamorous women and wild teenagers — takes another step toward the grave this fall.

General Motors, the last of the U.S. automakers to build the soft-top models, is halting convertible production at Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick and Oldsmobile at the end of the current model year.

That will leave Cadillac as the sole American convertible producer in 1976, and at a price range that is sure to discourage all but the most affluent. The 1975 Cadillac Eldorado soft-top starts at $10,400.

Foreign manufacturers, however, will still offer convertible models at lower prices. Company spokesmen said Tuesday the divisions are halting production because convertible sales have been dropping out of sight during the past 12 years. "It's a dying breed," said a Chevrolet spokesman.

If the trend continues at Cadillac, the last Eldorado with a top that can be lowered might be phased out by the end of next year, retiring for good a style that is as old as the industry itself.

American Motors dropped convertibles in 1968, Chrysler did the same in 1971 and Ford Motor Co. followed in 1973.

The convertible's popularity in modern times peaked in 1963, when 540,000 cars, or seven per cent of total sales, were sold in the nation.

But so far this model year, only about one-half of one per cent of GM's car sales are convertibles. Buick, which built 46,000 convertibles or 11 per cent of its total production in 1962, has sold only 2,211 so far this year, eight-tenths of one per cent of sales.

"Air conditioning killed us," a Buick official said. "People want air conditioning, and it doesn't make sense to order it in a convertible." GM says three-quarters of its 1974 cars were ordered with air conditioning.

The company also attributes the waning interest in soft tops to the growing popularity of vinyl roofs, which give cars a convertible appearance.

Other factors include federal safety regulations, which make it difficult for convertibles to comply with rollover-crash standards, increases in car theft, with fabric tops as easy points of entry; air and noise pollution, and the discomfort of high-speed freeway driving with the top down.

"We don't expect many complaints from customers about our dropping convertibles," said one GM spokesman, "except maybe from parade people. I don't know where they're going to get cars for their beauty queens to sit on."

Blues Object To Chief Of Hearings

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Blue Cross and Blue Shield say the man slated to preside over hearings on their rates is biased against them.

The non-profit insurers on Tuesday filed the charge against Kenneth DeShetler, former Ohio insurance commissioner, in a long list of objections to the Michigan Insurance Bureau's plans for the hearings.

DeShetler, who had many fights with the Blues in Ohio during his four years as commissioner there, denied having any preconceptions about the Michigan Blues.

Kenneth A. Tannenbaum, deputy director of the Insurance Bureau, said the bureau will not replace DeShetler.

"He took a hard stand against abuses and excesses by Blue Cross and Blue Shield. He specifically indicated that some of the them were excessive in their payments" to doctors and hospitals in Ohio, Tannenbaum said.

The Insurance Bureau has argued that the Blues could shave about $200 million off their expenses if they adopt policies to eliminate excessive payments, screen surgical patients to make sure operations are necessary and take steps to prevent conflicts of interest on their board of directors.

The Blues are seeking a $300 million rate hike and have objected to consideration of the cost-containment proposals in the rate hearings.

"We just don't think it's the proper arena to go into these very complicated subjects," said a spokesman for the Blues.

He said the Blues already have a policy to prevent conflicts of interest and to screen surgical patients.

The Blues are seeking an average 23.9 per cent rate hike affecting about five million Michigan residents.

High Court Extends '71 Ruling

Decision Curbs Federal Judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court decision curbs the power of federal judges to act on complaints by individuals that their rights are being violated under state laws.

Dissenting justices said the decision "turns the clock back."

The 6-3 ruling Tuesday was a followup to a controversial ruling in 1971 that federal courts may not interfere, except in extraordinary circumstances, with criminal cases which are pending in state courts.

What the court has done now is to say that in some circumstances the same rule applies to civil proceedings.

In other actions, the court:

—Struck down by a 6-3 vote a ban against a performance of the rock musical "Hair" in a municipal theater in Chattanooga, Tenn.

—Held that 35 states may continue to exclude unborn children from welfare benefits.

The ruling on the power of federal judges came in the case of an Ohio theater which was padlocked by local authorities for a year as a "nuisance" for showing films found to be obscene.

The theater owner filed suit in U.S. District Court and obtained a ruling from a three-judge panel that use of the nuisance law for such a purpose was an unconstitutional restraint on freedom of expression.

In setting aside this ruling, the Supreme Court observed through Justice William H. Rehnquist that the theater owner should have been required to appeal the nuisance abatement in state courts before having access to the federal court system, unless he could approve that there were extraordinary circumstances.

The justices sent the case back to the District Court level to determine whether such circumstances existed.

The 1971 ruling permits federal courts to intervene when they find state prosecutions are based on harassment or bad faith or where the law is "flagrantly and patently" unconstitutional.

Justice William J. Brennan, writing for the dissenters, said the decision was "only the first step" toward extending the rule enunciated for criminal cases to cover all civil proceedings.

Although a federal law passed in 1973 forbids federal injunctions in state cases, the Supreme Court repeatedly has allowed exceptions to this rule.

"Today's extension ... turns the clock back and portends once again the resuscitation of the literal command of the 1973 anti-injunction act," wrote Brennan.

Joining him in his dissent were Justices William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall.

In the welfare case, the court ruled 7 to 1 that "dependent children," as used in the federal Social Security Act, does not include the unborn.

The high court sent the case back to a lower federal court to determine whether denial of the benefits deprives unborn children of equal protection or due process of law.

The case arose out of a challenge by a group of pregnant women to Iowa's refusal to count fetuses in determining aid to families with dependent children.

Federal policy has been to leave it up to the states whether to do so. The court did not rule on the legality of this policy.

A spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare indicated no change in the policy was contemplated.

U.S. Lacking Long-Term Plan To Save Railroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is weighing several short-term solutions but has no long-term plan for saving the rail service provided by the financially ailing Rock Island line.

The government was left in this position after the apparent breakdown of a merger agreement involving the Rock Island. The Union Pacific, which has been attempting to merge with the Rock Island for more than 10 years, announced Tuesday it may no longer be interested in the deal.

A spokesman for the Union Pacific said its management would recommend to its board of directors on March 27 that the merger agreement with the Rock Island be terminated. The spokesman said the board was likely to approve that recommendation.

The announcement came one day after the Rock Island, or Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad as it is formally known, filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws and announced it would no longer accept cargo for shipment after March 31.

The Interstate Commerce Commission met Tuesday with various railroads in an attempt to work out a plan for maintaining rail service on Rock Island lines if the railroad shuts down its operations.

The government's long-range plans for saving rail service on the Rock Island were predicated on an early merger of the railroad with other, more profitable, carriers.

If the Union Pacific actually withdraws its merger request, it will mean that no railroad has ICC authority to merge with the Rock Island. The ICC approved the Union Pacific request, subject to numerous conditions, late last year after 10 years of deliberations.

The apparent Union Pacific withdrawal leaves the ICC with only two short-term alternatives for maintaining rail service to communities now served by the Rock Island

It can order other railroads to take over such rail service for up to 240 days, using Rock Island manpower and equipment, or it can ask other railroads to take over the service indefinitely, using their own manpower and equipment.

The first option would require that the ICC subsidize all operations over Rock Island lines which the other railroads took over. The railroads would be assured of a reasonable profit for operating those lines. Since the railroads would use Rock Island manpower, some current Rock Island employes would be assured of a job.

The second option would not involve any federal expenditure but, since the railroads would use their own personnel, it would have a more devastating effect on Rock Island employes.

Oklahoma Gov. David Boren, who met with ICC Chairman George Stafford on Tuesday, confirmed that labor security "is really in doubt." He said Stafford "didn't give us any assurance that the labor force could be maintained on any line except those which the ICC deems essential."

Boren said he was not optimistic about the fate of service on the Rock Island lines. "The reports we had today are not optimistic. It just looks like the Rock Island is headed for liquidation," he said.

The Rock Island operates over 7,500 miles of track in 13 Midwestern and Southwestern states and employs more than 10,000 workers. It was begun in 1852 and was the first railroad to cross the Mississippi. In 1872, it fell victim to one of the first train robberies that Jesse James pulled off.

Asbestos Study Shows Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study of asbestos fibers in the waters of the Great Lakes expresses concern for human health but does not conclude that the fibres found in drinking water are harmful.

The International Joint Commission, which conducted the study, recommended additional research into the affects of human consumption of drinking water which contains asbestos fibres.

The fibers when inhaled, are known to cause cancer and lung diseases which show up from 10 to 40 years after exposure.

However, the commission study said that although the effects of inhaled asbestos "are reasonably well known, the effects of ingested asbestos have only recently come under study."

It mentioned experiments by the Japanese on stomach cancer linked to rice dusted with talc, which usually contains asbestos.

The report said that asbestos fibers are found throughout the Great Lakes in varying quantities and for different reasons, including natural erosion from asbestos-bearing rocks.

It noted that the fibers in Lake Superior were carried across the U.S.-Canada border. The Associated Press reported erroneously Tuesday that the fibers were carried from Lake Superior into the other lakes.

The highest concentration of asbestos fibers found in drinking water was in the Sarnia, Ont., system, which draws its water from Lake Huron. The report noted, however, that Sarnia water is unfiltered and that filtration through sand can remove about 90 per cent of asbestos fibers from water supplies.

A sample of unfiltered water from Thunder Bay, Wis. — near where Reserve Mining Co. has dumped waste material containing asbestos fibers into Lake Superior — showed a far smaller count compared to Sarnia.

Higher than average concentrations of the fibre were found along the north shore of Lake Superior between Duluth and Silver Bay, attributable to Reserve's discharge; along the St. Clair River; downstream from Montreal and in the asbestos mining district in Quebec.

"Industries along the St. Clair River and in other locations may explain the high counts there," the report said.

The report said asbestos fibres from the Reserve Mining dumping into Lake Superior could be specifically identified because it is a type known as cummingtonite. This type is different from asbestos fibres found elsewhere in the lakes, "and therefore can be directly traced to the cummingtonite asbestos operation of Reserve."

Peace Group Tries To Thwart Fremont Tax Sale

FREMONT, Mich. (AP) — Taking a tactic from Depression days, a Newaygo County peace group tried today to thwart the sale for back taxes of a war protestor's property.

Members of the Newaygo County Citizens for Peace took an ad in today's editions of the weekly Fremont Times Indicator urging those who oppose wars to bid for the property of Paul Snyder, a local veterinarian.

Snyder's property is to be sold April 2 when Internal Revenue Service agents open sealed bids at Fremont's Post Office.

Snyder and his wife, Addie, concede they owe about $3,000 in federal taxes withheld as a war protest since the invasion of Cambodia in 1971 but claim the property to be sold is worth nearly $80,000.

They withheld the portion of their taxes they figured would go toward the Defense Department, basing their figures on the Pentagon's share of the national budget.

Listing a variety of reasons for supporting the Snyders, the peace group's ad urged county residents, "If you agree with us ... please make a bid on their (the Snyder's) property."

Making a bid of pennies for farm property being foreclosed for failure to meet mortgages was a common tactic among angry farmers during the Depression. If their bids succeeded, the property was returned to its owner and the mortgage torn up.

Internal Revenue Service agents handling the Snyder case could not be reached for comment about the ad.

Peace Group Tries To Thwart Fremont Tax Sale

FREMONT, Mich. (AP) — Taking a tactic from Depression days, a Newaygo County peace group tried today to thwart the sale for back taxes of a war protestor's property.

Members of the Newaygo County Citizens for Peace took an ad in today's editions of the weekly Fremont Times Indicator urging those who oppose wars to bid for the property of Paul Snyder, a local veterinarian.

Snyder's property is to be sold April 2 when Internal Revenue Service agents open sealed bids at Fremont's Post Office.

Snyder and his wife, Addie, concede they owe about $3,000 in federal taxes withheld as a war protest since the invasion of Cambodia in 1971 but claim the property to be sold is worth nearly $80,000.

They withheld the portion of their taxes they figured would go toward the Defense Department, basing their figures on the Pentagon's share of the national budget.

Listing a variety of reasons for supporting the Snyders, the peace group's ad urged county residents, "If you agree with us ... please make a bid on their (the Snyder's) property."

Making a bid of pennies for farm property being foreclosed for failure to meet mortgages was a common tactic among angry farmers during the Depression. If their bids succeeded, the property was returned to its owner and the mortgage torn up.

Internal Revenue Service agents handling the Snyder case could not be reached for comment about the ad.

Scientists Zero In On Hepatitis Viruses

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third in a series of articles on diseases that can't yet be cured or prevented because scientists lack fundamental knowledge about them.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — In a sudden rush of progress, medical scientists have opened the tantalizing prospect of vaccination against hepatitis viruses attacking the liver.

Ten years ago it wasn't known what viruses, if any, caused hepatitis with its jaundiced sickness and frequent deaths.

Now, from recent discoveries, there is evidence that the viruses guilty of two kinds of hepatitis are being unmasked. Such identification usually is a first step on the long path toward a safe and effective vaccine to protect the liver, a vital organ that secretes bile, helps form blood, and removes some poisons from blood.

Complicating the problem is that at least two vaccines would be needed.

One would be against infectious hepatitis, Hepatitis A, caused by a virus found in sewage and polluted water — a virus that can infect foods such as oysters and clams or be transmitted by unsanitary methods of handling food.

Second is serum hepatitis, or Hepatitis B, usually transmitted by transfusions of blood or blood products, or by dirty needles used by drug addicts, or by contamination of needles used in piercing ears, or in tattooing, or in medical injections. Mosquitoes can pass it, too.

It is estimated that 700,000 Americans are possible carriers of Hepatitis B and don't know it.

About 60,000 Americans contract hepatitis, either A or B, each year, and one to 10 per cent, meaning 6,000 at the upper limit, die from it.

The only known treatment, so far, is bed rest and nutritious diet. You just have to let an unpleasant, often painful sickness run its course.

Hepatitis may begin with vague feelings of not being well, of nausea, loss of appetite, then diarrhea, vomiting and dehydration. Eyes turn yellow, and later the skin. Urine turns dark. The liver enlarges and hurts. It becomes hard to stay awake. Then in four weeks or so, in the majority of cases the woes go away. Convalescence takes weeks. Complications persist in 15 per cent of patients. Adults are hit harder than children.

Research in hepatitis was stalled until the late 1960's, says Dr. Robert H. Purcell, head of the hepatitis virus section, Laboratory of Infectious Diseases, of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases here.

An initial break, little recognized at first, came in 1964 when Dr. Baruch S. Blumberg, while he was at the National Institutes of Health, found a curious protein material in the blood of an Australian aborigine while doing blood-genetics studies.

Then researchers began finding this same Australian antigen (an antigen being any substance that stimulates antibodies against it) in the blood of people who had Type B or serum hepatitis, and in hemophiliacs who had received many blood transfusions.

But no such antigen showed up in the blood or normal people or people with Type A or infectious hepatitis.

Further investigations now have disclosed that the Australian antigen exists in three forms. The most complex of the three, called the Dane particle after the British researcher Dr. D.M.S. Dane, seems to contain genetic material. This could mean it is the real virus or infectious agent in Type B serum hepatitis.

Scientists are working with this lead toward full identification of a virus and perhaps later development of a vaccine.

A roadblock is that the Dane particle cannot, so far, be grown in tissue culture, the usual process through which to produce quantities of a virus to make a vaccine.

But chimpanzees and rhesus monkeys can be infected with it. This offers a way to study the characteristics of the presumed virus.

And it offers a way to prepare large quantities of blood plasma containing Hepatitis B antigen. It may be possible to produce a vaccine, using an inactivated antigen or particle, that can be tested to see if it protects chimpanzees infected with live virus. In turn, this might lead to vaccines for humans.

Type A virus, like Type B, cannot yet be grown in tissue cultures. But it does infect marmosets, and infected blood from these small monkeys is being used now in research to isolate the virus. Marmoset breeding colonies and other research are supported by the National I,nstitute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the Bureau of Biologics of the Food and Drug Administration and the Center for Disease Control headquartered in Atlanta, Ga.

"As yet, we have no idea how to approach a vaccine for Type A," Purcell says. And, as yet, there is no method of screening for the presence of Type A in human blood, as there is for Type B.

But with the tempting prospects for vaccines or other new defense, the research push is accelerating, and the National Institutes of Health budget for research in hepatitis has risen from $1.5 million in 1970 to $5.2 million in 1974.

Onassis Subject Of Item

LONDON (AP) — The British press last week commented on a variety of topics, ranging from the death of Aristotle Onassis to the fate of Cambodia.

The Sunday Express said the life of Onassis, the Greek shipping magnate who died Saturday in Paris, "resembled the story of some figure from Greek mythology on whom the gods lavished every conceivable gift except the only really important ones."

"He enjoyed the satisfaction of building from small beginnings a fabulous fortune. He enjoyed the boons that flow from great wealth: the power and influence and deference, the gilded life in the world's play spots, the company of interesting men and beautiful women.

"But Onassis never knew the happiness that comes only from abiding human relationship. His first marriage ended in divorce. His affair with Maria Callas tailed away into bitterness. His second marriage, to the former Jacqueline Kennedy, seemed buried in material possessions. And he died from a cruel illness, still mourning the loss in an air crash of the son he adored."

On Cambodia, the Manchester Guardian, said:

"The Khmer Rouge's victory is probably inevitable, and its wider consequences ought to be faced. The obvious one, which Dr. Kissinger clearly fears, is that other American allies including America's longest standing partners in collective defense in NATO, will draw uncomfortable lessons from Cambodia. There are two: first, that the United States abandons its allies when the going gets rough; and second, that it does so not from the kind of sad but mature admission that circumstances have changed irretrievably, but because Congress is exasperated by the secretary of state and is paying off old scores against a series of strong administrations now that it has got a weak one."

The Daily Express said Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's recent tour of Western Europe "should recall to everyone the importance of Canada in the world today. It has been Mr. Trudeau's purpose on his visit here and on the Continent to chart a new course for Canada which will align her even more closely with Europe.

"Canada needs to do this because she is overdependent on her giant neighbor, the United States. It is to correct this dangerous imbalance that Mr. Trudeau is trying to build up the Canada-Europe entente. Mr. Wilson and President Giscard d'Estaing should cooperate with Mr. Trudeau to make a reality of Canada's new deal."

Federal Charges Against Muskegon Osteopath Dropped

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — An osteopathic surgeon, who is part Sioux Indian, says federal charges stemming from his efforts to resupply besieged Indians occupying Wounded Knee, S.D., weren't harassment.

"I don't think it was persecution of me as an individual or as an Indian," Dr. Dwain Cummings said Tuesday after criminal charges were dropped.

"I'm very grateful to have it over. It's been a long time and quite expensive," Cummings said after being fined $1,000 Monday for violating Federal Aviation Administration rules.

What the 47-year-old surgeon did was admit civil responsibility for reckless flying and operating an overloaded airplane. Those charges are civil rather than criminal.

Charges against Cummings, who is known locally as the "Buffalo Doctor" because he raises a herd of American bison on a farm near Stanwood, Mich., were filed in March, 1973.

The criminal charges were dropped after what Cummings said was five months of plea bargaining.

U.S. Atty. Frank Spies in Grand Rapids would not comment on the negotiations since federal charges still are pending at Council Bluffs, Iowa, against Paul Davids of Grand Haven, Mich. Davids, 44, was the pilot Cummings hired for the flight to Wounded Knee.

Spies said dropping criminal charges against Cummings was unreleated to an earlier government action dropping charges against leaders of the American Indian Movement, the group which occupied Wounded Knee.

Federal Charges Against Muskegon Osteopath Dropped

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — An osteopathic surgeon, who is part Sioux Indian, says federal charges stemming from his efforts to resupply besieged Indians occupying Wounded Knee, S.D., weren't harassment.

"I don't think it was persecution of me as an individual or as an Indian," Dr. Dwain Cummings said Tuesday after criminal charges were dropped.

"I'm very grateful to have it over. It's been a long time and quite expensive," Cummings said after being fined $1,000 Monday for violating Federal Aviation Administration rules.

What the 47-year-old surgeon did was admit civil responsibility for reckless flying and operating an overloaded airplane. Those charges are civil rather than criminal.

Charges against Cummings, who is known locally as the "Buffalo Doctor" because he raises a herd of American bison on a farm near Stanwood, Mich., were filed in March, 1973.

The criminal charges were dropped after what Cummings said was five months of plea bargaining.

U.S. Atty. Frank Spies in Grand Rapids would not comment on the negotiations since federal charges still are pending at Council Bluffs, Iowa, against Paul Davids of Grand Haven, Mich. Davids, 44, was the pilot Cummings hired for the flight to Wounded Knee.

Spies said dropping criminal charges against Cummings was unrelated to an earlier government action dropping charges against leaders of the American Indian Movement, the group which occupied Wounded Knee.

'Sweet 16' Psyching Up For NCAA Duels

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most of the horn tooting in the NCAA college basketball tournament seems to be happening before the games.

The coaches of the 16 teams remaining in the tourney spent part of Tuesday beating their own chests, then doing a paraphrase on the old "the only thing to fear is fear itself" number.

"We're not scared of anybody," Driesell said. "And if we put it all together, people had better be scared of us."

The fourth-ranked Terps, 23-4, overcame pesky Creighton 83-79 last Saturday to earn a date with No. 9 Notre Dame, 19-8, for a second-round Midwest Regional game Thursday night at Las Cruces, N.M. The other Midwest Regional game pits No. 12 Cincinnati, 22-5, against No. 3 Louisville, 25-2.

"This is a challenge to our ball club and they've fooled a lot of people all year long," Driesell said. "People counted us out all year and then again after we lost two straight games to Clemson and North Carolina.

"Now they're counting us out again. They'd better not do that if they're smart. We're one of the best teams in the country and our record proves it."

Besides the Midwest battles Thursday night, there will be the East Regional at Providence, R.I., which has Syracuse, 21-7 against North Carolina, 22-7, and Boston College, 21-7, against Kansas State, 19-8. Then, there's the Mideast Regional, matching Kentucky, 23-4, against Central Michigan, 21-5, and Indiana, 30-0, against Oregon State, 19-10. And in the West Regional at Portland, Ore., Arizona State, 24-3, plays Nevada-Las Vegas, 23-4, and Montana, 21-6, meets UCLA, 24-3.

Maryland beat Notre Dame 90-82 in an earlier meeting this season and the Terps again will have to contend with All-American Adrian Dantley, who scored 29 points in that game.

"Dantley is a great offensive player," Driesell said. "In the last game, just about everybody guarded him. We'll stick a lot of different people on him this time, unless one person does a good job."

But Driesell isn't scared of Dantley or any combination of Dantley and four others. 'We're going into this tournament with a positive attitude," Driesell said. "We realize that all it takes is four (more) games to win the national championship, and we think we can do it.

"At this point, a lot of people would have had reason to be skeptical of us," he said. "But they'd better look out for us now.

UCLA, the giant of college basketball over the past 12 years with 10 NCAA titles, has an awesome reputation. Only Montana isn't shaking with fright.

"Our kids are excited and practice has reflected that attitude," said Jud Heathcote, coach of unranked Montana. "The boys recognize we're definitely out-talented and we're playing what is a living legend.

"We're going in a little apprehensive but not scared, if there is a difference."

Second-ranked UCLA advanced to Portland with a 103-91 overtime struggle with Michigan, while Montana scored a 69-63 victory over Utah State.

Indiana's No. 1 ranked Hoosiers raced into their second-round game with a 78-53 victory over Texas-El Paso, and although no team scares Bobby Knight's boys, the Indiana coach is apprehensive about 13th-rated Oregon State.

"Oregon State is capable of beating any team in the country," Knight said. "They beat UCLA this year and they beat 'em last year, too. That shows you what kind of team they are."

North Carolina, ranked sixth, has been proving itself all season, but it's griping now because no one seems to have noticed.

"We are ACC champions," said 6-foot-9 Mitch Kupchak. "We beat North Carolina State. We proved that already. The only thing I sense now on this team is that we want to keep proving to ourselves we're a great basketball team."

Rose Bowl Super Now

Pasadena Given 1977 NFL Title Game

Never before had a city without a pro football team of its own been voted the championship game, but the Southern California city had 104,701 seats in a world-renown stadium working for it. In accepting Pasadena's Rose Bowl bid, the NFL turned down Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and Montreal.

So Super Bowl XI will visit the big bowl on Jan. 9, eight days after the Pacific-8 and Big Ten collegiate champions battle in the annual Rose Bowl game at the Arroyo Seco.

Don Yokaitis, former mayor and current councilman in Pasadena, declared, "We made the decision to go after the Super Bowl about a month ago. We came to Honolulu thinking our chances were excellant for two basic reasons. First, we feel we have the finest stadium for players and for fans. Secondly, it is the stadium with the largest capacity and most prestige."

Pasadena had enough confidence in its bid that it had even planned how to freshen the turf after the Rose Bowl game so that all would be ready for the pros.

City Manager Jim Crain told the owners, "In the middle of December, we will start germinating seed in silica sand with heat on it. By the time the Rose Bowl game is over, we'll cut the grass on the field short and sow the germinated seed and cover it with urethane sheets. Three days before the Super Bowl, we'll uncover it."

Pasadena decided early this year that further use must be made of the city-owned stadium because of increasing maintenance costs.

"We want to have selective events," Yokaitis explained, "and the Super Bowl must be one of the best."

So Pasadena offered its Rose Bowl for $60,000 rental plus a 5 per cent seat tax that should bring another $50,000 plus concession and parking rights. The NFL gets the ticket, televsion and program rights.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that cities which have held the Super Bowl in the past estimate the added income to their areas might be as high as $50 million, counting travel and food.

Pasadena, about 12 miles east of Los Angeles, will have to share the hotel revenue with their larger neighbor.

A spokesman for Los Angeles, which lost its bid, said the Coliseum offered a package which would have cost the NFL less. But the Coliseum capacity cannot match that of the Rose Bowl. However, the largest crowd to ever watch a pro game was 102,368 for the Rams-San Francisco 49ers game at the Coliseum in 1957 and the largest Super Bowl crowd was 90,183 there when Miami beat Washington 14-7 in 1973.

Rozelle said the decision came on a sixth ballot with 20 of the 26 NFL clubs needed to vote affirmatively for one city before it gains the Super Bowl.

'Biggie' Dies After Stroke

Coach, AD Brought Grid Greatness To MSU

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — When Clarence "Biggie" Munn led Michigan State to a humilating 55-0 loss to Michigan in his first outing as head coach, few would have guessed he'd bring football greatness to East Lansing.

But in 24 years as football coach and athletic director, that's just what Munn did.

"The Big Man" died at 66 Tuesday following his second stroke, but myriad athletic facilities and MSU's self-respect as a collegiate sports giant remained as a living monument to his work.

"He put us on the map, there's no question about that," said MSU assistant sports information director Nick Vista. "I think his single biggest asset was his great dedication to youth. And he was a helluva competitor. I think he proved that by the way he battled this thing."

Hired by then MSU President John Hannah in 1947 to help the school overcome its "cow college" image, Munn managed a respectable 7-2 season that year, despite the slow start against Big Ten rival Michigan.

In the middle of the 1950 season, Michigan State started a 28-game winning streak — the longest string in the school's history.

He capped his coaching career with a 28-20 victory over UCLA in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1954, then took over from Ralph Young as Michigan State's athletic director. He retired from the post following a stroke in 1971.

He built MSU's intercollegiate program to include 15 sports, housed in one of the nation's outstanding athletic complexes.

An All-American guard at Minnesota, Munn coached for the Gophers, Albright College, Michigan and Syracuse before coming to MSU.

In his seven years as head football coach at MSU, he put together a 54-9-2 record with the help of a staff that included Dan Devine, Bob Devaney, Forest Evashevski and his successor as head coach, Duffy Daugherty.

Known for his temper, Munn started a furor even before coaching his first game at MSU by telling other conference schools he didn't like their scholarship programfour years after turning over the football program to Daugherty, Munn became furious at a Spartan loss to Minnesota.

"It's a terrible thing to see an empire come down like this one has," he said at the time. "This is the most futile display I've ever seen."

Hannah put a lid on the Munn-Daugherty flap, but their relationship was permanently stained from then on.

Munn was inducted into the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame in 1959, five years after he gave up coaching. Two years later he was admitted to the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

Changed 'Cow College' Into National Champion

Munn 'Big Man' On Spartans' Campus

Editor's Note: The following profile of Biggie Munn was written by a retired AP sportswriter, Bob Voges, who watched Munn's career flourish at Michigan State and probably knew him as well as anyone.

By BOB VOGES
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Biggie Munn, known as "The Big Man" at Michigan State Univerisity, made MSU big in athletics.

Munn, who coached MSU's football team to national glory in the early 1950's, died Tuesday at the age of 66. He had suffered his second stroke March 10. The first stroke hit in 1971.

After winding up his illustrious career in football, Munn built for MSU an over-all program that now embraces some 15 intercollegiate sports and one of the nation's outstanding athletic complexes.

On the football field, Munn was a rough disciplinarian. But he was regarded with awe by his former players, many of whom went on to pro football. More than a dozen of his former assistants became head coaches.

After a particularly rough game, Munn helped calm down high-strung athletes with a moment of silent prayer.

Munn was sincere. He was an active member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and once served as president.

Into his sixties, Munn retained the physique that enabled him to play fullback, tackle and guard at the University of Minnesota.

He particularly loved to get out to the Canadian wilds to fish, accompanied only by an Indian guide or a favorite buddy. He could flare with temper, but then forgive.

Munn was recruited from Syracuse University by former MSU President John Hannah to do just one job: Change the Michigan State football image from that of a "Cow College" to a national champion.

His debut as head coach in 1947 was marked by a 55-0 wipeout by archrival Michigan. Munn once was an assistant coach at Michigan as well as at Minnesota.

Then football coach and later athletic director Fritz Crisler rubbed it in by even kicking a field goal.

Munn always contended the Spartan dressing room was flooded deliberately. The story of how the slime and muck was knee deep would grow to waist deep through the years, as Munn enriched it.

Munn picked his team out of the mire and went on to a respectable 7-2 won-lost season.

Munn and Hannah were credited with persuading Notre Dame to agree to a home-and-home series. They used this agreement as the basis for a gamble on a stadium expansion.

The Irish were a sure stadium filler, but State still needed a winning team to pay off for the extra seats.

Munn hit the jackpot with a 28-game victory streak that extended from the fourth game of the 1950 season through the fourth game of the fall of 1953.

Then a Spartan touchdown was called back and a former MSU player who had transferred to Purdue scored the winning touchdown to give the Boilermakers a stunning upset.

"We can still do it," Munn told his seniors, who had never known defeat. They did, rebounding to win the Big Ten title and going on to State's first Rose Bowl and a 28-20 thriller victory over UCLA.

Munn was a stickler for detail as well as discipline. He introduced the idea of having his footballers wear identifying jackets with the Spartan green and white colors.

He always believed in giving players a second chance. Several were bounced from the squad one year for reporting back after curfew and sent back to East Lansing by the slowest railroad route possible. But two who repented were given a chance to try out for the team and make it back again the hard way.

Munn's "pony backfield" of the Rose Bowl year, featuring such running backs as Leroy Bolden and Billy Wells, probably was his favorite team. But he also was noted for collecting quarterbacks. Several, including Earl Morrall and Al Dorow, went on to pro ball.

Munn didn't invent, but made good use of such spectacular plays as the transcontinental pass and the wheel and block formation to spring a kick receiver loose for a touchdown sprint down the sidelines.

Following his seven-year record of 54-9-2 won-lost-tied, Munn was rewarded with the post of athletic director.

Munn became a builder. The Men's Intramural Building was his brainchild and was constructed according to his basic design. He expanded the facilities for women and gave them an outdoor swimming pool to match the one enjoyed by the men. He added 40 tennis courts and nine holes to an 18-hole golf course.

BIGGIE MUNN
MSU Great Dies

Artificial turf was added not only for the football stadium but also ordered for the all-purpose fieldhouse and outdoor track field. His next idea was a new ice arena.

"We can't afford to stand still," Munn kept repeating. "We've got to keep up with the rest of the Big Ten."

Munn was proud that the intercollegiate program numbered 15 sports, showing all the emphasis was not on football.

But he enlarged Spartan Stadium by 25,000 seats during his tenure to create a capacity of more than 76,000. He was planning another upper deck for the stadium and his secret dream was to have just one more seat than the 101,001 claimed at the University of Michigan.

"Football," he said, "should be fun."

Detroit To Host Gold Cup

DETROIT (AP) — The city of Detroit's Spirit of '76 Committee bought the Gold Cup unlimited power boat race for 1976 to anchor its American Bicentennial celebration on the Detroit River.

The city bid $76,761 for the race, last held here in 1972 when officials bid $42,500 to the Unlimited Racing Commission of the American Power Boat Association.

The Gold Cup race was run on the Detroit River from 1916 to 1950 when it was held in Seattle. Since 1960 the race has gone to the highest bidder. Detroit bought the event in 1963, 1964, 1966, 1968 and 1972.

St. John Slips By In NIT

Utley's Free Throws Trip Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — A funny thing happened to Mel Utley on the way to the basket. He slipped.

A not-so-funny thing happened to the Manhattan basketball team on the play. The Jaspers got called for a foul.

Utley got up and with the game on the line, threw in two free throws in the last eight seconds to give St. John's a tingling 57-56 victory in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Tournament Tuesday night.

"It was ice," said Utley, one of St. John's best foul shooters. "I knew I'd make those free throws. I went inside to draw the foul and got it."

The victory, one of the most exciting in this 38th annual post-season classic, shot the Redmen into Saturday's semi-finals against Providence, a 101-80 victor over Pittsburgh in Tuesday night's first game.

South Carolina meets Princeton and Oral Roberts takes on Oregon Thursday night in another quarter-final doubleheader to determine the other two berths in Saturday's semis at Madison Square Garden.

Utley's winning free throws came in the face of rowdy Manhattan fans, who waved their arms wildly behind the St. John's basket in an effort to distract the Redmen's player.

The Jaspers appeared to have the game won with a 56-55 lead and the ball in their possession with 25 seconds remaining. But on an inbounds play, Tom Lockhart went in for an unneeded shot and missed, and the ball bounced to a St. John's player.

Manhattan's Mike Young committed a foul and St. John's set up a play with 19 seconds left. The ball was passed to Utley, and he drove for a shot with eight seconds remaining. That's when he was fouled by Charley Mahoney. At least the referee thought so.

"You want to know what happened?" Utley explained. "I slipped and banged into Charley. I was wearing someone else's sneakers and my feet didn't feel right."

The first game wasn't half as exciting, but Providence gave evidence of its tremendous scoring power. Joe Hassett and Bill Eason each scored 18 points as six Friars hit double figures against a supposedly tough defensive club. The game was over at the half, when Providence took a 57-38 lead after taking charge of the backboards.

In accepting Pasadena's Rose Bowl bid, the NFL turned down Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and Montreal.

So Super Bowl XI will visit the big bowl on Jan. 9, eight days after the Pacific-8 and Big Ten collegiate champions battle in the annual Rose Bowl game at the Arroyo Seco.

Don Yokaitis, former mayor and current councilman in Pasadena, declared, "We made the decision to go after the Super Bowl about a month ago. We came to Honolulu thinking our chances were excellant for two basic reasons. First, we feel we have the finest stadium for players and for fans. Secondly, it is the stadium with the largest capacity and most prestige."

Pasadena had enough confidence in its bid that it had even planned how to freshen the turf after the Rose Bowl game so that all would be ready for the pros.

City Manager Jim Crain told the owners, "In the middle of December, we will start germinating seed in silica sand with heat on it. By the time the Rose Bowl game is over, we'll cut the grass on the field short and sow the germinated seed and cover it with urethane sheets. Three days before the Super Bowl, we'll uncover it."

Pasadena decided early this year that further use must be made of the city-owned stadium because of increasing maintenance costs.

"We want to have selective events," Yokaitis explained, "and the Super Bowl must be one of the best."

So Pasadena offered its Rose Bowl for $60,000 rental plus a 5 per cent seat tax that should bring another $50,000 plus concession and parking rights. The NFL gets the ticket, television and program rights.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that cities which have held the Super Bowl in the past estimate the added income to their areas might be as high as $50 million, counting travel and food.

Pasadena, about 12 miles east of Los Angeles, will have to share the hotel revenue with their larger neighbor.

A spokesman for Los Angeles, which lost its bid, said the Coliseum offered a package which would have cost the NFL less. But the Coliseum capacity cannot match that of the Rose Bowl. However, the largest crowd to ever watch a pro game was 102,368 for the Rams-San Francisco 49ers game at the Coliseum in 1957 and the largest Super Bowl crowd was 90,183 there when Miami beat Washington 14-7 in 1973.

Rozelle said the decision came on a sixth ballot with 20 of the 26 NFL clubs needed to vote affirmatively for one city before it gains the Super Bowl.

'Biggie' Dies After Stroke

Coach, AD Brought Grid Greatness To MSU

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — When Clarence "Biggie" Munn led Michigan State to a humilating 55-0 loss to Michigan in his first outing as head coach, few would have guessed he'd bring football greatness to East Lansing.

But in 24 years as football coach and athletic director, that's just what Munn did.

"The Big Man" died at 66 Tuesday following his second stroke, but myriad athletic facilities and MSU's self-respect as a collegiate sports giant remained as a living monument to his work.

"He put us on the map, there's no question about that," said MSU assistant sports information director Nick Vista. "I think his single biggest asset was his great dedication to youth. And he was a helluva competitor. I think he proved that by the way he battled this thing."

Hired by then MSU President John Hannah in 1947 to help the school overcome its "cow college" image, Munn managed a respectable 7-2 season that year, despite the slow start against Big Ten rival Michigan.

In the middle of the 1950 season, Michigan State started a 28-game winning streak — the longest string in the school's history.

He capped his coaching career with a 28-20 victory over UCLA in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1954, then took over from Ralph Young as Michigan State's athletic director. He retired from the post following a stroke in 1971.

He built MSU's intercollegiate program to include 15 sports, housed in one of the nation's outstanding athletic complexes.

An All-American guard at Minnesota, Munn coached for the Gophers, Albright College, Michigan and Syracuse before coming to MSU.

In his seven years as head football coach at MSU, he put together a 54-9-2 record with the help of a staff that included Dan Devine, Bob Devaney, Forest Evashevski and his successor as head coach, Duffy Daugherty.

Known for his temper, Munn started a furor even before coaching his first game at MSU by telling other conference schools he didn't like their scholarship programfour years after turning over the football program to Daugherty. Munn became furious at a Spartan loss to Minnesota.

"It's a terrible thing to see an empire come down like this one has," he said at the time. "This is the most futile display I've ever seen."

Hannah put a lid on the Munn-Daugherty flap, but their relationship was permanently stained from then on.

Munn was inducted into the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame in 1959, five years after he gave up coaching. Two years later he was admitted to the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

Changed 'Cow College' Into National Champion

Munn 'Big Man' On Spartans' Campus

Editor's Note: The following profile of Biggie Munn was written by a retired AP sportswriter, Bob Voges, who watched Munn's career flourish at Michigan State and probably knew him as well as anyone.

By BOB VOGES
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Biggie Munn, known as "The Big Man" at Michigan State Univerisity, made MSU big in athletics.

Munn, who coached MSU's football team to national glory in the early 1950's, died Tuesday at the age of 66. He had suffered his second stroke March 10. The first stroke hit in 1971.

After winding up his illustrious career in football, Munn built for MSU an over-all program that now embraces some 15 intercollegiate sports and one of the nation's outstanding athletic complexes.

On the football field, Munn was a rough disciplinarian. But he was regarded with awe by his former players, many of whom went on to pro football. More than a dozen of his former assistants became head coaches.

After a particularly rough game, Munn helped calm down high-strung athletes with a moment of silent prayer.

Munn was sincere. He was an active member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and once served as president.

Into his sixties, Munn retained the physique that enabled him to play fullback, tackle and guard at the University of Minnesota.

He particularly loved to get out to the Canadian wilds to fish, accompanied only by an Indian guide or a favorite buddy. He could flare with temper, but then forgive.

Munn was recruited from Syracuse University by former MSU President John Hannah to do just one job: Change the Michigan State football image from that of a "Cow College" to a national champion.

His debut as head coach in 1947 was marked by a 55-0 wipeout by archrival Michigan. Munn once was an assistant coach at Michigan as well as at Minnesota.

Then football coach and later athletic director Fritz Crisler rubbed it in by even kicking a field goal.

Munn always contended the Spartan dressing room was flooded deliberately. The story of how the slime and muck was knee deep would grow to waist deep through the years, as Munn enriched it.

Munn picked his team out of the mire and went on to a respectable 7-2 won-lost season.

Munn and Hannah were credited with persuading Notre Dame to agree to a home-and-home series. They used this agreement as the basis for a gamble on a stadium expansion.

The Irish were a sure stadium filler, but State still needed a winning team to pay off for the extra seats.

Munn hit the jackpot with a 28-game victory streak that extended from the fourth game of the 1950 season through the fourth game of the fall of 1953.

Then a Spartan touchdown was called back and a former MSU player who had transferred to Purdue scored the winning touchdown to give the Boilermakers a stunning upset.

"We can still do it," Munn told his seniors, who had never known defeat. They did, rebounding to win the Big Ten title and going on to State's first Rose Bowl and a 28-20 thriller victory over UCLA.

Munn was a stickler for detail as well as discipline. He introduced the idea of having his footballers wear identifying jackets with the Spartan green and white colors.

He always believed in giving players a second chance. Several were bounced from the squad one year for reporting back after curfew and sent back to East Lansing by the slowest railroad route possible. But two who repented were given a chance to try out for the team and make it back again the hard way.

Munn's "pony backfield" of the Rose Bowl year, featuring such running backs as Leroy Bolden and Billy Wells, probably was his favorite team. But he also was noted for collecting quarterbacks. Several, including Earl Morrall and Al Dorow, went on to pro ball.

Munn didn't invent, but made good use of such spectacular plays as the transcontinental pass and the wheel and block formation to spring a kick receiver loose for a touchdown sprint down the sidelines.

Following his seven-year record of 54-9-2 won-lost-tied, Munn was rewarded with the post of athletic director.

Munn became a builder. The Men's Intramural Building was his brainchild and was constructed according to his basic design. He expanded the facilities for women and gave them an outdoor swimming pool to match the one enjoyed by the men. He added 40 tennis courts and nine holes to an 18-hole golf course.

Artificial turf was added not only for the football stadium but also ordered for the all-purpose fieldhouse and outdoor track field. His next idea was a new ice arena.

"We can't afford to stand still," Munn kept repeating. "We've got to keep up with the rest of the Big Ten."

Munn was proud that the intercollegiate program numbered 15 sports, showing all the emphasis was not on football.

But he enlarged Spartan Stadium by 25,000 seats during his tenure to create a capacity of more than 76,000. He was planning another upper deck for the stadium and his secret dream was to have just one more seat than the 101,001 claimed at the University of Michigan.

"Football," he said, "should be fun."

Detroit To Host Gold Cup

DETROIT (AP) — The city of Detroit's Spirit of '76 Committee bought the Gold Cup unlimited power boat race for 1976 to anchor its American Bicentennial celebration on the Detroit River.

The city bid $76,761 for the race, last held here in 1972 when officials bid $42,500 to the Unlimited Racing Commission of the American Power Boat Association.

The Gold Cup race was run on the Detroit River from 1916 to 1950 when it was held in Seattle. Since 1960 the race has gone to the highest bidder. Detroit bought the event in 1963, 1964, 1966, 1968 and 1972.

St. John Slips By In NIT

Utley's Free Throws Trip Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — A funny thing happened to Mel Utley on the way to the basket. He slipped.

A not-so-funny thing happened to the Manhattan basketball team on the play. The Jaspers got called for a foul.

Utley got up and with the game on the line, threw in two free throws in the last eight seconds to give St. John's a tingling 57-56 victory in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Tournament Tuesday night.

"It was ice," said Utley, one of St. John's best foul shooters. "I knew I'd make those free throws. I went inside to draw the foul and got it."

The victory, one of the most exciting in this 38th annual post-season classic, shot the Redmen into Saturday's semi-finals against Providence, a 101-80 victor over Pittsburgh in Tuesday night's first game.

South Carolina meets Princeton and Oral Roberts takes on Oregon Thursday night in another quarter-final doubleheader to determine the other two berths in Saturday's semis at Madison Square Garden.

Utley's winning free throws came in the face of rowdy Manhattan fans, who waved their arms wildly behind the St. John's basket in an effort to distract the Redmen's player.

The Jaspers appeared to have the game won with a 56-55 lead and the ball in their possession with 25 seconds remaining. But on an inbounds play, Tom Lockhart went in for an unneeded shot and missed, and the ball bounced to a St. John's player.

Manhattan's Mike Young committed a foul and St. John's set up a play with 19 seconds left. The ball was passed to Utley, and he drove for a shot with eight seconds remaining. That's when he was fouled by Charley Mahoney. At least the referee thought so.

"You want to know what happened?" Utley explained. "I slipped and banged into Charley. I was wearing someone else's sneakers and my feet didn't feel right."

The first game wasn't half as exciting, but Providence gave evidence of its tremendous scoring power. Joe Hassett and Bill Eason each scored 18 points as six Friars hit double figures against a supposedly tough defensive club. The game was over at the half, when Providence took a 57-38 lead after taking charge of the backboards.

Ranger State Finalists Talk Of Town

Tourney Fever Hits Cass Area

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

CASSOPOLIS — "It's just a beautiful deal!"

Those words by Cassopolis chief of police Frank Williams aptly sum up the "epidemic" currently sweeping the little town of Cassopolis.

It's called tournament fever.

Players, students, teachers, parents, merchants, farmers...they've all come down with the fever. Even the surrounding communities of Dowagiac, Edwardsburg, Jones, Vandalia and others haven't been able to escape its touch.

The reason for all the commotion—the caravans, parades, pep rallies, posters, parties—is the beloved Rangers, the talk of the town.

For the last three weeks the Rangers have treated their fans to some exciting and winning basketball. And the Cass backers have held up their end of the bargain with fantastic support along the tournament trail...stops at White Pigeon, Portage, Kentwood and Lansing.

The Rangers, an appealing team to watch with their run-and-shoot brand of basketball, now take on Bay City All Saints Saturday night at Ann Arbor for the Class C championship. And needless to say, the town has been in a frenzy this week preparing for the climatic clash.

"We're planning a big parade through town on Friday afternoon," states Williams, co-ordinator of many of the events.

"And there will be a send-off rally Saturday at 2:15 and a welcome home rally Sunday afternoon.

"I've gotten just tremendous co-operation from everyone. They all want to help. This has really united this town. I've had a lot of phone calls from all around offering congratulations."

"It's been fantastic! We must have had 2,000 people up there last Saturday and we only have about 2,700 in our town. And when we got back Saturday there was a motorcade waiting for us—fire trucks, police cars, ambulances—about two miles long. We had a big celebration in the parking lot behind the school.

"And last Thursday we had a big parade... the Edwardsburg basketball team and cheerleaders were even in it. And different people in Dowagiac sponsored a breakfast for us last Saturday."

The Cass merchants have also given the Rangers plenty of support, including plastering of signs of encouragement over the windows of their shops.

"We've just had tremendous support from the merchants and really the entire community," adds Ranger Athletic Director Mike McGovern. "Some merchants and other individuals hired a bus to take the team to Lansing and now also to go to Ann Arbor. Our coach says it's a real treat to ride in that big bus.

"And I've had a lot of calls of support and letters from all over. We've also had letters wishing us luck from Coloma and Lakeshore and other Blossomland schools...I really feel the rest of the Bud teams are really behind us."

Butch Haggin, manager of the local Ford dealership, has kept busy changing the huge signs in his front window following every Cass tourney win.

"It's been a wonderful thing for this community," offers Haggin, who has taken in every tourney game. "The people have really backed the team. Follett has done an excellent job with the team...and he's a local boy too."

Cassopolis, the first school in Cass County to reach the state finals, has been alloted 1,000 tickets by the Michigan High School Athletic Association and they're expect to go fast.

The Rangers, who sold 1,134 tickets for the semifinal, sold tickets to students Tuesday. Tickets for adults (limit two per person) are available today and Thursday with the remaining ducats (if any) going on sale Friday.

The Cass team will leave the school Saturday at 2:30 p.m. with fans, expected to again decorate their cars, trucks and Winnebagos with paint and signs, leaving shortly after.

The 8:30 p.m. title game is the second part of a doubleheader with Allendale meeting Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart for the Class D crown in the 7:00 opener.

For Follett and the Rangers, the days since the semifinal win over Hamtramck St. Florian have been busy, hectic ones ...but they don't seem to mind.

"The phone has been ringing constantly... it's really been busy," says Follett. "Now I just want us to practice as usual this week, not change our pattern."

Some basketball followers have been surprised by Cass' tournament success...but not the Rangers.

"I took some of the players up to the state finals last year," voices Follett, a 1963 graduate of Cass who lettered in basketball and baseball. "They told me then they would take me up to the finals this year. And they kept their word."

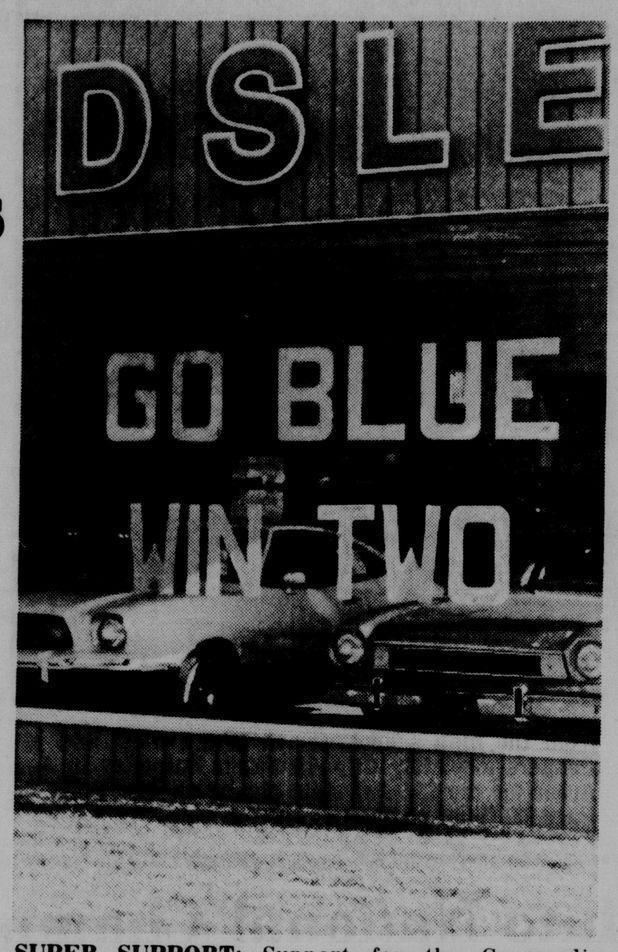
Bay City All Saints is known statewide for its 3,000 club, a contingent of zealous boosters who follow their team all over the state.

So Cass fans, like the Ranger basketball team, will be the "underdogs" Saturday. But don't sell them short.

"I guess this is the biggest thing to happen in Cass since the town burned down a couple of years ago," concludes Follett with a chuckle. "I guess we're burning the town in a different way this winter."

Win or lose Saturday, the town folks will show their appreciation to the team on Sunday with a welcome home party. There really won't be any losers in Cass!

RANGER TALK: Cassopolis cheerleaders Robyn Smith (left) and Kris Horne chat with local merchant Jim Hayden about the Ranger chances in Saturday's Class C championship game. Hayden, who has three children in Cassopolis high school, has followed the Rangers along the tournament trail. Like many of the other downtown merchants, Hayden displays signs of encouragement on the front window of his hardware shop. (Staff photo)



SUPER SUPPORT: Support for the Cassopolis basketball team has been overwhelming from not only Cass but also from surrounding communities. This giant sign appears in the front window of the local Ford dealership. "Blue" refers to the Rangers while "Win Two" refers to the two Cass games last week. A new sign regarding the state finals will be put up this week. (Staff photo)

Celtic Spree Halts Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — "They never give you anything," said Detroit Piston Coach Ray Scott. "That's why they're the champs."

Despite a 50-48 halftime deficit, the Boston Celtics stormed to a 116-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Detroit Pistons on Tuesday night.

"We're tied with Washington in the loss column and have one game in hand," he said. "It's worth $30,000 to $40,000 to finish ahead of them and have the home court advantage (in the playoffs).

"If you end up first, you play only Buffalo or Washington. If you don't, you could play them both. But we have tough competition down the stretch."

As it was Tuesday night, the Pistons did well to stay close for as long as they did. Center Bob Lanier declared himself unfit to play because of a fluid buildup and pain in his knee.

In addition to health problems with Lanier and Davis, playmaker Dave Bing spent the day in the hospital with a chest cold. Bing wound up the game with only 14 points.

The only thing that kept the Pistons in the game at all was the hot shooting of George Trapp and Howard Porter, who hit for 22 and 18 points, respectively.

"In the third quarter, the outside shots stopped falling and they aren't going to give you anything inside," said Scott.

The Pistons have now lost 18 of their last 22 games and chances of a playoff wild card slot are slipping away.

McAdoo's 51 Not Enough

Walker Keys Bulls' Win Over Philadelphia

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

What did Bob McAdoo do? Plenty...but not enough.

Buffalo's 6-foot-10 center pumped in an overwhelming 51 points Tuesday night...but Rudy Tomjanovich and Calvin Murphy combined for 64, carrying the Houston Rockets to a 122-115 victory over the Braves.

Tomjanovich got 34 points and Murphy 30 to help the Rockets snap a five-game National Basketball Association losing streak and maintain their 1½-game edge over third-place Cleveland in the Central Division.

The Cavaliers, battling with the New York Knicks for the wild-card playoff berth that goes to the best third-place team in the Eastern Conference, upended Washington 112-98 while the Knicks beat Los Angeles 109-100 to stay within half a game of Cleveland in the conference standings.

In other NBA games, Chicago beat Philadelphia 111-96, Boston whipped Detroit 116-90, Kansas City-Omaha edged Atlanta 105-101; Golden State walloped Phoenix 133-103 and Portland defeated Milwaukee 95-89.

Houston took the lead to stay in the second period, led 59-52 at the half and steadily pulled out to an insurmountable 14point margin midway in the third period.

"That man is fantastic," Tomjanovich said of McAdoo. "He should be bronzed."

New York, led by Walt Frazier's 27 points plus 23 by John Gianelli and 21 by Earl Monroe, outscored the Lakers 21-4 in the final seven minutes to stay in the thick of the playoff skirmish.

Chet Walker's 30 points led Chicago past Philadelphia.

With Kansas City-Omaha nursing a 99-97 lead in the finl minute, Larry McNeill tapped in a rebound and seconds later hit two free throws to make it 103-97 and finish off the Hawks.

Rick Barry returned from two games on the injury list with a neck muscle spasm to score 28 points in 29 minutes and lead Golden State past the Suns.

John Johnson pumped in 18 points to lead Portland to a come-from-behind victory over Milwaukee.

WFL Team Cuts Proposed Budget

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte Hornets said Tuesday they have lowered to $1.1 million the financial requirement for fielding a team in the World Football League in 1975.

Upton Bell, president and general manager, told a news conference that the figure had been lowered from $1.5 million. He also said $750,000 worth of stock has been sold toward the team's financial goal.

The deadline remains March 31 and the new figure represents a lowering of the team budget for the 1975 season, according to Bell. Under a league requirement, the money is to be in escrow to cover expenses for the season.

Registration Set

The Lakeshore Youth Baseball and Softball Association will hold registration for the 1975 season March 25 from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. in the Lakeshore high school cafeteria.

All players must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and those registering for the first time must have birth certificates.

Players — both boys and girls — must be 6-15 years of age as of August 1, 1975.

The Rangers, who sold 1,134 tickets for the semifinal, sold tickets to students Tuesday. Tickets for adults (limit two per person) are available today and Thursday with the remaining ducats (if any) going on sale Friday.

The Cass team will leave the school Saturday at 2:30 p.m. with fans, expected to again decorate their cars, trucks and Winnebagos with paint and signs, leaving shortly after.

The 8:30 p.m. title game is the second part of a doubleheader with Allendale meeting Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart for the Class. D crown in the 7:00 opener.

For Follett and the Rangers, the days since the semifinal win over Hamtramck St. Florian have been busy, hectic ones ...but they don't seem to mind.

"The phone has been ringing constantly... it's really been busy," says Follett. "Now I just want us to practice as usual this week, not change our pattern."

Some basketball followers have been surprised by Cass' tournament success...but not the Rangers.

"I took some of the players up to the state finals last year," voices Follett, a 1963 graduate of Cass who lettered in basketball and baseball. "They told me then they would take me up to the finals this year. And they kept their word."

Bay City All Saints is known statewide for its 3,000 club, a contingent of zealous boosters who follow their team all over the state.

So Cass fans, like the Ranger basketball team, will be the "underdogs" Saturday. But don't sell them short.

"I guess this is the biggest thing to happen in Cass since the town burned down a couple of years ago," concludes Follett with a chuckle. "I guess we're burning the town in a different way this winter."

Win or lose Saturday, the town folks will show their appreciation to the team on Sunday with a welcome home party. There really won't be any losers in Cass!

Celtic Spree Halts Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — "They never give you anything," said Detroit Piston Coach Ray Scott. "That's why they're the champs."

Despite a 50-48 halftime deficit, the Boston Celtics stormed to a 116-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Detroit Pistons on Tuesday night.

"We're tied with Washington in the loss column and have one game in hand," he said. "It's worth $30,000 to $40,000 to finish ahead of them and have the home court advantage (in the playoffs).

"If you end up first, you play only Buffalo or Washington. If you don't, you could play them both. But we have tough competition down the stretch."

As it was Tuesday night, the Pistons did well to stay close for as long as they did. Center Bob Lanier declared himself unfit to play because of a fluid buildup and pain in his knee.

In addition to health problems with Lanier and Davis, playmaker Dave Bing spent the day in the hospital with a chest cold. Bing wound up the game with only 14 points.

The only thing that kept the Pistons in the game at all was the hot shooting of George Trapp and Howard Porter, who hit for 22 and 18 points, respectively.

"In the third quarter, the outside shots stopped falling and they aren't going to give you anything inside," said Scott.

The Pistons have now lost 18 of their last 22 games and chances of a playoff wild card slot are slipping away.

Don Nelson hit 11 of 13 shots from the field and totaled 27 points to lead Boston. Paul Silas had 22.

SUPER SUPPORT: Support for the Cassopolis basketball team has been overwhelming from not only Cass but also from surrounding communities. McAdoo's 51 Not Enough

Walker Keys Bulls' Win Over Philadelphia

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

What did Bob McAdoo do? Plenty...but not enough.

Buffalo's 6-foot-10 center pumped in an overwhelming 51 points Tuesday night...but Rudy Tomjanovich and Calvin Murphy combined for 64, carrying the Houston Rockets to a 122-115 victory over the Braves.

Tomjanovich got 34 points and Murphy 30 to help the Rockets snap a five-game National Basketball Association losing streak and maintain their 1½-game edge over third-place Cleveland in the Central Division.

The Cavaliers, battling with the New York Knicks for the wild-card playoff berth that goes to the best third-place team in the Eastern Conference, upended Washington 112-98 while the Knicks beat Los Angeles 109-100 to stay within half a game of Cleveland in the conference standings.

In other NBA games, Chicago beat Philadelphia 111-96, Boston whipped Detroit 116-90, Kansas City-Omaha edged Atlanta 105-101; Golden State walloped Phoenix 133-103 and Portland defeated Milwaukee 95-89.

Houston took the lead to stay in the second period, led 59-52 at the half and steadily pulled out to an insurmountable 14point margin midway in the third period.

"That man is fantastic," Tomjanovich said of McAdoo. "He should be bronzed."

New York, led by Walt Frazier's 27 points plus 23 by John Gianelli and 21 by Earl Monroe, outscored the Lakers 21-4 in the final seven minutes to stay in the thick of the playoff skirmish.

Chet Walker's 30 points led Chicago past Philadelphia.

With Kansas City-Omaha nursing a 99-97 lead in the finl minute, Larry McNeill tapped in a rebound and seconds later hit two free throws to make it 103-97 and finish off the Hawks.

Rick Barry returned from two games on the injury list with a neck muscle spasm to score 28 points in 29 minutes and lead Golden State past the Suns.

John Johnson pumped in 18 points to lead Portland to a come-from-behind victory over Milwaukee.

WFL Team Cuts Proposed Budget

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte Hornets said Tuesday they have lowered to $1.1 million the financial requirement for fielding a team in the World Football League in 1975.

Upton Bell, president and general manager, told a news conference that the figure had been lowered from $1.5 million. He also said $750,000 worth of stock has been sold toward the team's financial goal.

The deadline remains March 31 and the new figure represents a lowering of the team budget for the 1975 season, according to Bell. Under a league requirement, the money is to be in escrow to cover expenses for the season.

Registration Set

The Lakeshore Youth Baseball and Softball Association will hold registration for the 1975 season March 25 from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. in the Lakeshore high school cafeteria.

'M' Harvests Bumper Grid Crop

Four Prep All-Americans Head List Of Recruits

ANN ARBOR — It looks like the University of Michigan has harvested a bumper crop of football talent this spring.

Four high school All-Americans and seven legitimate Michigan All-Staters are among the 27 prospects head coach Bo Schembechler has signed to attend Michigan on football scholarships.

The list includes 14 graduating seniors from Michigan high schools, two of whom already are enrolled at Ann Arbor. There are four incoming freshmen from Ohio, three from New Jersey, three from Pennsylvania, two from Virginia and one from Indiana.

"We feel this is an excellent group and hopefully many of these young men will be able to make a contribution to our program very early," Schembechler said.

"Our staff is impressed with the caliber of these incoming freshmen and feel they will fit in well with our present team members. We would have preferred to have had more interior linemen, but otherwise we are very pleased."

The emphasis in recruiting was on quarterbacks, tight ends and linebackers.

Among the five quarterbacks recruited are Rick Leach, a 6-1, 180-pound standout from Flint Southwestern: Chip Pederson, a 6-5, 210-pounder from Bay City Central and Dave Stavale, a 6-1, 180-pounder from Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher who also could play wingback.

The other quarterbacks are Stacy Johnson of Camden, N.J., and Richard Sofield of Morris Plains, N.J.

Only three running backs were recruited, but all three fall into the high school superstar category.

Russell Davis of Woodbridge, Va., is a 6-2, 215-pounder who also has high-jumped 6-8 while Harlon Huckleby of Detroit Cass Tech and Frank Bell of Stroudsburg, Pa., both boast similar speed and size. Davis scored 26 touchdowns last season and Huckleby hit paydirt 21 times.

Huckleby's teammate Tom Seabron and Leach's teammate Gene Johnson — both tight ends — also are on the list. Seabron was an excellent rebounder for Cass Tech's highly-rated basketball team and Johnson was regarded as one of Flint's finest all-around athletes in years.

Leach, Johnson, Huckleby and Davis all were prep All-Americans while Seabron was a Michigan All-Stater along with Mark DeSantis of Bishop Gallagher, Mark Torzy of Detroit DeLaSalle and Kyron Williams of Detroit Southwestern.

DeSantis and Williams already are attending classes at Michigan and taking part in spring drills. Williams, who has run the 100 in 9.9 seconds, is being tried first at middle guard on defense while DeSantis is working at center.

Again, as in past years, several of the recruits have family ties with Michigan.

Leach's father Richard was a baseball letterman at Michigan while 210-pound linebacker Leon Richardson of Fort Wayne is the younger brother of Max Richardson, who earned a letter as a freshman tailback last season.

The most familiar family name is that of Bob Holloway, Jr., a 6-3, 200-pound defensive end whose father played and coached at Michigan and last season was an assistant coach for the Detroit Lions.

The complete list of players given football tenders:

MICHIGAN — Mark Braman, WB/DB, 6-2, 190, Midland (Midland H.S.); Mark DeSantis, OG, 6-3, 210, Harper Woods (Bishop Gallagher); Curtis Greer, DE, 6-4, 225, Detroit (Cass Tech); Bob Holloway, DE, 6-3, 200, West Bloomfield (Bloomfield Andover); Harlon Huckleby, RB, 6-1½, 195, Detroit (Cass Tech); Eugene Johnson, TE, 6-4, 215, Flint (Southwestern); Rick Leach, QBL, 6-1, 180, Flint (Southwestern); Gerard Meter, LB, 6-3, 205, Birmingham (Bloomfield Andover); Bob Patek, Wolf, 6-2, 190, Farmington (North Farmington); Bernhardt (Chip) Pederson, QB, 6-5, 210, Bay City (Central); Thomas Seabron, TE, 6-3½, 205, Detroit (Cass Tech); Dave Stavale, QB/WB, 6-1, 180, Detroit (Bishop Gallagher); Mark Torzy, OT/DT, 6-4, 240, Warren (DeLaSalle); Kyron Williams, OG/MG, 6-1, 220, Detroit (Southwestern).

OHIO — John Arbeznik, T, 6-4, 225, Cleveland (St. Ignatius); Jon Giesler, DT, 6-4, 245, Woodville (Woodmore); Dale Keitz, LB, 6-2, 230, Columbus (Upper Arlington), Mark Schmerge, TE, 6-3, 220, Cincinnati (St. Xavier).

NEW JERSEY — Stacy Johnson, QB/DB, 6-2, 190, Camden (Woodrow Wilson); Tom Melita, LB, 6-1, 218, Pennsgrove (Pennsgrove), Richard Sofield, QB, 6-1, 190, Morris Plains (Morristown).

Lawrence's Boitnott Heads SAC All-Conference Team

Lawrence center Lynn Boitnott has been voted captain of the 1975 Southwestern Athletic Conference all-league basketball team.

Boitnott, a 6-5 senior, finished the season with the highest overall scoring average of any SAC player — 20.3 points per game — and also averaged 15 rebounds. In two district tournament games he averaged 26 points and 20 rebounds.

Joining Boitnott on the first team are SAC scoring champion Jimmy Mason of Marcellus, Tony Givhan of Bloomingdale and two Decatur players — Jerry Baushke and Kurt Wiese.

Named to the second team are Tony Mosley of Bloomingdale, Randy Russell of Lawton, Dana Rowe of Lawrence, Robert Vandenberg of Martin, Jim Overley of Decatur and Jim Glass of Gobles.

Mason won the SAC scoring title with an average of 18.6 points in league games. Boitnott was second at 17.8 while Wiese, only a sophomore, was a close third at 17.3.

Other all-conference players ranking in the top 10 included Mosley (14.2), Vandenberg (14.0), Givhan (13.3), Russell (13.2), Rowe (11.2) and Baushke (10.8)

Givhan was the league's leading rebounder with an average of 16 per game. Russell averaged 11 and Rowe 10.

Decatur and Lawrence shared the championship with 9-3 team records and claimed five of the 11 positions on the all-conference teams.

Jerry Darling of Lawrence and Joe Cerven of Decatur also won honorable mention along with Dan Snyder of Martin, Rick Lewis of Marcellus, Charlie Lynch of Gobles, Steve Allen of Bloomingdale and Dawson Rupp of Lawton.

Twins Happy Standing Pat

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins stood pat during the off-season trading period, convinced they have developed the talent needed to make a run at the world champion Oakland A's in the American League West.

"We know what our people can do and there's no reason to trade them away after watching them matriculate," says Twins Manager Frank Quilici. "We played the best ball in the American League the last half of the year last season and I think our guys know they've got what it takes."

Quilici, entering his third full season as a major league skipper, is looking for a left-handed starter to round out an otherwise young and capable staff anchored by Bert Blyleven and Joe Decker.

"I don't think anybody in baseball has two younger, harder throwers than Blyleven and Decker," he says. "Blyleven's ready to break loose and win 25 games or so."

Blyleven, who doesn't turn 24 until April 6, has already won 80 big-league games (21 by shutout) and struck out 1,094 hitters while Decker has responded with 26 of his 33 major league victories in the last two seasons.

Right-hander Dave Goltz, 10-10 in 1974, is also in the rotation. Quilici and new pitching coach Lee Stange are considering Ray Corbin and left-handers Vic Albury and Bill Butler for the other starting jobs. The Twins' bullpen appears in good shape with crafty Bill Campbell and lefty Tom Burgmeier.

The Twins are the top hitting club in the league over the last two years but have been plagued by a high strikeout frequency.

Harbor's Howard, Albert LMAC All-League Picks

Howard, the Tigers' record-setting rebounder and scoring leader, was one of four unanimous choices on the honor squad, selected in voting by the conference's coaches and players.

He and Albert are two of six seniors on the 10-man team, which includes two players each from Benton Harbor, Muskegon, Grand Haven and Muskegon Catholic Central and one each from Mona Shores and Traverse City.

Also gaining unanimous support were LMAC scoring champion Tim Parker of Mona Shores and two players from Muskegon — center Al Richards and forward Tony Pannell.

Howard established a Benton Harbor record by grabbing 282 rebounds during the regular season and ended his final year with an average of 14.4 per game.

He finished second to Parker in the individual scoring race with an average of 19.6 points in LMAC games and averaged 18.7 over the entire season.

Albert, the Tigers' playmaker guard, averaged 11.7 points in conference play and 13.0 for the year.

Parker won the LMAC scoring title with an average of 23.6 points. Pannell was third at 19.4 and Richards fourth at 15.6.

Among players receiving honorable mention in the voting were three from Benton Harbor — guards Mike Larkin and Ray Thompson and forward Russell Steele.

Benton Harbor won the team scoring championship with an average of 78.3 points per game while winning the league title with a 9-1 record.

The Tigers have now won nine LMAC titles in 15 years of conference play and have a 105-33 record over that period.

The other quarterbacks are Stacy Johnson of Camden, N.J., and Richard Sofield of Morris Plains, N.J.

Only three running backs were recruited, but all three fall into the high school superstar category.

Russell Davis of Woodbridge, Va., is a 6-2, 215-pounder who also has high-jumped 6-8 while Harlon Huckleby of Detroit Cass Tech and Frank Bell of Stroudsburg, Pa., both boast similar speed and size. Davis scored 26 touchdowns last season and Huckleby hit paydirt 21 times.

Huckleby's teammate Tom Seabron and Leach's teammate Gene Johnson — both tight ends — also are on the list. Seabron was an excellent rebounder for Cass Tech's highly-rated basketball team and Johnson was regarded as one of Flint's finest all-around athletes in years.

Leach, Johnson, Huckleby and Davis all were prep All-Americans while Seabron was a Michigan All-Stater along with Mark DeSantis of Bishop Gallagher, Mark Torzy of Detroit DeLaSalle and Kyron Williams of Detroit Southwestern.

DeSantis and Williams already are attending classes at Michigan and taking part in spring drills. Williams, who has run the 100 in 9.9 seconds, is being tried first at middle guard on defense while DeSantis is working at center.

Again, as in past years, several of the recruits have family ties with Michigan.

Leach's father Richard was a baseball letterman at Michigan while 210-pound linebacker Leon Richardson of Fort Wayne is the younger brother of Max Richardson, who earned a letter as a freshman tailback last season.

The most familiar family name is that of Bob Holloway, Jr., a 6-3, 200-pound defensive end whose father played and coached at Michigan and last season was an assistant coach for the Detroit Lions.

EDWARD ALBERT

Harbor's Howard, Albert LMAC All-League Picks

Benton Harbor co-captains Mike Howard and Edward Albert have been selected as members of the 1975 Lake Michigan Athletic Conference all-league basketball team.

Howard, the Tigers' record-setting rebounder and scoring leader, was one of four unanimous choices on the honor squad, selected in voting by the conference's coaches and players.

He and Albert are two of six seniors on the 10-man team, which includes two players each from Benton Harbor, Muskegon, Grand Haven and Muskegon Catholic Central and one each from Mona Shores and Traverse City.

Also gaining unanimous support were LMAC scoring champion Tim Parker of Mona Shores and two players from Muskegon — center Al Richards and forward Tony Pannell.

Howard established a Benton Harbor record by grabbing 282 rebounds during the regular season and ended his final year with an average of 14.4 per game.

He finished second to Parker in the individual scoring race with an average of 19.6 points in LMAC games and averaged 18.7 over the entire season.

Albert, the Tigers' playmaker guard, averaged 11.7 points in conference play and 13.0 for the year.

Parker won the LMAC scoring title with an average of 23.6 points: Pannell was third at 19.4 and Richards fourth at 15.6.

Among players receiving honorable mention in the voting were three from Benton Harbor — guards Mike Larkin and Ray Thompson and forward Russell Steele.

Benton Harbor won the team scoring championship with an average of 78.3 points per game while winning the league title with a 9-1 record.

The Tigers have now won nine LMAC titles in 15 years of conference play and have a 105-33 record over that period.

Twins Happy Standing Pat

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins stood pat during the off-season trading period, convinced they have developed the talent needed to make a run at the world champion Oakland A's in the American League West.

"We know what our people can do and there's no reason to trade them away after watching them matriculate," says Twins Manager Frank Quilici. "We played the best ball in the American League the last half of the year last season and I think our guys know they've got what it takes."

Quilici, entering his third full season as a major league skipper, is looking for a left-handed starter to round out an otherwise young and capable staff anchored by Bert Blyleven and Joe Decker.

"I don't think anybody in baseball has two younger, harder throwers than Blyleven and Decker," he says. "Blyleven's ready to break loose and win 25 games or so."

Blyleven, who doesn't turn 24 until April 6, has already won 80 big-league games (21 by shutout) and struck out 1,094 hitters while Decker has responded with 26 of his 33 major league victories in the last two seasons.

Right-hander Dave Goltz, 10-10 in 1974, is also in the rotation. Quilici and new pitching coach Lee Stange are considering Ray Corbin and left-handers Vic Albury and Bill Butler for the other starting jobs. The Twins' bullpen appears in good shape with crafty Bill Campbell and lefty Tom Burgmeier.

The Twins are the top hitting club in the league over the last two years but have been plagued by a high strikeout frequency.

Second baseman Rod Carew ripped off his third straight batting championship and fourth overall with a .364 mark last season. Outfielder Larry Hisle finished at .286, Tony Oliva .285, Steve Brye .283, versatile Steve Braun .280 and third baseman Eric Soderholm .276.

Base Running Keys Tiger Win Over Expos

Meyer Earning Leftfield Berth

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Young Dan Meyer is beginning to get a grip on the regular leftfield job for the Detroit Tigers.

Tuesday, the 22-year-old rookie made a pair of fine catches, clobbered a two-run homer and broke up a doubleplay with a good slide.

It was the base running that had Detroit Manager Ralph Houk bubbling after the Tigers outlasted the Montreal Expos 11-10 in exhibition baseball.

Bill Slayback, who had pitched three strong innings in relief of a struggling Vern Ruhle, lost a 10-7 lead with three Montreal runs in the ninth.

But Ron LeFlore, who homered in the sixth, opened the bottom of the ninth with a triple and scored on Chuck Taylor's wild pitch to give Detroit its fourth victory against nine Grapefruit League losses.

It was only the second loss in 11 games for the Expos, who were on a eight-game winning streak.

"The thing that pleased me most was Meyer breaking up the double play in the second inning," Houk said. "That gave us two runs right there. That's what we have to do if we're going to win."

Meyer had walked off Steve Renko to load the bases in the second. There was no score and one out when Leon Roberts hit a potential double-play grounder. Meyer slid hard into second baseman Larry Lintz prompting Lintz to throw the relay off the bag at first, and two runs came in on his errant toss.

Meyer made a great one-handed catch of Larry Biittner's line drive in the top of the inning, then made a similar grab in the sixth when Juan Navarette hit a drive to left.

His home run came in the Tigers' five-run fifth following a two-run triple by Bill Freehan.

"He's fielding better than I thought he would," Houk said of Meyer. "He works hard, he's a real athlete. He's throwing better than I expected — he hits the cutoff man every time."

"I really want to break that rumor," he said. "I'd like to believe I can play every facet of the game."

Rookie righthander Ruhle gave up seven runs on nine hits during his five-inning stint. "He was up with his pitches," Houk said. "That wasn't Vern Ruhle out there today."

Nate Colbert drove in two Tiger runs with a pair of singles while Gate Brown and Roberts got the other Tiger RBIs and rookie Gary Ignasiak of New Baltimore, Mich,, pitched the ninth and got the victory.

Tony Scott drove in three runs for the Expos while Warren Cromartie and Roy White knocked in two each.

Leron LaGrow and Luke Walker were expected to pitch for Detroit today at Fort Myers against Kansas City. Paul Splittorf and Hal Baird were the Royals' probables.

After Tuesday's game Houk sent 11 of the 13 minor leaguers who were working out with Detroit back to the minor league camp. Remaining were pitcher Doug Bair and infielder Chuck Scrivener.

McLain Enters Broadcast Booth

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Former Cy Young Award winner Denny McLain will be the play-by-play announcer for the Iowa Oaks' baseball games this season on radio station KBAB of Indianola, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The entire schedule of the American Association team will be presented by the station.

McLain, a veteran of 10 major league seasons, won the Cy Young Award in 1968 when he posted a 31-6 record with Detroit and again in 1969 when he had a 24-9 mark. He pitched for the Oaks in 1973.

Bucks' Coach In Reasons For Jabbar Trade Request

NEW YORK (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's disenchantment with the city of Milwaukee and the National Basketball Association Bucks plus his disillusionment with Coach Larry Costello is at the bottom of his desire to be traded, The Associated Press learned Tuesday night.

"He's just fed up with the situation," a source close to the 7-foot-3⅜ center said. "It's a number of things, not any one reason."

A native of New York City who led UCLA to three consecutive national collegiate basketball championships, Abdul-Jabbar reportedly has told teammates and team officials on numerous occasions of his dissatisfaction with the social and cultural life of Milwaukee.

He also has been disturbed by the great changeover in the Bucks' personnel in the relatively short time he has been in the NBA. Only three members of the Bucks' 1971 championship team still are with the club — guard Jon McGlocklin, forward Bob Dandridge and Abdul-Jabbar.

Kareem has refused comment on the reports that he has asked the Bucks to trade him.

"I just can't say anything at this time," he told reporters last Friday after a New York sportscaster had reported the request to be traded.

Marv Albert of WNBC-TV said Abdul-Jabbar will play only in New York or Los Angeles.

Favorites Roles To Irwin, Arnie

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and Arnold Palmer, each fresh from a brief rest, return to action this week and are prime contenders in the $150,000 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

Irwin has played some of the strongest golf on the tour this season, and the improved performances of the 45-year-old Palmer make him much more than a sentimental favorite in the 72-hole test that begins Thursday on the water-dotted, 7,088-yard, par-72 Deerwood Country Club course.

Both took time off last week after extensive early-season play.

Irwin, who was runner-up to Lee Trevino in the Citrus Open in his last outing, often has come close but has not yet won this season. "But that," he noted, "is a big difference." He's been sixth or better in his last four starts.

Palmer, trying to make a comeback after the poorest season of his legendary career, has had two opportunities to win this year. He was leading with two holes to play in the Hawaiian Open and was in position to challenge for the title in the Jackie Gleason Classic before shooting 74 in the last round.

"I have two big goals this year," Palmer said. "Winning, of course, is one of them. Making the Ryder Cup is the other."

It appears he must accomplish the first to achieve the second. He ranks far down the point list and needs to win to have any chance to make the 12-man Ryder Cup squad that will play Britain's best golfers later this year on Palmer's home course, the Laurel Valley Golf Club in Pennsylvania.

Among the chief challengers to Irwin and Palmer for the $30,000 first prize here are defending champion Hubert Green, Tom Weiskopf and Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, who has played extremely well in his last few starts.

Some other standouts in the 150-man field are Jim Dent, the distance hitter who has challenged twice in recent weeks, Gleason champion Bob Murphy, San Diego winner J.C. Snead, scrambler Dave Stockton and U.S. amateur champion Jerry Pate.

Prices Boosted By Orange Bowl

MIAMI (AP) — All tickets for the 1976 Orange Bowl college football game will cost $10, an increase of from $1.50 to $3, officials said.

"This increase from $8.50 for stadium seats and $7 for end zone seats is the first in three years and represents an effort to reach parity with prices charged by the Sugar, Cotton and Rose Bowls," said spokesman James Armstrong.

Armstrong said 75 per cent of the increased revenue would go to the two colleges participating in the game. Participants normally receive 75 per cent of game revenues.

Base Running Keys Tiger Win Over Expos

Meyer Earning Leftfield Berth

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Young Dan Meyer is beginning to get a grip on the regular leftfield job for the Detroit Tigers.

Tuesday, the 22-year-old rookie made a pair of fine catches, clobbered a two-run homer and broke up a doubleplay with a good slide.

It was the base running that had Detroit Manager Ralph Houk bubbling after the Tigers outlasted the Montreal Expos 11-10 in exhibition baseball.

Bill Slayback, who had pitched three strong innings in relief of a struggling Vern Ruhle, lost a 10-7 lead with three Montreal runs in the ninth.

But Ron LeFlore, who homered in the sixth, opened the bottom of the ninth with a triple and scored on Chuck Taylor's wild pitch to give Detroit its fourth victory against nine Grapefruit League losses.

It was only the second loss in 11 games for the Expos, who were on a eight-game winning streak.

"The thing that pleased me most was Meyer breaking up the double play in the second inning," Houk said. "That gave us two runs right there. That's what we have to do if we're going to win."

Meyer had walked off Steve Renko to load the bases in the second. There was no score and one out when Leon Roberts hit a potential double-play grounder. Meyer slid hard into second baseman Larry Lintz prompting Lintz to throw the relay off the bag at first, and two runs came in on his errant toss.

Meyer made a great one-handed catch of Larry Biittner's line drive in the top of the inning, then made a similar grab in the sixth when Juan Navarette hit a drive to left.

His home run came in the Tigers' five-run fifth following a two-run triple by Bill Freehan.

"He's fielding better than I thought he would," Houk said of Meyer. "He works hard, he's a real athlete. He's throwing better than I expected — he hits the cutoff man every time."

"I really want to break that rumor," he said. "I'd like to believe I can play every facet of the game."

Rookie righthander Ruhle gave up seven runs on nine hits during his five-inning stint. "He was up with his pitches," Houk said. "That wasn't Vern Ruhle out there today."

Nate Colbert drove in two Tiger runs with a pair of singles while Gate Brown and Roberts got the other Tiger RBIs and rookie Gary Ignasiak of New Baltimore, Mich,, pitched the ninth and got the victory.

Tony Scott drove in three runs for the Expos while Warren Cromartie and Roy White knocked in two each.

Leron LaGrow and Luke Walker were expected to pitch for Detroit today at Fort Myers against Kansas City. Paul Splittorf and Hal Baird were the Royals' probables.

After Tuesday's game Houk sent 11 of the 13 minor leaguers who were working out with Detroit back to the minor league camp. Remaining were pitcher Doug Bair and infielder Chuck Scrivener.

McLain Enters Broadcast Booth

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Former Cy Young Award winner Denny McLain will be the play-by-play announcer for the Iowa Oaks' baseball games this season on radio station KBAB of Indianola, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The entire schedule of the American Association team will be presented by the station.

McLain, a veteran of 10 major league seasons, won the Cy Young Award in 1968 when he posted a 31-6 record with Detroit and again in 1969 when he had a 24-9 mark. He pitched for the Oaks in 1973.

Bucks' Coach In Reasons For Jabbar Trade Request

NEW YORK (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's disenchantment with the city of Milwaukee and the National Basketball Association Bucks plus his disillusionment with Coach Larry Costello is at the bottom of his desire to be traded, The Associated Press learned Tuesday night.

"He's just fed up with the situation," a source close to the 7-foot-3⅜ center said. "It's a number of things, not any one reason."

A native of New York City who led UCLA to three consecutive national collegiate basketball championships, Abdul-Jabbar reportedly has told teammates and team officials on numerous occasions of his dissatisfaction with the social and cultural life of Milwaukee.

He also has been disturbed by the great changeover in the Bucks' personnel in the relatively short time he has been in the NBA. Only three members of the Bucks' 1971 championship team still are with the club — guard Jon McGlocklin, forward Bob Dandridge and Abdul-Jabbar.

Kareem has refused comment on the reports that he has asked the Bucks to trade him.

"I just can't say anything at this time," he told reporters last Friday after a New York sportscaster had reported the request to be traded.

Marv Albert of WNBC-TV said Abdul-Jabbar will play only in New York or Los Angeles.

Lump On Back Not Serious

McGraw 'Believes' Doctor

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief pitcher Tug McGraw still believes.

When he was a member of the New York Mets', McGraw's remark "You gotta believe!" became the rallying cry of the fans as the Mets went on to win the 1973 National League pennant.

"I'm leaving this up to the doctors,' the 30-year-old McGraw said. "They say there's nothing seriously wrong with me. When the doctors say it, well, you gotta believe, right?"

In Tuesday's exhibition games, it was the hitters who were doing the believing.

Baltimore stopped Texas 11-8, the Chicago White Sox edged Cincinnati 7-5, Detroit nipped Montreal 11-10, Milwaukee stopped Oakland 8-7, California defeated Cleveland 5-4, Houston beat Kansas City 5-2, the Chicago Cubs downed San Francisco 4-1, the New York Mets beat Boston 5-4, Minnesota knocked over Atlanta 5-3, St. Louis crushed Philadelphia 123, and New York Yankees topped Pittsburgh 3-2.

Don Baylor's two home runs—giving him four in the last two games—powered the Baltimore Orioles over the Texas Rangers. The outfielder also drove in a first-inning run on a fielder's choice as the two teams rapped out a total of 26 hits.

Two homers by Buddy Bradford lifted the Chicago White Sox over the Cincinnati Reds. Ed Herrmann also homered for the Pale Hose while Tony Perez slammed a roundtripper for Cincinnati.

Milwaukee's Bob Coluccio drove in five runs—four of them on two home runs—including the go-ahead marker in the ninth against Oakland. Joe Rudi homered for the A's and Tom Bianco hit a two-run homer for the Brewers.

A lead-off triple by Detroit's Ron LeFlore and a wild pitch ended Montreal's eight-game winning streak. LeFlore also had a home run while Bill Freehan hit a two-run triple and rookie left fielder Dan Meyer slammed a two-run homer.

The Mets erupted for seven hits to score four runs in the seventh inning against the Red Sox. Tony Conigliaro, who has been out of baseball for 3½ years after being hit in the face by a pitch, slammed two doubles and a single in five at-bats for the Red Sox.

Randy Bass' two-run double in the ninth lifted Minnesota to victory. And the Yanks swept their two-game series from the Pirates in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Doc Medich pitched six scoreless innings for New York, limiting Pittsburgh to one hit.

South Africa Athletes Barred

MONTREAL (AP) — The organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics has announcd South Africa would not be invited to participate in pre-Olympic competition in Montreal this summer.

Roger Rousseau, the committee director-general, issued the statement Tuesday following a report that the Quebec Track and Field Association had written to the South Africans about their possible participation.

Rousseau said the committee would respect the boycott of South Africa by the various sports federations and the International Olympic Committee.

"The Canadian government does not encourage the exchange of athletes between Canada and South AKFRICA," Rousseau noted, adding all organizing committees involved in the 1975 competition will be asked "to respect" that policy."

A spokesman for the Quebec Athletics Federation has said South Africa was sent a letter about the pre-Games track meet because it is on the organizing committee's mailing list.

Connors Lauds Tourney Field

From Associated Press

Kodes, the Czechoslovakian rebounding from a poor 1974 season, finally eked out the victory but complained, "The court had no bounce, no go. It was hard work, not fun playing."

In a World Championship Tennis Red Group event at Memphis, Mike Cahill, a local favorite playing in his first professional tournament, upset sixth-seeded Paul Gerken, 6-3, 6-3.

In other other opening-round singles, Australian John Alexander, the No. 1 seed, breezed past Tom Edlefsen, 6-3, 6-3, and third-seeded Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N. Y., blitzed Gerald Battrick, 6-2, 6-3. No. 2 seed Marty Riessen is skipping Memphis because of a wrist injury.

No. 4 Stan Smith, fifth-ranked Harold Solomon and seventh-seeded Bob Lutz also advanced.

Teimuraz Kakulia, the Soviet Union's second-ranked player, upset defending champion Charles Passarell of Puerto Rico, 7-6, 1-6, 6-2 in the opening round of a WCT Blue Group event. In another opening-round match, Alan Stone of Australia topped Brazil's Tomaz Koch, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Miss Goolagong, the second seed, lost service only once to Miss Anthony in the first set, but the defending women's circuit champion used a torrid backhand to pass her victim freely in both sets for a relatively easy victory.

Lump On Back Not Serious

McGraw 'Believes' Doctor

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief pitcher Tug McGraw still believes.

When he was a member of the New York Mets', McGraw's remark "You gotta believe!" became the rallying cry of the fans as the Mets went on to win the 1973 National League pennant.

"I'm leaving this up to the doctors,' the 30-year-old McGraw said. "They say there's nothing seriously wrong with me. When the doctors say it, well, you gotta believe, right?"

In Tuesday's exhibition games, it was the hitters who were doing the believing.

Baltimore stopped Texas 11-8, the Chicago White Sox edged Cincinnati 7-5, Detroit nipped Montreal 11-10, Milwaukee stopped Oakland 8-7, California defeated Cleveland 5-4, Houston beat Kansas City 5-2, the Chicago Cubs downed San Francisco 4-1, the New York Mets beat Boston 5-4, Minnesota knocked over Atlanta 5-3, St. Louis crushed Philadelphia 12-3, and New York Yankees topped Pittsburgh 3-2.

Don Baylor's two home runs—giving him four in the last two games—powered the Baltimore Orioles over the Texas Rangers. The outfielder also drove in a first-inning run on a fielder's choice as the two teams rapped out a total of 26 hits.

Two homers by Buddy Bradford lifted the Chicago White Sox over the Cincinnati Reds. Ed Herrmann also homered for the Pale Hose while Tony Perez slammed a roundtripper for Cincinnati.

Milwaukee's Bob Coluccio drove in five runs—four of them on two home runs—including the go-ahead marker in the ninth against Oakland. Joe Rudi homered for the A's and Tom Bianco hit a two-run homer for the Brewers.

A lead-off triple by Detroit's Ron LeFlore and a wild pitch ended Montreal's eight-game winning streak. LeFlore also had a home run while Bill Freehan hit a two-run triple and rookie left fielder Dan Meyer slammed a two-run homer.

Reggie Smith drove in two runs with a homer and a triple as the Cards routed the Phillies.

The Mets erupted for seven hits to score four runs in the seventh inning against the Red Sox. Tony Conigliaro, who has been out of baseball for 3½ years after being hit in the face by a pitch, slammed two doubles and a single in five at-bats for the Red Sox.

Houston pitcher James Rodney Richard allowed only three hits through six innings as the Astros ended a six-game losing streak.

Right-hander Ray Burris gave up only one hit—a bunt single—in the four innings he worked to lead the Cubs to victory.

Randy Bass' two-run double in the ninth lifted Minnesota to victory. And the Yanks swept their two-game series from the Pirates in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Doc Medich pitched six scoreless innings for New York, limiting Pittsburgh to one hit.

South Africa Athletes Barred

MONTREAL (AP) — The organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics has announced South Africa would not be invited to participate in pre-Olympic competition in Montreal this summer.

Roger Rousseau, the committee director-general, issued the statement Tuesday following a report that the Quebec Track and Field Association had written to the South Africans about their possible participation.

Rousseau said the committee would respect the boycott of South Africa by the various sports federations and the International Olympic Committee.

"The Canadian government does not encourage the exchange of athletes between Canada and South AKFRICA," Rousseau noted, adding all organizing committees involved in the 1975 competition will be asked "to respect" that policy."

A spokesman for the Quebec Athletics Federation has said South Africa was sent a letter about the pre-Games track meet because it is on the organizing committee's mailing list.

South Africa has been banned from participating in Olympic competition because of its apartheid policy.

Hope Diamond Is Lucky Piece For Smithsonian

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What was the gem curator of the Smithsonian Institution doing on a movie set?

Paul E. Desautels was watching Delbert Mann ("Marty") direct Bradford Dillman, Samantha Eggar and Oscar Homolka in a television film, "The Legendary Curse of the Hope Diamond."

Desautels is serving as technical adviser on the Smithsonian Special, produced by the Davie Wolper company. When the show appears on CBS March 27, the curator will be back at the Smithsonian displaying the real Hope Diamond.

Is there any truth in the legendary curse of the Hope diamond?

"Of course not," Desautels replied. "In articles over the years about the Hope those things that supported the 'curse' were carefully selected.

"We had a researcher look into the diamond's history, and there was plenty of evidence to prove the reverse: that it brought good luck."

The diamond's history dates back to 1645, when a French trader sold Louis XIV a 112½-carat diamond from India. It was cut into several pieces, the largest of 68 carats called French Blue because of its color.

The gem disappeared in the French Revolution, later was cut to 44½ carats by an Amsterdam dealer and sold to a rich Englishman, Henry Thomas Hope.

Pierre Cartier of Paris acquired the Hope and sold it to Ned and Evelyn Walsh McLean, wealthy Americans. Later it was sold to gem dealer Harry Winston, who donated it to the Smithsonian.

"The Hope has certainly brought nothing but good luck to us," Desautels observed. "It triggered many other bequests that have enriched the collection."

He added that the gem collection is the second most popular of the museum's attractions — after the gowns of President's wives. All of the visitors want to see the Hope Diamond, of course, and the "curse" legend persists.

In fact, said Desautels, the Smithsonian receives letters from anxious citizens blaming Watergate and other national mishaps on the country's possession of the diamond.

The curator once suggested a form letter explaining that the Smithsonian had planned to hire three virgins to return the Hope to an ivory idol in India — "but we can't find three virgins." Predictably, the higherups were not amused.

"They're ingenious," he said, 'but they just couldn't happen. They require too many things to go right."

There is no way that anyone could snatch the Hope, he insisted, because it is protected by two guards, two glass layers including one bulletproof, alarm systems, a vault that requires three people to open — "and the FBI would immediately be on the case since it is government property."

Does a man who spends his life amid precious gems have any favorites?

"Yes," said Desautels, "and they're not the best-known gems — diamonds, rubies, sapphires, emeralds and pearls. I prefer the less valuable ones, like tourmalines, peridots and spinels."

Kids Want A Share Of Mom's Million

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 46-year-old Westland woman won $1 million in the Michigan Lottery Tuesday night, and her teenage kids promptly bid for a bigger allowance.

Mrs. Parker hugged her husband fiercely and sobbed briefly after learning she had won. He two children, Jeff, 16, and Susan, 14, rushed to join their parents.

"A million dollars. I don't believe it ... Now do I get a raise in my allowance?" Susan asked.

Mrs. Parker said she doubts either she or her husband will retire immediately despite their instant wealth. Parker is a metallurgist for General Motors' Hydramatic plant at Willow Run.

The runner up and winner of $100,000 was Carl Aldridge Jr. of Plymouth, 30. Aldridge, who is unemployed, had moved to Tampa, Fla., to join his mother, and had to be called back for the drawing.

He said he plans to use his winning to open a construction business.

The $10,000 winners were Edward T. Siever, 41, a construction superintendant from Ferndale who is currently laid off; William Tatro, an unemployed 23-year-old from Westland who won his winning ticket when a friend repayed a $25 debt with the ticket.

There were seven winners at $5,000 a piece. They were:

John G. Davey, 44, of owner of an import car company in Royal Oak; Elmer Hann, 74, a Ford Motor Co. retiree from Dearborn; Donald Kleman, 26, of Muskegon who represented a lottery club at Teledyne Continental Motors;

Two Challenge Veteran In Area Speech Contest

Two first-time club champions will challenge veteran speaker Joel Grams for Toastmasters International Area 3 speech championship Friday at Benton Harbor Holiday Inn.

Grams of Mainstreet Toastmasters, St. Joseph, is an area champion, having won the title when he was a member of the former Blossomland Toastmaster club of Stevensville. The challengers are Jay Schneider of Twin City Toastmasters, Benton Harbor, and Darl Williams of Whirlpool Toastmasters of St. Joseph.

Ken Herman of St. Joseph, Area 3 governor, said the speech contest is scheduled for 8 p. m. following dinner. Timers with stop watches will check speakers to see they do not speak less than 4:30 or longer than 7:30 minutes. In addition speakers are scored on how well they do with an impromptu speech subject.

Winner of the area contest will compete in the state contest in Grand Rapids April 26.

Grams, of 3012 Windsor drive, St. Joseph, is an area developer and builder. He was a member of Blossomland Toastmasters for six years before it merged with Mainstreet Toastmasters in 1972. His speech title is: "It's Up to You."

Williams, marketing manager of Whirlpool Corp, won his Whirlpool Toastmaster club contest over four other speakers. His speech title is "A Spelling Bee." He lives at 2203 Pawnee Path, Stevensville.

Schneider is a retail accounting manager at Heath Co. He lives at 153 Windsor road, Benton Harbor. He has been with Twin City Toastmasters two years. His speech title is "Getting Back to Basics."

Herman said guests are welcome. Reservations may be made through any of the three local Toastmaster clubs.

Plead For Rail Service

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dropping rail service in Hillsdale, Branch and St. Joseph counties would mean economic disaster for the area, local planners told federal officials Tuesday.

Officials from those counties pleaded for retention of rail service at a hearing on the future of freight trains in Michigan.

The U.S. Railway Association wants to exclude nearly 100 miles of Penn Central track in three counties from ConRail, the corporation being used to reorganize bankrupt lines. Excluding the track could leave all three counties without rail service unless federal subsidies are available.

Hillsdale County has 29 railroad users who required the use of 7,211 incoming and outgoing loaded rail cars in 1973, said Michael D. Seward, executive director of the Hillsdale County Industrial Development Commission.

"If this went through,our unemployment rate would skyrocket," Seward told officials from the rail planning office of the Interstate Commerce Commission. "Three major businesses in the area say flat out they cannot exist without rail service." The three are the Sierra Permaneer Corp., DCA Food Industries and the Watson Trading Co.

The USRA recommended leaving the track in the three counties out of ConRail, saying traffic was too light to turn a profit on the line.

"Our own surveys show the federal government underestimated the amount of traffic or didn't, in some cases, bother to survey the traffic at all," said Seward.

USRA figures show no rail traffic at all in the St. Joseph communities of Sturgis and White Pigeon. Seward's survey shows nearly 2,000 loaded cars went to or from the communities in 1973.

The Branch County community of Quincy generated 587 carloads of rail traffic in 1973, according to Seward, but is not surveyed in the USRA report.

Another Branch County community, Coldwater, generated 2,170 carloads in 1973, but is only marked down for 1,985 carloads in the USRA report, he said.

Litchfield, a community northwest of Hillsdale, would be left without rail service under the proposal unless federal subsidies are pumped in to keep traffic rolling, said Francis Wills, Litchfield city manager. One reason industry moved to the area is because of ample rail facilities, he said.

Youth King, Queen To Be Chosen

The Greater Benton Harbor Youth Assistance committee is holding a contest for Mr. and Miss Youth Service Bureau, according to Evelyn Hodge, youth services coordinator.

Winners of the contest, to be announced May 4 at the Bachelor 14 Club, will participate in the Blossomtime parade.

Youths aged 12 to 17 are eligible for the contest and any church or civic organization interested in sponsoring candidates should contact Miss Hodge. Applications for contestants are due April 6.

Kids Want A Share Of Mom's Million

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 46-year-old Westland woman won $1 million in the Michigan Lottery Tuesday night, and her teenage kids promptly bid for a bigger allowance.

When the master of ceremonies accused her of being "chicken," she answered for a statewide television audience, "Yes."

Mrs. Parker hugged her husband fiercely and sobbed briefly after learning she had won. He two children, Jeff, 16, and Susan, 14, rushed to join their parents.

"A million dollars. I don't believe it ... Now do I get a raise in my allowance?" Susan asked.

Mrs. Parker said she doubts either she or her husband will retire immediately despite their instant wealth. Parker is a metallurgist for General Motors' Hydramatic plant at Willow Run.

The runner up and winner of $100,000 was Carl Aldridge Jr. of Plymouth, 30. Aldridge, who is unemployed, had moved to Tampa, Fla., to join his mother, and had to be called back for the drawing.

He said he plans to use his winning to open a construction business.

The $10,000 winners were Edward T. Siever, 41, a construction superintendent from Ferndale who is currently laid off; William Tatro, an unemployed 23-year-old from Westland who won his winning ticket when a friend repayed a $25 debt with the ticket.

His friend will get $1,000 of the bounty.

There were seven winners at $5,000 a piece. They were:

John G. Davey, 44, of owner of an import car company in Royal Oak; Elmer Hann, 74, a Ford Motor Co. retiree from Dearborn; Donald Klemm, 26, of Muskegon who represented a lottery club at Teledyne Continental Motors;

Changing Laws, Attitudes Make Divorce Rate Zoom

By G.A. FITZGERALD
Associated Press Writer

Changing state laws and the availability of free legal services on a large scale are toppling divorce barriers and increasing the rate at which marriages are legally ended.

The United States set a record last year both in the number and rate of marriages dissolved. It was part of a 12-year upward trend in divorce which the new laws and legal aid are helping fire.

A committee of the American Bar Association's family law section says 27 states have replaced or amended divorce laws since mid-1972.

New York's State divorce rate, for years the lowest in the nation, has increased more than 6½ times in the eight years since it changed its law.

From an annual average of fewer than 4,000 divorces granted for adultery, the only permitted ground before 1967, state courts in 1974 processed nearly 55,000. Five additional grounds have been added: cruelty, desertion, imprisonment for three or more years and two types of legal separation for a minimum one-year period.

Other states have gone even further. Thirteen of them and the Virgin Islands have eliminated traditional divorce grounds altogether.

In Vermont, a free legal services program opened the same year the state reduced waiting periods for uncontested divorces from two years to six months. A state court official says these are the main reasons Vermont's divorce rate went up 155 per cent between 1969 and 1973.

The new laws and legal aid are not the only reasons for the rate increases. Divorce is becoming a more acceptable, if unpleasant, alternative for unhappy couples. Such attitudinal changes are difficult to measure, but there is no question that American society views divorce differently than it did even a decade ago. Thus even in some states where laws have not been changed, divorce rates are up.

Rhode Island — about 65 per cent Roman Catholic — has not greatly loosened its strict divorce laws recently. Yet while the U.S. divorce rate went up 38 per cent between 1969 and 1973, Rhode Island's rose 86 per cent.

During the same period, divorce was up 53 per cent in Mississippi, 96 per cent in Arkansas and 58 per cent in West Virginia. The ABA's divorce law committee has not identified any significant relaxation of divorce laws in those states either.

Figures published by the National Center for Health Statistics show that divorce rates are growing fastest in the Northeast and the South, sections of the country with traditions of strict divorce laws. Divorce is growing slowest in the West, where divorce always has been easier to obtain and its prevalence therefore much greater.

The potential for further growth also is greatest in the Northeast and the South. U.S. Census Bureau surveys in 1970 showed that the proportion of separated to divorced men and women, ages 35 to 44, was more than three times as great in the Northeast as in the West, and more than twice as great in the South as the West.

Justice Louis B. Heller of the State Supreme Court in New York City's Brooklyn borough says that divorce now exceeds the number of criminal and nonmatrimonial civil cases in his court and that, within a year or two, will surpass the combined volume of the two.

Heller says that before 1967 the stigma of adultery and the deception often practiced in New York divorce courts kept many people away. He added that Nevada or Mexican divorces, alternatives resorted to by many New Yorkers of higher income, were not available to the poor and people of modest means.

"Before 1967, I don't think I ever saw a Catholic or an Orthodox Jew in my court," he says. "But in the last two or three years, it's unbelievable how many have come in and sought divorces."

"Up until recently, all the decisions dealt with vast estates and thousands of dollars in alimony and child support," says Marjory D. Fields, a lawyer with the South Brooklyn Legal Services Corp.

"Now you're beginning to see decisions that talk about $20 a week child support, and $200 in counsel fees, reduced from $1,000 because the husband is too poor to pay more than that."

The recent wave of national reform began with the passage in 1969 of a pioneering California divorce law that rejected the concept of a "guilty" party and replaced it with the idea that the marriage, not the parties to it, should be placed on trial.

Since then, says the ABA's divorce law committee, the concept has been adopted either as an added ground or as the sole basis for divorce in 23 other states and the Virgin Islands. In most cases one only need show there is no chance of reconciliation.

Divorces granted in California rose quickly in the first year of the new law, from 81,546 in 1969 to 112,942 in 1970, a 40 per cent increase. The 1970 California rate of 5.7 per 1,000 population dropped to 5.4 in 1971 and 1972 but rose again in 1973 to 5.7.

Divorce rate experts now say the sudden upsurge in 1970 was due not to the more liberal philosophy of the new law. It came from a reduction in waiting times from one year to six months, and from fewer Californians seeking divorces in neighboring Nevada and Mexico.

They say that Nevada's divorce rate dropped from 24 per 1,000 in 1969 to 15.6 in 1973, a 35 per cent decline. Mexico closed its doors to foreigners seeking quick divorces in 1971.

DOCTORS STILL STRIKING

NEW YORK (AP) — The Committee of Interns and Residents, representing some 3,000 physicians who are striking 22 private and city-run hospitals, presented a counterproposal for an agreement to the League of Voluntary Hospitals early today.

Driving School Sued By State

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley Tuesday filed a lawsuit against a Detroit driving school for alleged violation of the state's Home Solicitation Sales Act.

Kelley said the Security Driving Schoolvisits people who answer its advertisements. Consumers who decide to take the course are given a payment book.

He said they are not provided written contracts stating the terms of the agreement or the consumer's right to nancel within three business daye as required by the act.

The suit was filed in Ingham County Circuit Court.

Kelley also cautioned consumers to beware of companies that send notices to people saying someone with the same last name has died leaving a substantial estate but no known heirs.

The companies tell consumers to send an amount of money to obtain the proper legal documents to determine if they might be one of the missing heirs, Kelley said.

He said in some cases it appears the companies check pending probate files for estates with no surviving heirs, then check telephone books throughout the country for the addresses of people with the same last name.

Public Interest Law Getting Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Bar Association and three foundations are financing a new organization to help public interest law firms secure better financial footing.

The Council for Public Interest Law is receiving $213,000 from the ABA, the Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Brothers Fund and the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation for the first year of what is expected to be a two-to three-year effort, it was announced Tuesday.

Officials Hope Welfare Review Will Cut Fraud

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State officials have announced a review of Michigan's welfare rolls, hoping to cut fraud and error rates and avoid losing millions of dollars in federal money.

The 10-week review of 193,000 Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) cases was to be outlined today by Dr. John Dempsey, director of the Department of Social Services.

The "error-eradication effort" was announced Tuesday by Gov. William Milliken in a special report to the legislature.

Milliken also told lawmakers he would establish pilot programs around the state which would coordinate all human services. The projects will study mini-mergers of mental health, public health and social services — a concept he still supports on the state level although a bill merging those departments died last year.

The governor stressed the need to remove ineligible recipients from the welfare rolls and reduce overpayments. 'The purpose of this effort will be to protect the persons in real need — eligible and entitled to public assistance," he said.

He reviewed statistics in the state welfare program — 7.8 per cent of those getting ADC payments are not eligible, 27.9 per cent are overpaid and 8.2 per cent are underpaid.

If the state does not reduce its ineligibles to 3 per cent and overpayments to 5 per cent by July 1, it will lose more than $30 million in federal funds next fiscal year under new federal guidelines, state officials say.

Milliken said he has protested to HEW Secretary Casper Weinberger, and is "prepared to take further action" if the order is not changed. He did not elaborate.

Under the ADC review, workers will cull roles for errors, and, if needed, make home calls. Other recipients will be called into social services offices for review of their cases.

Milliken said it is not intended to harass those entitled to public assistance. And he urged recipients to report possible inadvertant errors in their cases — saying, however, the state must more vigorously prosecute deliberate fraud.

The governor will direct his Council on Human Services to establish pilot projects in "service integration," and said his 1977-78 budget recommendations will include recommendaions on further coordination of health and social services.

Senate Chipping Away Tax Break

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Senate Taxation Committee is on the verge of approving a bill that clamps the lid on a business tax break granted in rosier economic times.

The measure would freeze the tax credit on business inventories at 25 per cent. The credit, now at 39 per cent, is slated to escalate to 75 per cent in 1981.

The escalating inventory tax credit has been part of Gov. William Milliken's tax-cut packages for the past two years. But with Milliken advocating a hike in the personal income tax, Democrats look at business to provide some of the needed money for the upcoming budget.

The Department of Management and Budget estimates the state would save $5 million to $15 million this fiscal year and up to $50 million next fiscal year if the credit is frozen. Some savings would not be seen until the 1976-77 fiscal year because of the lag in corporate income tax returns.

Support for the bill comes from some lawmakers who say the credit has cost the state almost $30 million more this fiscal year than was anticipated.

Despite opposition from Milliken and the Republicans, the tax credit ceiling is expected to pass. It isn't know whether it will effect passage of the seven-tenths of one per cent income tax increase.

Sen. John Bowman, D-Roseville, chairman of the committee, said again Tuesday he has a package of tax bills to present the Senate, apparently in hopes of reducing the income tax hike needed. He declined to specify what his proposals were, although the credit limitation is obviously one of them.

Bowman said his committee "will meet all week" on various tax proposals, including the key measure increasing the income tax from 3.9 to 4.6 per cent. He said he hopes to report out the inventory tax credit measure later in the week.

"In a time when the economy is undergoing a severe recession, we should do things to enhance industry and business and create more jobs," said Sen. Minority Leader Robert Davis, R-Gaylord.

Davis said the credit would be eliminated anyway if passage is won for Milliken's "business privilege tax" revision.

Berrien's Plan For Employment Debuts Thursday

A 303-page Overall Economic Development Plan for Berrien County, detailing the assets and liabilities of the county that affect employment, will be presented to the county board of commissioners Thursday for final adoption.

The document will be a key to grants and loans from the federal Economic Development administration (EDA) for physical developments that can increase both short term and permanent employment. The grants and loans would be available to both governmental units and private enterprise.

If approved by the commissioners, the plan will go to the Chicago regional EDA office and will form a key basis for approval of the loans and grants.

Amidst a welter of statistics about the county, the plan lays out three goals to be implemented to spur economic development. The goals are:

1. To decrease unemployment through increasing employment opportunities.

2. To encourage certain select industries to locate or expand branch operations within Berrien county.

3. To increase the educational, technical, vocational and skill level of the future labor force as well as increasing the abilities of the present labor force.

The plan was prepared under direction of the 27-member overall economic development plan committee appointed in January by the board of commissioners.

The plan points out that total employment in Berrien county increased by more than 25 per cent in eight years between 1966 and 1973.

Yet at the same time, the county has had for the past several years a continually higher rate of unemployment than the national average. The document's narrative says the composition of the unemployed in the county reflects a "considerably higher percentage (of minority persons) than the composition of the county population."

It pointed out, too, a need to improve educational participation by minorities. "The median education attainment levels of all minorities is 9 years (of school) versus 12.1 years for the white population."

It added that the unskilled portion of the labor force in the county has not participated in local economic growth to the degree the semi-skilled and skilled portions have.

Flint Area Man Kills Family, Self

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A Flint Township man beat his wife and two children to death with the barrel of a shotgun before committing suicide by shooting himself, the Genesee County medical examiner ruled Tuesday.

The bodies of Lindell Hill, 34; his wife, Nancy, 38; their son, Lindell Jr., 2, and Mrs. Hill's son by a previous marriage, Michael Atley, 12, were found Monday in the basement of their home.

House Passes Bill To End Truck Spills

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Truckers would have to make sure their loads do not spill onto Michigan highways under a bill overwhelmingly approved by the state House Tuesday.

The bill is designed to reduce the number of cracked windshields, chipped paint, worn tires and frazzled nerves caused by grit and other objects flying out of trucks.

Violations could bring a misdemeanor penalty of up to 90 days in jail and a $500 fine even if the contents did not actually spill.

The measure, passed 94-5 Tuesday, would go into effect in April, 1976, if passed by the Senate.

Linda Joy Urges Bill Be Passed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Linda Joy, executive director of the Michigan Consumers Council, is urging passage of a measure to outlaw deceptive trade practices.

The council director told members of the American Association of University Women the measure could help the state attorney general protect consumers.

Benton Harbor police identified the driver of the auto as Lynn Ann Hatfield, 17, of 150 Higman Park, Benton Harbor.

Kelley Is Foe Of Rate Boost

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley says allowing state utilities to increase rates when the price of power purchased from other utilities goes up could cost ratepayers more than $100 million a year.

He urged legislators considering such a proposal to defeat it.

Kelley said last November that such "adjustment clauses" are illegal under Michigan law. He said every rate increase requires notice, a public hearing and Public Service Commission approval.

"Fuel adjustment clauses" are exempt, meaning a utility can pass on increased fuel costs. The bill, in the state House, would extend the exemption to power purchased from another utility, Kelley said.

Officials Hope Welfare Review Will Cut Fraud

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State officials have announced a review of Michigan's welfare rolls, hoping to cut fraud and error rates and avoid losing millions of dollars in federal money.

The 10-week review of 193,000 Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) cases was to be outlined today by Dr. John Dempsey, director of the Department of Social Services.

The "error-eradication effort" was announced Tuesday by Gov. William Milliken in a special report to the legislature.

Milliken also told lawmakers he would establish pilot programs around the state which would coordinate all human services. The projects will study mini-mergers of mental health, public health and social services — a concept he still supports on the state level although a bill merging those departments died last year.

The governor stressed the need to remove ineligible recipients from the welfare rolls and reduce overpayments. "The purpose of this effort will be to protect the persons in real need — eligible and entitled to public assistance," he said.

He reviewed statistics in the state welfare program — 7.8 per cent of those getting ADC payments are not eligible, 27.9 per cent are overpaid and 8.2 per cent are underpaid.

If the state does not reduce its ineligibles to 3 per cent and overpayments to 5 per cent by July 1, it will lose more than $30 million in federal funds next fiscal year under new federal guidelines, state officials say.

Galien Schools Consider 1.7 Mill Operations Levy

GALIEN — Faced with serious needs in building renovation and replacement of equipment, the Galien school board Monday night discussed the possibility of seeking a 1.7-milladditional property tax operating levy.

Supt. Robert Tilmann told the board some $35,000 in additional state aid would be realized if the additional operating levy meets voter approval.

The district's current total tax levy is 28.877 mills, comprised of 17 extra voted mills, 8.377 mills allocated by the county, and 3.5 mill debt levy.

Tilmann said that one mill of debt levy expires this year, and if the board reduces the debt levy an additional .7 mill, it could seek voter approval of the 1.7 mills for operation without increasing the overall tax levy, and a future bond issue for building renovation would be avoided.

State aid is based on operational millage levied and not debt retirement millage. Supt. Tilmann said renovation needs at the high school include plumbing, heating, lockers, lighting and other repairs. Tilmann said that of the $35,000 in state aid realized by an additional 1.7 mill operating levy, $25,000 would be committed per year for building renovation and equipment replacement.

He said the district's state equalized valuation is expected to rise enough over the next four or five years to cover the debt retirement reduction.

The board voted that a citizens advisory committee be established to review the advisability of the millage plan. The board set no date for such an election.

In other areas, the board adopted a preliminary 1975-76 budget of $1,011,784 to be submitted to the county tax allocation board for tax allotment purposes. The budget is $75,912 more than 1974-75.

The board voted to borrow $29,012 from Inter City bank of Galien for the purchase of two new buses. The bank's interest rate of 5 per cent was the lowest of four bids submitted. The board approved a community education summer school program budget of $1,500. The board set June 9th as date for the annual election of board members.

Milliken Plan Criticized

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Democratic state lawmaker Tuesday criticized Gov. William Milliken's proposed "business privilege tax" as "Republican corporate politics" which will hurt small business.

"The bill clearly benefits the major manufacturers in the state," said Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek.

"The bill is a boon for the large company that regularly makes enormous capital investments, while the small businessman will have to pick up the burden, because he can't afford to borrow the money to make the investments to qualify for the write-off proposed in the package," Rosenbaum said.

Milliken's proposal consolidates several current business taxes and fees into one tax on payrolls and profits. The governor's aides have conceded it favors the large company more than the small.

Rosenbaum also charged the proposal is being pushed "with ... little objective data to support it."

By ALFRED E. SEYLER D.D.S.

Q. I have a tooth which is decayed below the gum, between the teeth. My dentist wants to put in a silver filling at the bottom of the cavity, then a gold inlay. Have you any comment about such a treatment? Q.—.

A. Sometimes it is extremely difficult to place a well fitted gold inlay in a tooth which has decay much below the gum line, between the teeth, without cutting away a great deal of the tooth.

In such cases, a silver amalgam filling may be placed in the deep cavity, below the gum, and after it has set for several days, the tooth is prepared for a gold inlay.

Dentists who have used this technique have examined their work for several years after treatment and have found that a metallic taste described by patients, due to the contact of the gold and silver, disappeared after 4-6 weeks. Although the inlays sometimes discolored due to corrosion or electriolytic effect, the discoloration could be removed easily by polishing. A few patients complained of sensitive teeth, probably due to irritation of the pulp of the tooth, but such sensitivity disappeared after 8-10 weeks.

Q. I have cracked my upper plate about one inch in the center. I took it to my dentist who made the plate. I left it overnight to insure it had been properly repaired. It lasted one night. I have been fixing it myself and it will last about three days. Is this the best I can ever get it to stay sealed? S.K.

A. If the repair your dentist made lasted only one night, I would have brought it back to him immediately. If the denture cannot be repaired to last longer than such a short period of time it may well be that a new denture must be made for you. Fixing it yourself can be a tricky proposition and may lead to an ill-fitting denture that can cause serious damage to your gum tissues and supporting bone.

Q. Are x-rays safe for children and what purpose do they serve when they still have just baby teeth? L.D.R.

A. X-rays taken with the latest high speed equipment and the utilization of shielding devices are no health hazard to children. It is necessary to take x-ray films of the child's teeth even though he has only his baby teeth in place to allow the dentist to observe the development of the permanent teeth within the bone and to determine if the child's developmental growth patterns are normal.

Q. I have trench mouth. Can I transmit this disease to my girl friend by kissing? B.T.

A. The micro-organisms associated with trench mouth can be transmitted to your girl friend by kissing but if she has high resistance and is in good physical condition her resistance may be high enough to prevent the disease. Have your problem properly diagnoses and treated by a dentist and this will no longer be a concern to you.

Firemen Suspended

Howard Blodgett, 28, a threeyear veteran of the force, was accused in connection with a drug delivery in Calhoun County, police said. He will be given a preliminary hearing Monday in 10th District Court at Marshall.

Sheriff Roger Dean said Blodgett was accused of delivering seven grams of cocaine to an undercover agent of the sheriff's department Feb. 6. He was released on $1,000 bond pending his court appearance.

Jim Croce's Widow Gathering Scribbles

REDDY: Bedroom soda fountain.

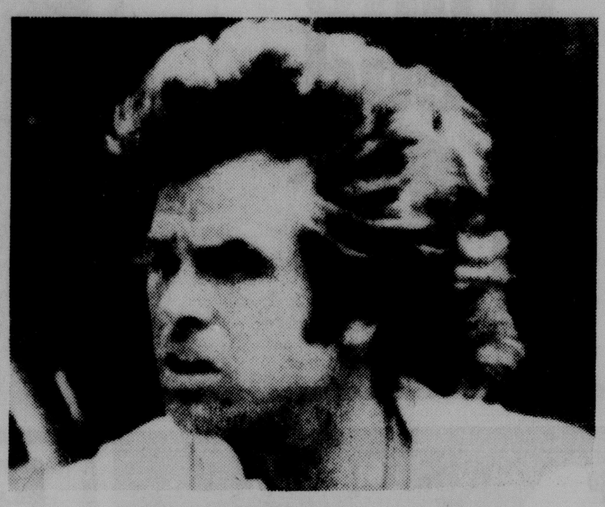
MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC: Jim Croce's widow will gather up all the scraps of paper, matchbook covers and napkins on which her late husband scribbled words. She plans to release these "unfinished songs" in a new Croce album. . . Mick Jagger is considering putting out an LP of vintage Rolling Stones takes from among 100 unreleased Stones numbers. . Jeff Wald and Helen Reddy know how to live. They've got a soda fountain in their bedroom.

Q: I saw a picture of Shirley MacLaine kissing her brother, Warren Beatty, at his "Shampoo" movie. Is it true they'll never talk about each other to reporters or anybody? — J.W., Burlington, Vt.

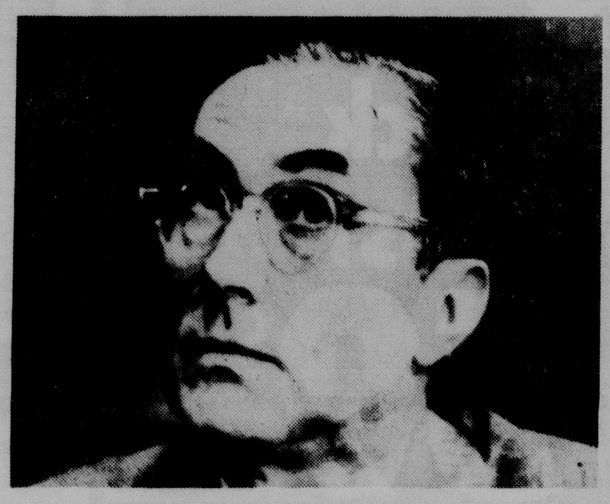
A: When both were trying to make it, the siblings usually cooled it with family chit-chat. But Shirley and Warren have had a lot to say recently. Not long back Shirley analyzed her own and Warren's sex attitudes: "I think Warren really enjoys sex, but I enjoy other things more. I like sex, but it wouldn't bother me if I went for long periods of time without it. . . There are many things I really essentially need, and sex isn't one of them. I think it is with Warren. . . What appeals to me sexually is always someone's mind, imagination, sense of humor. That is all very sexy stuff to me. Whereas with Warren, evidently the act itself is what is sexy." Do you call that taking?

Q: William Colby, CIA director, told a Congressional investigating committee that continual prying into the secrets of his organization might cost the lives of CIA overseas agents. Has it?— R.E., Sweetwater, Tex.

A: There are those who believe that a recent, terse announcement from Russia, that a V.G. Kalinin had been executed as a "spy from the West," was reporting the sort of thing Colby was afraid of. In any case, CIA operatives abroad are said to be lying low lately, with the British intelligence network taking over some of their workload.



BEATTY: Sister Shirley speaks.



COLBY: Worried about his agents.

BLIND AS A BAT ITEM: Now there IS the pop rock idol who has lost his wife, lost several important members of his group, lost a lot of dough on bad gigs, is getting bad-mouthed for underpaying so he can't find band replacements and is heavy into drugs. Outside of that, he's perfectly fine.

Q: Anything new on Richard Burton's marriage to the Princess? Just curious? — C.M., Portland, Maine

A: As has been widely printed, the marriage has been off and on for months. But those close to the princess say she has really had it with his drinking. As a "royal" she was convinced she was the one who could make him stop. Her influence on him was considerable, for a time. In fact, many think his attack on Churchill was because of the way the late English prime minister treated her father, Prince Paul, during the war. But as for marriage, at last reports, even his Welsh charm isn't working.

A: These are things only your accountant knows for sure, but here's a recently published run-down: Hope, $800 million; Crosby, $500 million; Gene Autry, $200 million; Fred MacMurray and Roy Rogers, $100 million. Frank Sinatra is also reported in the $100 million class, with James Garner moving up fast. Hope says that Steve McQueen is showing signs of financial wizardry and will be in the big leagues soon. We think all these figures are high and ought to be cut at least in half. . . after all, Vice President Rockefeller only admitted to some $400 million.

ACAPULCO, Mexico — There are all sorts of features in this beautiful resort but nothing approaches the breathtaking beauty of its sunsets. They're not to be believed!. . . Tennis is as popular here as it is everywhere else, and there are many new courts, indoor and outdoor. . . A large white cross, on the very top of Las Brisas — the hotel collection of cottages, each with its own swimming pool and red-and-white striped jeep — can be seen from everyplace in Acapulco. And, outside the quarters of manager "Brandy" Branstetter, there is a chapel where Sunday services are held. There's also a huge room full of mementos of our astronauts' flights. (And, of further interest to dog lovers, there are eight Great Danes up there — a mama, papa and six babies!). . . Cultural note: Did you know that the University of Mexico is the oldest college in North America?

Atlantic City gents get around! In Palm Springs recently, I encountered Albert Brittan, now managing director of The Canyon, and J.R. Heimbaugh Jr., president of Americana Hotels. Here it was Pete De Tullio, prresident of Hyatt International Hotels! It was like the old, old days — by the sea, by the sea, by the beautiful sea!. . . One of the most elegant restaurants I've ever seen is the one-year-old Armando's Beach club — including a discotheque, tennis courts, sauna baths, massages, beauty salon and boutiques. TV Bringing 'Law' Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Last October, NBC aired "The Law," an excellent two-hour TV movie about a feisty, compassionate public defender and the behind-the-scenes wheelings and dealings in criminal court cases.

Intended as the basis for a possible series, the show drew critical cheers but low ratings. Thankfully, NBC hasn't give up on it yet.

It is giving "The Law" three more chances — tonight, next Wednesday and April 16 — to see if the show can draw better audiences as a one-hour program in a better time slot than that given Show No. 1.

Those who saw the initial "Law" will find changes in tonight's model. For one thing, the public defender (excellently portrayed again by Judd Hirsch) no longer has a wife. The show doesn't say why.

But it does make clear he has quit his public defender's job to work for an establishment law firm which belatedly developed a social conscience and hired him to defend accused felons who have little or no money.

Hirsch is hired by her parents for $300. He soon finds the charge kicked up to assault with intent to kill. And, after some realistic preliminary court jousting, he sets out to reduce the charge.

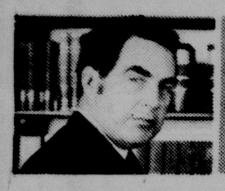
And Hirsch must find out what caused the death of a guy with minor stab wounds as well as get his client off the homicide hook in a way that serves both justice and society.

The way he does it is interesting enough.



JOHN P. ROCHE
A Word Edgewise

My wife and I have virtually stopped going to the movies over the past few years. Our problem is that we simply are repelled by dirty stuff and have no taste for the "Son of King Kong" genre ("Earthquake," "Towering Inferno," etc.). This makes us sound very square, I suppose, but I have long since given up patience with the view that — properly understood — there is no such thing as pornography. It was a normal dirty-minded little American boy who, typically for my generation, got his basic sex education from the art work on the walls of the school toilets. Now all you have to do is go to the newsstand and pick the same essentials up in living color from various magazines.

Some public relations outfit sent me a couple of these a while back, and I confess I was appalled. What the publishers have done to stay within the protection of the Supreme Court — which has been reluctant to endorse the suppression of any works with redeeming social value — is lead off with a profound and learned article by some professor on, say, "The Use of Jungian Archetypes in the Evaluation of Sexual Roles." Having tipped its hat to the judiciary, the journal moves on to hard porn. It is demeaning stuff with human beings treated essentially as animals or as sex-things. The dehumanizing of women should bring the women's liberation groups out fighting — the exploitation of erogenous zones leaves one with the feeling he is visiting the zoo in mating season. In short, it is inhuman.

To say this is not to argue that such magazines should be burned by the public hangman. Nobody has to buy them — I had never heard of any of the three that arrived unsolicited — and I have a profound psychological suspicion of the Watch and Ward types: They remind me of the woman who slapped her boyfriend's face for whistling a dirty song. (My father once related a story about a leading fighter for public decency whose house caught fire; the firemen — Dad among them — found the whole basement full of pornography confiscated from his victims!)

In other words, I am not volunteering for the morals squad, but I want it understood that I find this sort of tripe nauseating. The relationship between man and woman (dare I say "love"?) is far too precious to be dragged through the sewers. This has been my position for years, but it has been quite lonesome: One side shoots at me for supposedly supporting "censorship," and the other accuses me of inertia in the face of Evil. Now to my delight I have found an ally in the formidible Katharine Hepburn.

A couple of weeks ago, ABC television put on a superb special entitled "Love Among the Ruins," featuring Miss Hepburn and Sir Laurence Olivier. (If you missed it, agitate for a rerun: We would like to see it again.) In connection with this feature the TV critic of the "Christian Science Monitor," Arthur Unger, had a fascinating discussion with Miss Hepburn, largely about pornography. She left off with a beautiful summary of what I have been groping after for years: "I think there is a magic in man. His spirit, his attitudes towards his fellow man, his capacity for love and for infinite service is for me a thrilling thing. But it is seldom depicted (in the movies) any more. And I grieve about that."

Later she observed about the current movie crop: "Freakdom has taken over. . . the assumption is that the audience is totally uninspired and that pornography and depravity are what we all want to see. I find it offensive. . . and very sad."

Why, asked Unger, do producers and actors make these kind of films? Because, she said, "Producers and actors are so willing to sell out for money." What about the excuse that they're engaged in a search for truth? This brought Miss Hepburn's Sunday punch: "That's just a bunch of bunk. Only impotent people have to look at dirty pictures to get a kick. Why don't they just admit that is the case. Crawling around in bogus psycoanalysis, trying to excuse every human depravity is just a bore to me."

Katharine Hepburn has always been one of my favorite actresses — "The African Queen," in which she and Humphrey Bogart faced off to provide a case-study in great acting, is a film I have seen probably 10 times and will watch again any time. I'm delighted that she is also a perceptive analyst of the "sadness" of porn, of the pathos involved in the pornographic rip-off.

REDDY: Bedroom soda fountain.

MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC: Jim Croce's widow will gather up all the scraps of paper, matchbook covers and napkins on which her late husband scribbled words. She plans to release these "unfinished songs" in a new Croce album. . . Mick Jagger is considering putting out an LP of vintage Rolling Stones takes from among 100 unreleased Stones numbers. . Jeff Wald and Helen Reddy know how to live. They've got a soda fountain in their bedroom.

Q: I saw a picture of Shirley MacLaine kissing her brother, Warren Beatty, at his "Shampoo" movie. Is it true they'll never talk about each other to reporters or anybody? — J.W., Burlington, Vt.

A: When both were trying to make it, the siblings usually cooled it with family chit-chat. But Shirley and Warren have had a lot to say recently. Not long back Shirley analyzed her own and Warren's sex attitudes: "I think Warren really enjoys sex, but I enjoy other things more. I like sex, but it wouldn't bother me if I went for long periods of time without it. . . There are many things I really essentially need, and sex isn't one of them. I think it is with Warren. . . What appeals to me sexually is always someone's mind, imagination, sense of humor. That is all very sexy stuff to me. Whereas with Warren, evidently the act itself is what is sexy." Do you call that taking?

Q: William Colby, CIA director, told a Congressional investigating committee that continual prying into the secrets of his organization might cost the lives of CIA overseas agents. Has it?— R.E., Sweetwater, Tex.

A: There are those who believe that a recent, terse announcement from Russia, that a V.G. Kalinin had been executed as a "spy from the West," was reporting the sort of thing Colby was afraid of. In any case, CIA operatives abroad are said to be lying low lately, with the British intelligence network taking over some of their workload.

BLIND AS A BAT ITEM: Now there IS the pop rock idol who has lost his wife, lost several important members of his group, lost a lot of dough on bad gigs, is getting bad-mouthed for underpaying so he can't find band replacements and is heavy into drugs. Outside of that, he's perfectly fine.

Q: Anything new on Richard Burton's marriage to the Princess? Just curious? — C.M., Portland, Maine

A: As has been widely printed, the marriage has been off and on for months. But those close to the princess say she has really had it with his drinking. As a "royal" she was convinced she was the one who could make him stop. Her influence on him was considerable, for a time. In fact, many think his attack on Churchill was because of the way the late English prime minister treated her father, Prince Paul, during the war. But as for marriage, at last reports, even his Welsh charm isn't working.

A: These are things only your accountant knows for sure, but here's a recently published run-down: Hope, $800 million; Crosby, $500 million; Gene Autry, $200 million; Fred MacMurray and Roy Rogers, $100 million. Frank Sinatra is also reported in the $100 million class, with James Garner moving up fast. Hope says that Steve McQueen is showing signs of financial wizardry and will be in the big leagues soon. We think all these figures are high and ought to be cut at least in half. . . after all, Vice President Rockefeller only admitted to some $400 million.

ACAPULCO, Mexico — There are all sorts of features in this beautiful resort but nothing approaches the breathtaking beauty of its sunsets. They're not to be believed!. . . Tennis is as popular here as it is everywhere else, and there are many new courts, indoor and outdoor. . . A large white cross, on the very top of Las Brisas — the hotel collection of cottages, each with its own swimming pool and red-and-white striped jeep — can be seen from everyplace in Acapulco. And, outside the quarters of manager "Brandy" Branstetter, there is a chapel where Sunday services are held. There's also a huge room full of mementos of our astronauts' flights. (And, of further interest to dog lovers, there are eight Great Danes up there — a mama, papa and six babies!). . . Cultural note: Did you know that the University of Mexico is the oldest college in North America?

Kitchen-Snooping: Try fried bananas sprinkled with powdered sugar and garnished with guava jelly. . . Substitute lime for lemon whenever you serve fresh fruit or fish for a better taste. . . Fish cooked in parchment paper is delectable specialty in Mexican cooking.

Atlantic City gents get around! In Palm Springs recently, I encountered Albert Brittan, now managing director of The Canyon, and J.R. Heimbaugh Jr., president of Americana Hotels. Here it was Pete De Tullio, prresident of Hyatt International Hotels! It was like the old, old days — by the sea, by the sea, by the beautiful sea!. . . One of the most elegant restaurants I've ever seen is the one-year-old Armando's Beach club — including a discotheque, tennis courts, sauna baths, massages, beauty salon and boutiques. It's completely surrounded on three sides by swimming pools. . . Hyatt's Int'l. P.R. gal Georgia Beach is often called Georgia Peach — and the latter is a good description of her!. . . Popular attraction here is "The Flying Indians" at El Presidente. . . Memoir: Many years back, Hugh O'Brian came to NYC from Acapulco and showed me the wildy-patterned slacks he'd had made there. Till then, men had their choice of only gray flannel or a few other conservative plain colors. So score a fashion first for Mexico — and Hugh O'Brian!

BEATTY: Sister Shirley speaks.

JOHN P. ROCHE
A Word Edgewise

My wife and I have virtually stopped going to the movies over the past few years. Our problem is that we simply are repelled by dirty stuff and have no taste for the "Son of King Kong" genre ("Earthquake," "Towering Inferno," etc.). This makes us sound very square, I suppose, but I have long since given up patience with the view that — properly understood — there is no such thing as pornography. It was a normal dirty-minded little American boy who, typically for my generation, got his basic sex education from the art work on the walls of the school toilets. Now all you have to do is go to the newsstand and pick the same essentials up in living color from various magazines.

Some public relations outfit sent me a couple of these a while back, and I confess I was appalled. What the publishers have done to stay within the protection of the Supreme Court — which has been reluctant to endorse the suppression of any works with redeeming social value — is lead off with a profound and learned article by some professor on, say, "The Use of Jungian Archetypes in the Evaluation of Sexual Roles." Having tipped its hat to the judiciary, the journal moves on to hard porn. It is demeaning stuff with human beings treated essentially as animals or as sex-things. The dehumanizing of women should bring the women's liberation groups out fighting — the exploitation of erogenous zones leaves one with the feeling he is visiting the zoo in mating season. In short, it is inhuman.

To say this is not to argue that such magazines should be burned by the public hangman. Nobody has to buy them — I had never heard of any of the three that arrived unsolicited — and I have a profound psychological suspicion of the Watch and Ward types: They remind me of the woman who slapped her boyfriend's face for whistling a dirty song. (My father once related a story about a leading fighter for public decency whose house caught fire; the firemen — Dad among them — found the whole basement full of pornography confiscated from his victims!)

In other words, I am not volunteering for the morals squad, but I want it understood that I find this sort of tripe nauseating. The relationship between man and woman (dare I say "love"?) is far too precious to be dragged through the sewers. This has been my position for years, but it has been quite lonesome: One side shoots at me for supposedly supporting "censorship," and the other accuses me of inertia in the face of Evil. Now to my delight I have found an ally in the formidible Katharine Hepburn.

A couple of weeks ago, ABC television put on a superb special entitled "Love Among the Ruins," featuring Miss Hepburn and Sir Laurence Olivier. (If you missed it, agitate for a rerun: We would like to see it again.) In connection with this feature the TV critic of the "Christian Science Monitor," Arthur Unger, had a fascinating discussion with Miss Hepburn, largely about pornography. She left off with a beautiful summary of what I have been groping after for years: "I think there is a magic in man. His spirit, his attitudes towards his fellow man, his capacity for love and for infinite service is for me a thrilling thing. But it is seldom depicted (in the movies) any more. And I grieve about that."

Later she observed about the current movie crop: "Freakdom has taken over. . . the assumption is that the audience is totally uninspired and that pornography and depravity are what we all want to see. I find it offensive. . . and very sad."

Why, asked Unger, do producers and actors make these kind of films? Because, she said, "Producers and actors are so willing to sell out for money." What about the excuse that they're engaged in a search for truth? This brought Miss Hepburn's Sunday punch: "That's just a bunch of bunk. Only impotent people have to look at dirty pictures to get a kick. Why don't they just admit that is the case. Crawling around in bogus psycoanalysis, trying to excuse every human depravity is just a bore to me."

Katharine Hepburn has always been one of my favorite actresses — "The African Queen," in which she and Humphrey Bogart faced off to provide a case-study in great acting, is a film I have seen probably 10 times and will watch again any time. I'm delighted that she is also a perceptive analyst of the "sadness" of porn, of the pathos involved in the pornographic rip-off.

TV Bringing 'Law' Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Last October, NBC aired "The Law," an excellent two-hour TV movie about a feisty, compassionate public defender and the behind-the-scenes wheelings and dealings in criminal court cases.

Intended as the basis for a possible series, the show drew critical cheers but low ratings. Thankfully, NBC hasn't give up on it yet.

It is giving "The Law" three more chances — tonight, next Wednesday and April 16 — to see if the show can draw better audiences as a one-hour program in a better time slot than that given Show No. 1.

Those who saw the initial "Law" will find changes in tonight's model. For one thing, the public defender (excellently portrayed again by Judd Hirsch) no longer has a wife. The show doesn't say why.

But it does make clear he has quit his public defender's job to work for an establishment law firm which belatedly developed a social conscience and hired him to defend accused felons who have little or no money.

Tonight's show, while not as crisp as the first one, still maintains its old standard of true grittiness for most of the show.

It starts with the arrest of a young black woman — the surly arresting officer has to be reminded to read her "rights" — on a charge of stabbing her ex-husband at a friend's birthday party.

Hirsch is hired by her parents for $300. He soon finds the charge kicked up to assault with intent to kill. And, after some realistic preliminary court jousting, he sets out to reduce the charge.

When it turns out the victim has died, the charge becomes homicide.

And Hirsch must find out what caused the death of a guy with minor stab wounds as well as get his client off the homicide hook in a way that serves both justice and society.

The way he does it is interesting enough.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Susan Ford, teen-aged daughter of President Ford, is getting a full length muskrat coat with fox trim as a graduation present from her parents.

Miss Ford picked out the coat Tuesday when Constantino Christie, a New York furrier, gave her and her mother a private showing at the White House.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A thousand university students held a rally on their campus today to urge the U.S. Congress to halt aid to Cambodia and to call on President Lon Nol's regime to step down.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Continue To Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved lower today, continuing the downturn which developed in the last hours of Tuesday's session.

Brokers said the market's mood was diverse, with buying and selling pressure vying against each other. There are signs of profit-taking following the Dow's 208-point, three-month rise, and there are also indications investors will buy into any market weakness, brokers said.

Early prices on the Big Board included American Telephone, down ¼ at 51¼, U.S. Steel, off ⅝ at 56½, and Caterpiller Tractor, off 1 at 64. DuPont slipped 1⅜ to 101⅛.

On Tuesday the market moved erratically, up around six points in early trading, but down 7.12 to 779.41 as measured by the Dow index at the close.

Sparking the afternoon retreat, brokers said, was the government report which showed no upturn in housing starts during February, a development some investors had been looking for.

However, brokers said lower interest rates — reflected Tuesday by the lower 7½ per cent prime rate adopted by three big commercial banks — were being welcomed by investors.

Total property tax millage to be levied again to support the budget will be 13.1 mills for general operating costs, .9 mills for debt retirement, and .4 mills for Lake View community hospital. The rates are the same as 1974 rates.

The council said the 13.1 mills are expected to generate $144,310 in revenue.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Man Is Attacked Seated At Bar

A man was struck on the head and back with an iron pipe last night while he was seated at the bar of a Benton Harbor tavern.

Daniel Allen, 27, of Route 3, Decatur, was treated for a cut cheek and bruised back then released from Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor police said.

Allen told police he entered Walt's Ideal Bar, 212 Territorial road, after exchanging words with three men outside the bar. Allen said the men entered the bar after he did and one of them hit him from behind with the pipe. Police said no description of the assailant was available.

Police said Delaforet assisted Patrolman Greg Platts by holding two juveniles while Platts handcuffed them. The juveniles were apprehended minutes after a purse had been snatched from Mrs. Joyce Augsburger, of 320 Westwood, Berrien Springs.

The purse snatching occurred in the parking lot at 777 Riverview drive, and the two juveniles were captured near Empire avenue and 11th street after a chase on foot.

Benton township police reported two batteries and other equipment valued at a total of $280 were stolen from a new truck tractor at Zerbel GMC Truck Sales and Service, 1862 East Napier road, Benton township.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Continue To Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved lower today, continuing the downturn which developed in the last hours of Tuesday's session.

Brokers said the market's mood was diverse, with buying and selling pressure vying against each other. There are signs of profit-taking following the Dow's 208-point, three-month rise, and there are also indications investors will buy into any market weakness, brokers said.

Early prices on the Big Board included American Telephone, down ¼ at 51¼, U.S. Steel, off ⅝ at 56½, and Caterpiller Tractor, off 1 at 64. DuPont slipped 1⅜ to 161⅛.

On Tuesday the market moved erratically, up around six points in early trading, but down 7.12 to 779.41 as measured by the Dow index at the close.

Sparking the afternoon retreat, brokers said, was the government report which showed no upturn in housing starts during February, a development some investors had been looking for.

However, brokers said lower interest rates — reflected Tuesday by the lower 7½ per cent prime rate adopted by three big commercial banks — were being welcomed by investors.

BIRTHS

Hartford — Twins, a boy, weighing 4 pounds, and a girl, weighing 4 pounds, 7 ounces, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gary Ackerman, route 1, Box 388-B, Saturday at 10:16 and 10:07 a.m.

Suspect Suspended

A 15-year-old boy charged with assault with a deadly weapon and resisting arrest has been suspended from school indefinitely, Benton Harbor high school officials said.

Benton Harbor Det. Dave Stovall said the boy, a ninth grade student, allegedly attacked a school security guard with a sharpened lawn mower blade Monday on high school property.

Police were called to the school about 5:15 p.m. after Charles O'Grady, the guard, reported the assault. Stovall said when he tried to question the boy, the youth resisted and ran. Stovall said he had to forcefully subdue the boy.
